KLINE, CAIN CONFER, STILL SILENT AFTER FIRST TAXI STRIKE KILLING

Today

Spread Out Too Thin. All Drink, Says He. Great Chance for Hoover. Gold, Silver, Lead.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"DON'T spread yourself out too thin." Brokers give that advice when your margin is small. Real estate men give it when your mortgage is too big.

Britain's empire is spread out a little thin, with its flag all over the world, seen, as Rudyard Kipling observed, by the heavy bear in the north, and the savage, dancing naked, at the equator.

CONTRAST France — small, compact, concentrated country — with the thinly spread British Empire.

Britain lent billions to France in the war. Now Britain is hard up, harassed by high taxes, compelled to pay a "dole" to millions of unemployed.

France has a billion dollars, gold, on deposit in the United States.

France, with no unemployed, has brought in hundreds of thousands of laborers from Italy and elsewhere.

France has the greatest fighting air fleet in the world, three times as big as that of any other nation, and British leaders tell you privately "we must be polite to France."

BRITAIN has 300,000,000 Hindus and one thin Gandhi, with one Russian Bear, to worry her in India.

She has her race troubles in South Africa.

She wants the biggest navy in the world, she is accustomed to having it. She can't afford it.

Luckily she can make Uncle Sam do whatever she wants. But France says "I will do as I please."

THE dry-wet fight continues. Congressman Murphy, head of business concerns in New York, says he knows no "leading financier, banker, industrialist, or manufacturer, who does not break the dry law."

That seems conclusive. Representative Michenar, Republican from Michigan, asked "How about Henry Ford?"

"I do not know him," replied Murphy. The statesmen all laughed.

HENRY FORD is as dry as the inside of Tut-ank-amen's mummy. It will interest you to know that doctors advised him to drink red wine, favorite beverage of Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, but Ford wouldn't do it.

SUGGEST government operation and you are told "The government doesn't know enough, or isn't honest enough."

But why couldn't government experiment in government power ownership at Muscle Shoals?

That would involve only engineering problems.

The financial problem of seeing how much the people can be made to pay for water that the Lord causes to run downhill is simple.

PRESIDENT HOOVER understands the engineering part, surely.

What a wonderful chance he has at Muscle Shoals, also at Boulder Dam, to show how wise the people were when they elected a great engineer President of the United States

CONRAD HUBERT, who changed his name from Horowitz, made many millions, left $6,000,000 to useful charities, left $1,000,000 to his brother.

The brother, who sticks to his old-fashioned name, Horowitz, has been a humble court interpreter, and he says he will now devote his time to German opera and charity.

WHY did the rich brother wait until he was dead to give a million dollars to his mother's other son?

Many of us forget the proverb often quoted by Nathan Straus:

"What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness is silver, what you give after death is lead."

CLAUDE UDWIN is one of three sentenced to death yesterday for murdering Henry Sullivan, leader of a prison riot. When sentenced to die, Udwin bowed ironically, saying, "O. K. Judge."

THAT spirit gangsters admire. Also that spirit leads to the electric chair.

To sentence those men to death as though they had premeditated an ordinary murder, seems severe.

Sullivan, who was killed, led a rebellion. The three convicts killed him.

If a guard had killed 'um, the guard would have been promoted, as a policeman was promoted yesterday for killing eight gangsters.

A SENATOR tells the House Judiciary Committee the United States hires thugs to help prohibition enforcement.

New York's district attorney is told that officials of the Plasterers Union hire thugs to intimidate builders and, if necessary, set fire to apartment houses not built with proper payment of "racket profit" and in a manner to suit the plasterers.

BOTH statements are unpleasant. In war, nations hire men to kill other men. That dates from the Stone Age and must be accepted.

But to hire professional "killers" to enforce prohibition, or to strengthen the "union racket," leads to trouble.

IT IS not pleasant for the law-abiding citizen in several states forbidden to own a pistol, to read that in the past, as shown by government taxes, the sale of deadly weapons was three times as great as in the preceding year.

HORST BOY'S BODY 'SOLD FOR RUM'

Hanna Admits Slaying Lad, Giving Remains to Akron Bootlegger for Revenge

WOOSTER, O., Feb. 20.—Charles Hanna bartered the lifeless body of 4-year-old Melvin Horst to a bootlegger for 25 gallons of corn whisky, he confessed today to prosecutors of Wayne County.

He abducted the child, placed him in the automobile of Tony La Sacia, of Akron, slew him with a heavy board and then turned the body over to La Sacia in return for the liquor, he said.

La Sacia, arrested in Akron, refused to talk.

Hanna charged that La Sacia sought revenge on Roy Horst, Melvin's uncle, town marshal of Orrville, who fought relentlessly against the liquor traffic there.

BOOZE RACKET REVENGE

The child was the instrument of revenge, he said.

Mentioned as well in the confession were Arthur and Elias Arnold, who were acquitted recently on kidnaping charges.

The Arnolds were the outlet for La Sacia's booze racket in Orrville, the confession says.

Arthur Arnold assisted in planning the kidnaping, but arrived too late to help execute it, according to Hanna, who admitted taking the lad into La Sacia's car and striking him over the head with a 2x4 board, police say.

What La Sacia did with the body he did not reveal.

CONFESSES, SLEEPS

After the confession Hanna fell asleep for his first rest in 30 hours.

The text of the confession and information of La Sacia's arrest were made public today by Wayne County Prosecutor Marion Craven. Special Prosecutor Walter J. Mougey said he thought the confession complete, except for locating the boy's body.

JOBLESS INSIST THEY'LL MARCH

The demonstration at the gates of the Ford Motor Company Pittsburgh assembly plant by Trade Union Unity League organizers, which resulted in the arrest yesterday of, three, was planned to call attention to the banned parade March 6 for the unemployed, it was revealed today.

James Otis, secretary of the Trade Unity League's unemployment committee, today expressed determination to hold it despite the ban.

Pat Cush, alleged labor agitator and recent Communist candidate for mayor, and George Tolly, 32, were arrested at the Crucible Steel plant. Police said the two men delivered fiery speeches. They were fined $25 each.

The three other prisoners, John Sara, 25; John Casper, 27, and George Patrinis, were each fined $25 with the option of 30 days in jail.

'On His Own'

DAVID ROSEN, 10

BOY'S RUNAWAY 'CAREER' ENDS

David Rosen, 10, missing since Monday, was found today in a Portland street confectionery. Someone recognized the runaway and notified his father, Max Rosen, of 5684 Wellesley avenue, who took him home.

David said he ran away because he wanted to make his own way in the world. He had been selling newspapers and buying food with his earnings. He had been sleeping, he said, in a shack in a field near the Fulton School, which he attended.

The boy was worn out by his experience. He was put to bed and was sound asleep the minute his head touched the pillow.

DAVIS, BROWN PROPOSED AS VARE TICKET

Philadelphia Leader May Hold Self as Reserve Senatorial Candidate

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A Republican primary ticket of former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown for governor, and Secretary of Labor ames J. Davis for United States senator, with William S. Vare holding himself ready to go in as an active senatorial candidate in event that becomes a political necessity, was a program discussed today by Philadelphia Republican organization leaders.

Closely following the return of Recorder of Reeds James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and State Senator Samuel W. Salus from a three-day visit to Mr. Vare in Florida, it was reported that Vare is ready to back Secretary Davis for the senatorial nomination in the primary next May and will not be the personal candidate opposing Senator Joseph R. Grundy, except as a last resort.

VARE IN RESERVE

Meantime, however, nominating petitions for Vare will be circulated throughout Pennsylvania. The Philadelphia chieftain will return here in about 10 days to take command of the fight against the Republican state organization. He will be fully equipped as a reserve candidate for Senator, it was said.

William R. Douglas, secretary to Vare, today sent batches of senatorial petition blanks to virtually every outside county in the state, with instructions to the recipients to start obtaining electors signatures at once.

Circulating of the Vare papers in this city is being deferred. The party rules prohibit the city committee from taking active sides in a primary contest, and it is likely a special Philadelphia campaign committee will be organized.

Mr. Brown, who announced his gubernatorial candidacy yesterday, will handle his own nominat-

EIELSON FOUND DEAD NEAR PLANE

Russians Get Body in Snow 5 Days After Digging Out Borland's Near Wreckage

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Feb. 20. — (AP.) — The closing chapter of a series of daring polar adventures was being written today in Arctic Siberia as rescue workers awaited an opportunity to fly out of the treacherous Northland with the bodies of two aerial heroes, Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland.

Word that Eielson's body had been recovered Tuesday from the spot 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, where his plane was wrecked last November 9 was wirelessed to Fairbanks last night. Borland's body was found last Thursday.

TERRIFIC CRASH

Eielson's body was found more than 200 feet from the fuselage of his wrecked plane, and about 150 feet from the place where that of Borland lay, indicating that their ship crashed with terrific impact. Wreckage of the plane, located January 25, was scattered over a wide area.

A searching party headed by Commander Slipenov, Russian pilot, located Eielson's body.

POLAR PIONEER

Eielson, conqueror of both the Arctic and Antarctic in airplane exploration, was Alaska's best known aviator.

His most famous aerial exploit was a flight on April 15, 1922, across the top of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, with Capt. George Hubert Wilkins.

Eielson and Borland were transporting passengers and furs from the steamship Nanuk to Nome Alaska, when lost.

River police began dragging the stream for the body, but their efforts were unsuccessful for the first two hours.

The children are Lillian Allen, 11, of 2109 Tustin street, her sister, Jennie, 7, and the Johnson sisters, Anna, 7, and Eleanor, 10, of 2108 Tustin street.

ARMED CABS PROPOSAL DELAYED

BULLETIN.

The conference on the taxicab drivers' strike was resumed in Mayor Kline's office this afternoon, with the Mayor, Public Safety Director Clark, Sheriff Cain and Police Supt. Walsh participating.

The first fatality in the taxicab drivers' strike resulted in a conference in the office of Mayor Charles H. Kline today, but at its conclusion, announcement was made there was "nothing to say."

The conference followed the killing during the night of William Dreibhold, 24, of 4796 Yew street, strike sympathizer, who was the victim of a bullet said to have been fired accidentally by Motorcycle Patrolman William Harrison, in Grant street, near First avenue, after a Yellow cab had been stoned.

Dreibhold's death, it was expected, would bring prompt action by city and county officials to curb lawlessness in the 40-day strike which has been marked by rioting, injury of more than 200 persons and property destruction.

COMMENT DECLINED

"There is nothing to say," replied Sheriff Robert S. Cain, who participated in the conference, as he left the Mayor's office after a meeting lasting an hour and a half. He had previously stated that he favored equipping taxicab guards with tear gas bombs, but that no step would be taken of this character without the Mayor's consent.

Others in the conference also declined to comment on the pur-

Tomorrow may be a bit cloudy, it was predicted.

Duke Gives Third Bride $1,000,000 Necklace

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—The Duke of Westminster today climbed into the headlines of London's newspapers again when he presented his bride, the Hon. Loelia Ponsonby, with a necklace estimated to be worth a million dollars, immediately after the couple were wed in a simple, truly democratic ceremony.

The ceremony took place in the Prince's Row register office. Meanwhile, hundreds gathered outside, fashionable blue-bloods mingling with poor tenant's of the duke's London estates.

It was the duke's third marriage. He had twice previously been divorced in 1919 and 1925. Both divorce actions caused sensations here.

The duke is 50 and enormously wealthy. His bride, the daughter of Sir Frederick Ponsonby, treasurer to His Majesty and keeper of the privy purse, is in her twenties and herself is one of the richest heiresses in Britain.

The couple will make a honeymoon cruise to the Mediterranean aboard the duke's yacht, the Cutty Sark.

pose or results of the meeting. They were Mayor Kline, James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Chief Deputy Sheriff B. V. Coffey.

PATROLMAN UNDER BOND

Motorcycle Patrolman Harrison was released by Coroner W. J. McGregor in $2,500 bail bond pending an inquest set for next Monday. The coroner viewed the scene of the shooting.

Six years ago the victim of last night's shooting operated a Green cab for a short time.

SEVEN CABS STONED

The fatal shooting of Dreibhold occurred at 11:45 o'clock last night in Grant street, near First avenue, after two automobile loads of strike sympathizers, of whom Dheibhold was one, stoned seven taxicabs near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station, according to police.

Motorcycle Patrolmen William Harrison and James McGuire halted one of the automobiles in Grant street when the second machine swung around on the right side, endangering Harrison. The latter leaped from his motorcycle, pointed his gun at the second car and ordered the driver to halt.

According to Harrison's report to his superiors, his motorcycle struck him on the leg, causing him to discharge the revolver. The bullet struck Dreibhold in the head. His companions in the car continued up Grant street to Second avenue and across the South Tenth Street Bridge. Dreibhold was carried by his brother, Robert, and others into South Side Hospital, where physicians pronounced him dead.

FOUR ARRESTED

Robert Dheibhold and three men, who occupied the first car, were arrested. They were Robert Blume, 26, of 10 West Erie street; Hugh Dowling, 28, of 1720 Tonnette street, Swissvale, and Edward McClain, 28, of 1938 South Eighteenth street.

All four were ordered held for the coroner as witnesses at Central Police Station today. Police are seeking three others who were in Dreibhold's car, including Joseph Fedor, of 186 Forty-fifth street.

Dowling, driver of the first car halted by police, said:

"Myself, McClain and Blume were on our way to 607 Webster avenue. At First avenue and Grant street, a motorcycle officer pulled up in front of us and I came to a dead stop. Another automobile (in which Dreibhold was riding) came from the back of us and passed around to my right. The next thing that I saw was the officer pulled his gun and shoot."

Dowling's statement was corroborated, in substance, by McClain and Blume. Blume and McClain denied there were any bricks in their car, but Dowling admitted, police say, there were two bricks in the machine.

Dreibhold is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dreibhold. He was one of three sons, all former taxicab drivers, it was said. He was not married.

The Water street attack on cabs was the only disorder of the night, according to police. The convoy was en route to the First avenue garage of the Yellow Cab Company when the attack occurred, officials declared.

Demonstrations by strike sympathizers against cab operation were concentrated downtown last night, when after planned operation of Green cabs at night in East Liberty was abandoned at the request of Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh.

Unions Blame Taxi Firms: Strikers Ban Arbitration

A statement signed by James Houston of Molders' Union No. 46; L. Weissbert, Bakery Workers No. 12, and John Hookjahns, Waiters' Union No. 237, placed "full and direct responsibility for continuance of the strike" on the Parmelee Transportation Company. The statement reads in part:

"The drivers have indicated their willingness to adjust all other matters except recognition of the union."

C. H. Waddle, vice chairman of the strikers' committee, said today:

"Our committee will not arbitrate this strike. We know that we are licked before we start arbitration. We will meet with Ernest H. Miller, E. S. Higgins, Walter S. Laird and Paul L. Houston any time and any place to talk over some sort of a settlement. But we won't meet with anybody else. The company's attorney cannot do anything nor anybody else but the heads of the company. All arbitration is out."

For the first time since the rioting in East Liberty last week, passengers were accepted by cabs at the East Liberty station of the Pennsylvania railroad today. Three persons boarded blue sedan cabs of the Green Cab Company during the morning and were taken to their destinations without molestation.

4 GUARDS FINED FOR TAXI ARMS

Four guards employed by the Green Cab Company to protect drivers were fined $25 each in North Side Police Court today for carrying weapons.

They were Walter Wales, 26, of Canonsburg; Walter Bell, 40, of Buffalo; G. A. Bradley, 33, of Buffalo, and Charles D. Adley, 31, of South Brownsville.

Patrolman Charles Otterson testified that in the guards' car, parked at East Lacock and Federal streets Tuesday night, he found a pistol and two blackjacks.

ACCUSED OF VIOLENCE

Edward Nord, 21, of 25 Roberts street, was held for court, charged with violating the injunction against violence, at Oakland Police Station today. Mounted Patrolman Samuel McCandless testified he saw Nord throw a piece of lead through the windshield of a cab at Atwood and Forbes streets yesterday. Two drivers and two guards corroborated the patrolman. Nord denied the charge, saying he had alighted from an automobile and had run into his office nearby.

SIX HELD OVER

Harry Jackson, of 212 Third avenue; Fred Coulson, of Buffalo, N. Y.; John Black, of 520 Second avenue; John Sullivan, of West Seneca, N. Y.; D. Moneck, of 1123 Ivanhoe street, and James Brown, of Albion, N. Y., arrested yesterday at Seventh avenue and Grant street when police said they found tear gas bombs and riot sticks in their car, were held over by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Later in the day, C. H. Waddle, vice president of the drivers' union, signed informations charging the men with violation of the act of 1929 which makes the carrying of bombs of an obnoxious nature a felony, providing they are in the possession of other than an authorized officer.

Blue Taxi Here But Not in Strike

A blue taxicab made its appearance in Pittsburgh today—but it didn't solicit business.

The cab brought several officials of the Peoples Natural Gas Company from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Pittsburgh for a conference and returned an hour or two later with the same customers. Parked at Sixth avenue and William Penn way, it excited comment by bystanders.

"Were you in love with Bill?" Detective Frank Dodson asked.

"No, but I liked him very well," Anna answered.

BORROWED AUTO

The girl said that Dreibhold had been borrowing her brother's auto for some time and transporting passengers who were afraid to ride the cabs. The brother and Dreibhold split the proceeds, Anna said.

"Bill came to our home about 7 o'clock last night," Anna continued. "He wanted to borrow the car. Joe wasn't in, so I told Bill to take it. I sat in the car with him and we talked. We took a ride, and then I went home. Bill came back about 9 o'clock with two men and asked for Joe, but Joe wasn't in. . . . No, I wasn't with him when he was shot."

ing petitions for the present. The former attorney general said he has many friends throughout the state who are anxious to solicit signatures for him.

After Mr. Vare comes back to this city, some co-ordinated plan of assembling the papers for all candidates on the Vare slate probably will be adopted.

Many local ward leaders called upon Hazlett in city hall today to learn the result of the trip to Florida. He advised them to wait patiently until Vare returns.

Former Justice Taft Continues to Gain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Further progress was reported today in ex-Chief Justice Taft's condition. The physicians' bulletin at noon said: "The condition of the former chief justice is a little more satisfactory this morning." For the last three days the bulletins have stated only that there was "no change" in his condition.

KLINE IS URGED AS GOVERNOR CANDIDATE

Friends Offer Mayor to Vare As Solution of Party's Ills; Strength Here Cited

Mayor Kline has been presented to the Pennsylvania political shrine at St. Lucie, Fla., as the logical gubernatorial candidate on a ticket headed by William S. Vare for United States Senator, according to reliable reports.

The tender was made in telephone conversations from Pittsburgh to Vare's home in Florida, the rumor stated.

The Mayor is not represented as having made the proposal in person, but there seems no doubt that it was made in his behalf by political allies.

There has been no information available as to how the offer was received by Vare's friends, but Kline's associates are said to be hugging the hope that the Mayor may be accepted as the dark horse that could be expected to bring harmony to the coming state campaign.

EXPERIENCE CITED

Advisers of Vare were said to have been reminded that Kline has been a political figure in the western end of the state for years and that his wide experience in the General Assembly gave him a grasp of state affairs that admirably fits him for the office of governor.

They were reminded also that Kline proved his leadership in the recent primary election by defeating two opponents, and in the subsequent general election wherein he defeated the Democratic nominee.

Kline's emissaries were said to have sought to impress upon the Vare camp that the Pittsburgh Mayor could confidently expect to attract not only as many votes as he received in the last primary, but, in addition, substantial support throughout the country.

NOT BOUND TO FOES

So far as is known, Mayor Kline has made no public commitment of aspirations to become a candidate for the governorship, but observers pointed out the door would be open to do so, as he has made no open announcement of allegiance to the reported Mellon-Grundy-Fisher ticket or any potential slate.

In the welter of rumors regarding candidates for state office, the name of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor.

However, astute politicians dismiss those rumors by declaring Armstrong would have publicly announced long ago if he had intended to enter the race.

Old Thaw Garage Damaged by Fire

WOMAN AWAITS EXECUTION IN ARIZONA

Slayer of Rancher Spending Last Few Hours Weeping And Sewing Own Shroud

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 20.—(INS)—Eva Dugan, Arizona's first murderess to face hanging, will be executed at the state prison tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock, prison authorities determined today.

Mrs. Dugan, convicted of the club murder of her aged employer, A. J. Mathis, Tucson rancher, three years ago, was denied the final plea she made that a jury find her mentally irresponsible for the murder.

Mrs. Dugan today was spending her last few hours of life weeping, praying and with trembling hands, sewing artificial flowers on her bead-covered silken shroud.

Her attorneys filed notice of an appeal to the State Supreme Court, but it was not believed this would stay the hanging.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area is stationary over the Southeast, and, as a result, clear skies and mild weather continues over the country east of the Plains states. A low pressure area of marked intensity is centered over the state of Washington, barometer reported 29.18, at Seattle, and covers the entire West. It is responsible for mild temperatures over the Plains states and the Northwest. There are no freezing temperatures in the country except at some of the more elevated stations in the Rocky Mountain states, and the lowest temperature reported this morning was 20 degrees at Minnedosa and Medicine Hat. Fair weather and mild temperatures will continue over this section for the next several days.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary or rising slightly. Stage at Franklin is 3.9 feet. Lock No. 7, 12.7; Pittsburgh, 13.3; Dam No. 4, 9.7; Dam No. 6, 8.3; Dam No. 9, 9.9, and Dam No. 12, 7.8. The dams are up. The rivers will rise slowly, due to melting snow and ice.

PAL OF BLONDE UP FOR TRIAL

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Joe F. Wells, alias Vernon Ackerman, arrested here with Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, both now in jail in New Castle, Pa., awaiting trial for the killing of a Pennsylvania highway patrolman, was scheduled for preliminary trial today for the slaying of Lee Wright, Chandler, Ariz., deputy sheriff. The Schroeder woman and Dague also are charged with this killing.

Wright died as the result of gunshot wounds received in a gun fight at Chandler.

Sheriff Charles Wright received a letter from federal authorities in Washington, saying Wells had been definitely identified through fingerprints as Vernon Glen Ackerman, of Guthrie, Okla., who enlisted in the Army at Fort Logan, Col., later serving in Panama. When his term of enlistment expired, the Washington authorities said, he re-enlisted and is being carried at the present time on the Army rolls as a deserter.

Wells, or Ackerman, it was said, was not the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Ackerman, of Pittsburgh, as he claimed at the time of his arrest.

SENATE TURNS ON FARM BLOC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—After raising scores of rates on agricultural products, the Senate finally revolted against the farm bloc this afternoon and rejected by a vote of 53 to 23 a proposed 400 per cent increase in the tariff on lard.

This action was provoked by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts, and Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, who protested the rate was "outrageous" and that the Senate was engaged in boosting the cost of living by increasing the price on food necessities. Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, sponsored a 4 cents a pound rate as an increase over the 3-cent rate approved by the Finance Committee and 1-cent a pound rate in existing law.

Judge, 97, Plans Hot Fight for Re-Election

ST. CHARLES, Minn., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Municipal Judge Salmon W. Gleason, 97 years old, Minnesota's oldest active judge, intends to spend his one hundredth birthday in office.

Judge Gleason, who has held his post here since 1899, yesterday filed for re-election to another four years' term. He will be opposed for office in the March 4 election by Stewart F. Clarkson.

"It will be a great fight," the veteran jurist said today as he prepared for a vigorous campaign.

CABINET JOB SPURNED BY TARDIEU

Former Premier of France Refuses Offer of Post Under Radical Socialist

PARIS, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Former Premier Tardieu late today refused to accept a post in the cabinet which Camille Chautemps, Radical Socialist leader, has been trying to form.

President Doumergue and Aristide Briand had begged Tardieu to accept.

The post Chautemps offered Tardieu was that of the ministry of the navy in succession to Georges Leygues, with the understanding that Tardieu also would be vice-president of the cabinet—a position which customarily devolves upon the holder of the minister of justice portfolio. Tardieu would have remained head of the French delegation to the London naval conference.

Chautemps also had requested Briand to stay as foreign minister and he was inclined to agree.

Chautemps' chances to form a cabinet are now considered not very bright. It is believed President Doumergue may turn to Senator Clementel, or some other radical Socialist leader.

U. S. DELEGATES IN SECRET MEET

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The American naval delegation held a secret meeting in the conference room of the Ritz Hotel this afternoon. Every attempt was made to withhold information on the meeting, even to the fact that it occurred. A press announcement at headquarters simply stated that Mr. Stimson was in his office and was understood to be clearing his desk for the week-end.

Later Secretary Stimson and Senator Reed walked to the House of Commons for a conference with Prime Minister MacDonald.

Aside from these activities the arms conference was at a standstill, having adjourned for a week due to the French cabinet crisis.

Foreign Minister Grandi is returning to Rome today. He will return here next Tuesday. Some of the other delegates will spend the next few days in the country.

Only the committee of technical experts will continue consultations during the recess.

The Japanese delegation today eagerly awaited the results of the national elections now being held in Japan. Tokio dispatches said early returns indicated the government had been returned by a small majority, but complete results will not be known until Sunday.

16th Arrested for Disorder at Mine

POWHATTAN, O., Feb. 20.—The total of arrests in the Powhattan mine strike disorders was raised to 16 this morning when William Lecovitch, 35, striker, charged with hurling a stone into the automobile of Charles Yeager, working miner, was taken into custody. Warrants are out for four more strike sympathizers. Fifteen were arrested yesterday.

Protected by a score of deputies, more men were at work this morning, at both the Powhattan and Stewart mines.

Golfer in Plane Beats Opponent on Ground

SONNING, Berkshire, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Probably the most freakish golf match ever played in England—a match in which one competitor was in an airplane and the other on terra firma, resulted in a win for the aerial competitor over 18 holes today by a score of 29 strokes to 69.

The victor was Capt. G. A. R. Pennington, commandant of the National Flying Service airdrome at Reading. He vanquished A. C. Young, a local professional whose 69 incidentally is nine under bogey.

The task for Pennington was to find the green by dropping balls as he flew over the course in his machine. The balls were swathed with white cloth to insure non-bouncing when they struck the ground. Naturally, he was not required to hole out as his opponent had to do.

In 40 minutes the airman had completed the course in 29 "strokes." On several of the greens he required only one shot. At the eighteenth his first ball fell on one of the cars of a London Railway express train. At times he hovered as low as 100 feet, the lowest he could safely attempt.

The match was for 25 sterling and was the outcome of a recent regulation match between the two men when Pennington, badly beaten, challenged his opponent to a round on today's lines in which Young predicted Pennington would not make it under 70.

Pair in Bank Wrecking Romance Face New Grill

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Indicted on six charges of embezzlement and forgery, Elmer Langguth and Miss Laverne Lindgren, president and cashier of the defunct Peoples State Bank of Maywood, today were to be grilled for further details of their alleged romance said to have been financed with $200,000 of the bank's funds.

Following presentation of the six grand jury indictments today, the couple are to be rearrested and questioned for further information regarding the love affair which, it is charged, was financed by the thousands of dollars taken from the bank through clever juggling of accounts.

Any effort to provide bond for Miss Lindgren on the security of her $35,000 house, which is said to have been built on bank money, will be resisted, the state's attorney's office announced.

Also the state wants to learn the details of a $9,500 loan by the bank to Langguth on security of his Sylvan Beach "trysting place" at White Lake, Mich.

Additional information on the love affairs of Langguth was obtained, according to Pat Roche, state's attorney's investigator, with the finding of a third apartment said to have been used as a rendezvous by Langguth and the girl who rose from stenographer to bank executive within two years under his regime.

FORMER GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS ASK PROHIBITION REPEAL

LARGE CITIES ANTI-DRY, THEY SAY

Assistant Attorney General In 1913-14 Sees Civil War if Law Is Enforced

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Anti-dry leaders, nearing the end of the presentation of their case against prohibition, produced as witnesses in rapid-fire order today a former United States Senator from Missouri, a former special assistant attorney general, a former assistant secretary of war and a Chicago lawyer and director of business corporations and all argued for repeal or modification of the dry laws.

George H. Williams, St. Louis, was the former senator, and his diet. Crowell, Cleveland, who served in the War Department during the World War period; Frederick R. Coudert, New York City, who was attached to the office of the attorney general in 1913-14, and Ralph M. Shaw, of Chicago, general counsel for half a dozen or more big business organizations.

CITIES ANTI-DRY

One after another they took their turns in the witness chair of the House Judiciary Committee, which is considering resolutions proposing outright repeal, modification or a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment.

Each told the same story—that his city was anti-prohibition.

Williams said that "nullification" of the prohibition law was a fact to be observed and not discussed in his section, St. Louis County.

"Overwhelmingly wet" was the way Crowell described Cleveland, Ohio's largest city and fifth among those in the nation.

Coudert said that the government would be overthrown at the polls or civil war would result from "real effort to enforce prohibition."

Shaw, asked why, if as he said Illinois were wet, it did not repeal its state enforcement act, replied that on a referendum on the issue the voters had lined up 5 to 1 against the dry law.

WILLIAMS IN CLASH

At one point in his testimony, Williams remarked that he was not a candidate for any office and charged that the views of many members of Congress were expressed on the prohibition question because they were candidates.

Representative Sumners, (Dem.) of Texas, straightened up in his seat and exclaimed: "That doesn't affect me."

Williams then charged that there were a lot of members of Congress who were politically dry but who personally drank.

Representative Browning, (Dem.) of Tennessee, interposed: "Then you indict the whole Congress?"

The witness replied in the negative, but added that for political reasons many members of Congress came out as drys during campaigns and neglected other questions of state.

'FINANCED CRIME'

Williams said that "for the first time in human history, through prohibition, we have financed the worst, the most desperate, the arrogant criminal class the world has probably ever known. The underworld is growing so powerful that it may in the future become more powerful than the government itself."

Coudert said if the government made a severe effort to enforce the law by ordering the Army and Navy out to see that it was enforced, "you would have to make accommodations for between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 of the 120,000,000 citizens."

A direct and honest effort to enforce the law, he said, would bring about the consequences of either placing half the population in jail for liquor violations or in a civil war.

"Millions of people will no longer be treated as law breakers," he declared, arguing that there was serious unrest over the situation."

Shaw said the dry law had impeded temperance and that "drinking to excess is expected, not criticised."

All the witnesses insisted modification was useless and absolute repeal necessary.

"It is too late for compromise," Crowell said. "The people of Cleveland want repeal of prohibition and the return of control of liquor to the people of Ohio."

CHICAGO PLANS NOTABLES PAY MORON PATROL MOORE TRIBUTE

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Monday night slaying of Mrs. Agnes Lavander and numerous previous attacks upon women in the Forest Glen district of the far northwest side prompted 100 men residents of the neighborhood today to organize a citizens' vigilance committee.

Following a meeting last night they appealed to Sheriff Traeger today for permission to bear arms and patrol the lonely neighborhood bordering the forest preserve. They declared there were not enough policemen in that district.

The forest preserve was described by one of the committee as "a favorite hiding place for morons of the worst type."

"Our women are in a state of terror," he said, "and we must do something."

Police reported no progress toward solution of the slaying of Mrs. Lavander. Chief of Detectives Egan has asked for a check on the movements of all inmates of the hospital for the insane at Dunning, two miles from the murder scene. Egan said the murder was undoubtedly done by a lunatic for there has been found no motive.

The body of Alexander P. Moore, diplomat and former Pittsburgh newspaper publisher, is expected to arrive here tomorrow night at 10 o'clock. Arrangements for the funeral, which is to be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, are virtually complete.

The services, which are to be held in the Moreland funeral parlors, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, will be attended by one of the largest delegation of notables ever at a funeral in this city. Following the services the body will be taken to Allegheny Cemetery and placed in the mausoleum beside the body of Moore's wife, the former Lillian Russell.

Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aide to President Hoover, will attend the services as the personal representative of the President. Col. Hodges was military attache at the American embassy in Madrid while Mr. Moore was ambassador there.

Two cabinet members will be among the delegation of notables to attend the services. They will be Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. The cabinet members, with Mayor Charles H. Kline, and three county commissioners, are among the honorary pallbearers already chosen.

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the entire Congressional representation of Allegheny County, members of the diplomatic corps and a delegation of New York business men will also attend.

Body of Idaho's First Senator Lies in State

POCATELLO, Idaho, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A famous son of Idaho returned home yesterday to receive final honors. The body of Fred T. DuBois, the state's first senator and prominent figure in the early days of the territory, arrived here from Washington, D. C., where he died last week, to lie in state until tomorrow morning.

Then it will be taken to Blackfoot, his former home, and after funeral services in the old DuBois homestead, it will be buried beneath a favorite apple tree, just outside the library window of the residence.

SNOOK DENIED RESPITE FOR APPEAL

Governor Sees No Reason To Delay Execution for Review by Supreme Court

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Gov. Cooper today denied Dr. James H. Snook a stay of execution from his death sentence for the slaying of Theora Hix.

Dr. Snook has been sentenced to die in the electric chair in Ohio Penitentiary February 28 after being originally sentenced to die last November 29. He received three stays of execution.

In a letter to Snook's attorneys the Governor said:

"It occurs to me that until such time as it shall permanently appear that the Supreme court of the state of Ohio has no power to stay the order fixing the date of execution or that the Supreme Court of the United States can not acquire jurisdiction over the case so as to give that court the power to stay the execution, there is no reason why the chief executive should act in the case at this time."

Snook's attorneys have notified the United States Supreme Court through filing a brief there that they wish a review of the case. The Supreme Court convenes next Monday.

APPEAL CERTIFIED

The Governor's letter was in reply to a request led with him today for a stay of one month to allow the United States Supreme Court time to act. The Appellate and Supreme Courts of Ohio have upheld Snook's conviction in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

Seba H. Miller, clerk of the Ohio Supreme Court, said he had certified records of the appeal of Dr. James H. Snook to the United States Supreme Court last night.

Pensions for Aged Up After 13 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—For the first time in 13 years a committee of Congress today held hearings on bills proposing the establishment of a federal system of old age pensions.

The House Labor Committee began the hearings.

The Connery bill provides an outright pension for needy persons over 63 years with an income of less than $8 a week. The pension would be graded from $4 to $8 a week.

The Sirovich bill calls for aid in a uniform state system with the federal contribution limited to one-third the total.

His body was recovered more than two hours after the accident. The plane was demolished and the wreckage was resting under 20 feet of water.

Mexicans Lift Ban On Nun Immigration

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Prohibitions on the entrance of Roman Catholic nuns into Mexico, existing since the early days of the Calles administration, were lifted today with orders from the department of the interior to immigration authorities to permit entry of nuns of any creed.

The permission of entry, however, is hinged upon agreement of the nuns not to violate religious laws forbidding community or convent life.

MAN BOASTS OF KILLING 8 BY POISON

Young Sailor's Confession Of Crimes Covering World Rivals Borgias' Killings

DETROIT, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—James Baker, 25, a former employe of the Guggenheim Laboratory, New York, was held here today for New York police after he was said to have confessed the killing of eight men in the last four years.

Baker's eight victims were dispatched by the methods of the Borgias—poison—and their homes were widely scattered about the world: Bombay, Hamburg, New York, Houston, the Philippines and aboard a ship en route to South America, according to the confession said to have been obtained by Detroit police.

Baker was arrested last night on a farm three miles west of Farmington, a suburb. Taken to police headquarters, Baker made his confession to John D. Watts, asstant prosecuting attorney.

The killings, Baker stated in his confession, gave him "a funny sort of mental satisfaction."

BOASTS OF CRIMES

Baker, who could tell Edgar Allan Poe a thing or two, later leaned back in a swivel chair at police headquarters and regaled Detroit detectives with the story of the eight poisonings, he said he committed.

The specific charge on which Baker is held is the poisoning of Henry S. Gaw, a night watchman at the Guggenheim laboratory in New York, December 28, 1928.

Baker told the officers he was born and received his early education at Warren, O., leaving home when 16. He got a job on a freighter and sailed for several years.

PUT POISON IN COFFEE

"I was always interested in poisons and usually carried some around with me," he said. "In 1924 I was in Houston, Tex. I happened into a sailors' restaurant and sat down beside a man. He had a cup of coffee in front of him. While he was looking away, I had a sudden impulse to put some poison in his coffee. He died almost at once. I learned afterward that his name was Honeycutt."

Baker said that after this first experience he had other unexpected impulses to poison persons, "no one in particular, but just anyone who happened to be near."

The poisoning of Gaw took place shortly after midnight December 27, 1928, Baker said. Once again the poison was put in coffee. This time, Baker said, the toxin did not have the desired effect, so he placed some more on the barrel of his revolver and shoved it down the man's throat, holding it there until he died.

At this juncture, Baker said, two truck drivers entered the laboratory and he held them up and tied them. He said he had intended to kill them, but one of them pleaded that he had a wife and children.

SENATE OFFICE RUM QUIZ SEEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—A Senate investigation to learn who buys liquor in the Senate Office Building loomed today as the result of a second arrest of an alleged bootlegger near the building.

Only Tuesday the "man in the green hat," George L. Cassidy, was arrested outside the building. Cassidy, long known as the capitol bootlegger, had been arrested several times before, once in the corridors of the House Office Building after he had hastily dropped a suitcase later found to contain liquor. Sometime later he actually served six months in jail.

The second arrest was that of William David Goldberg yesterday.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, has demanded the Judiciary Committee, now holding hearings on prohibition, undertake to learn just who are the two bootleggers customers. He suggested they might be mere employes.

"I don't know but one or two senators who drink in their offices," Brookhart said.

Princess Ileana Appears Wan In Farewell

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Princess Ileana, whose betrothal to Count von Hochberg is in the balance, appeared very pale yesterday when she accompanied Queen Marie to the railroad station where they bade farewell to Princess Helen, mother of the boy king, Michael. Princess Helen left for a short visit with her sister-in-law, Queen Marie, of Jugo-Slavia, at Belgrade.

The entire royal family was present at the depot, together with Premier Juliu Maniu and a number of government officials. King Michael threw kisses to his mother and shouted "write every day" as the train pulled out. He left the station in the charge of his English tutor.

BYRD SAILS ON VOYAGE HOME

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his Antarctic expedition is on the way back to the United States.

The New York Times and newspapers affiliated with it in publishing reports from Admiral Byrd's Expedition announced last night that the expedition's ship the City of New York, reached the Byrd camp in the Bay of Whales yesterday; camp was broken soon after and the party sailed on the City of New York about 4:30 o'clock (New York time) yesterday afternoon.

Records of the expedition are being brought back; it was announced, but airplanes and much other material used on the exploration were left behind.

Gangsters' Dispute Seen in Slaying

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Roy Moore, 28, a police character, was shot and killed on a street corner here early today by assassins who fired at him from a motor car and sped away. Police believe the slaying was the result of a gang dispute.

URGE U. S. ACT IN CHURCH WAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Efforts to bring American governmental pressure upon the Soviet campaign of closing churches and suppressing religious activities have developed both at the State Department and in Congress.

State Department officials had before them about 15 appeals for intervention of some sort in the Russian situation, while in the House, Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, introduced a resolution to declare recognition of Soviet Russia "incompatible with the traditions of the people of the United States until religious persecution in that country shall have ceased."

Although the State Department declined to make public the appeals received, it was learned that one came from the Lutheran Church of America. This group urged the issuance of a manifesto decrying religious persecution and asked declaration of a non-recognition policy such as suggested by Fish.

Although no policy has been formulated in regard to the matter it was indicated authoritatively that the State Department would not do anything at this time about the requests, on account of the absence of diplomatic relations between the two governments and also because apparently no American interests are involved directly.

BRIDGE REPAIRS CRITICIZED

Public Works Director Edward O. Lang today made public reports submitted by experts who examined repairs to Smithfield Street Bridge. The reports were made by Dr. Frank P. McKibben, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, and A. M. Candy, engineer in charge of electric welding at Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The repair job consisted of welding additional strips of steel on the outside "I" bars of two trusses to increase the strength of the structure.

Candy reported in part:

"Relative to the quality of the work itself, however, our Mr. Orr (shop superintendent) who inspected this job, is of the opinion that the quality of the welding is not such as we would require in our manufacturing operations here at East Pittsburgh and in our building work at our various plants."

McKibben reported in part:

"On the whole I believe that the new metal gave comparatively little added strength to the bridge, but as the cost of the work was less than $9,000, I am led to believe the city got its money's worth.

The welding recently completed has added a little strength. It has not done any harm whatever.

Co-Eds Lose Beauty Test To Male of Heavy Beard

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Seemingly standing back of its recent editorial assertion that all California co-eds are "ugly," the Daily Californian, student publication, announced today Patsy Bucaria, husky freshman, who is troubled with a wiry beard, had won the girl's beauty contest by a tremendous vote.

Heralded as an "honest" election by the publication, Bucaria's sweeping victory could not be openly challenged, although whisperings were heard from the feminine contingent that all was not as it should have been.

Cast in lots of 10,000, more than 6,000,000 votes were polled for Patsy, while his nearest rival, Miss Marian Motts, received a paltry million.

Harold R. Porter, of Fresno, was voted the handsomest man. Ex-football heroes and mere student body presidents were low down on the list. Roy Reigels, captain of last year's varsity football team, being thirty-first, and John Reynolds, student president, thirty-fifth.

Chief on Motorcycle Hunts and Kills Fox

Some folks like to hunt fox on horseback as they dash merrily over fields and glades. They love the music of the hound pack and the blast of the starter's trumpet.

But it's an entirely different proposition with Chief of Police C. M. Lowell, of Forest Hills.

He has started a new gag by slaying B'rer Fox from a motorcycle.

For more than a week a search for a chicken-eating fox has engaged the attention of police and residents of Forest Hills. In fact, ever since the night Agnes Petrovich, 14, of 507 Marion avenue, was awakened by a commotion in the backyard chicken coop and discovered what she thought was a dog eating the family fowl. Her father, hurriedly summoned, fired a charge with a shotgun at the animal. It was wounded in the leg, but escaped. In the moonlight he discovered it was a fox.

Yesterday Agnes was walking in a nearby field. A few feet away, munching contentedly on what remained of a nice fat hen, was B'rer Fox. The fox, frightened, ran away.

Agnes summoned Chief Lowell. He obtained a shotgun, mounted his motorcycle and went cruising over the field. But the fox had disappeared unceremoniously. Acting under the time-honored theory that a criminal always is attracted back to the scene of his crime, Lowell hid for a short while. Then the fox returned and began his interrupted meal. Drawing a bead from his motorcycle, Lowell shot the offender dead.

To the victor belong the spoils, and Chief Lowell today made arrangements to have his quarry mounted by a taxidermist.

CRITIC SCORED BY CANCER EXPERTS

Claim That Remedy Has Been Equalled by Others Held Unwarranted by Doctors

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—Doctors Walter B. Coffey and John D. Humber have issued a statement answering a criticism made by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Regarding Dr. Fishbein's reported statement that he considers the Coffey-Humber extract has been equalled by other extracts, Drs. Coffey and Humber made this reply:

"Dr. Fishbein is without the least warrant in suggesting that our extract is similar to any other extracts. First of all he does not know what our formula is. We have never given him or any one else any of our extract and no one knows what we have prepared from the suprarenal cortex.

"Also let us point out that like Dr. Fishbein we are thoroughly familiar with all the attempts that have been made to obtain potent hormones from the glands. As a matter of fact, we ourselves made and tried more than 100 glandular extracts made by other investigators also. But unfortunately all these other worthy investigators failed to obtain the active hormone that we finally got from the suprarenal cortex.

"We ourselves did not succeed in the first series of attempts. We obtained a hormone that was only partially potent and unable to accomplish what we were wanting. Our present hormone is fully potent and in course of time the scientists will discover that no other extract even remotely resembles it in hormonic reaction.

POWER BOARD'S CHIEF ACCUSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, today was ordered to prepare detailed answers to charges of maladministration against him at the end of a three-hour hearing before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Bonner appeared before the committee shortly after President Hoover had asked Chairman Cousens to push legislation to make the power commission a permanent body.

Bonner said charges against him were "absolutely baseless."

Dissension in the commission was brought into the foreground as the committee began on Monday a general investigation of the power's commission's affairs. William King and Charles Russell attacked Bonner, charging that he favored the "power interests."

Bonner said there had been an inclination to pick out for publication "isolated instances of fancied padding of accounts." He continued that there also had been a tendency to try the cases in the newspapers before the licensees had been given a hearing.

Much of the criticism directed at him, he testified, had been because he broke up the "stagnation of the accounting division" and "began to get a little action."

HOSPITAL BILLS BEFORE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Expenditure of $2,135,000 for additions to three veterans' hospitals and an appropriation of $500,000 for the construction of a fourth were proposed in bills introduced in the house.

The new hospital, with a capacity of 150 beds, was asked for Indiana by Representative Ludlow (Dem.) Indiana.

Bills for additions and their authors were: $260,000, Boise (Idaho) hospital by Representative Smith, (Rep.) Idaho. $1,550,000, Camp Custer (Mich.) hospital, by Representative Hooper, (Rep.) Mich. $325,000, Knoxville (Ia.) hospital by Representative Dowell, (Rep.) Iowa.

Another bill introduced by Representative Crail, (Rep.) Cal., would authorize appropriation of $50,000 for the fiscal year 1931 and $30,000 for each year thereafter for the care and upkeep of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Los Angeles.

LOCAL MEN GIVEN MEDALS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Fears that the world might revert to the stone age because of exhaustion of metal and mineral resources were dismissed as groundless by Frederick W. Bradley of San Francisco at the annual dinner of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Mr. Bradley, who is retiring president of the Society, said the hardworking research student could take care of the future.

His work, Mr. Bradley declared, "assures less wasteful methods of production, greater metallurgical extractions and provides substitutes in alloys that are, in many cases, more suitable, less costly and better for specialized purposes than the metals and minerals that it is feared may be exhausted."

William Hastings Bassett, of Waterbury, Conn., was formally inducted as new president last night and the following awards announced.

To John Nostrand Dorr, sanitary engineer of New York, the James Douglas Medal for achievements in non-ferrous metallurgy.

To James Aston, professor of Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, the Robert W. Hunt medal for a paper on iron and steel.

To William S. Unger, of Pittsburgh, the J. E. Johnson, Jr., medal to encourage young men in metallurgical research.

$25,000 ASKED IN DAMAGE SUIT

Loews Incorporated, operator of the Penn Theater, was named defendant in a suit for $25,000 damages filed in the Federal District Court by P. Martin Clarke and his wife, Mrs. Marie Clarke, of Pittsburgh, in which they were represented by Attorney Thomas E. Whitten. The bill of complaint avers that January 20 Mrs. Clarke had witnessed a performance in the theater and was walking up an aisle when knocked down and trampled under foot by a crowd of persons rushing for seats. Mrs. Clarke, according to the bill, sustained two fractures of an arm and other injuries. The operator of the theater is charged with negligence.

Mexican Student Held in Plot On Hoover

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Police today are investigating what they are inclined to believe was a "stupid hoax" purporting to reveal a plot to assassinate President Hoover by Mexican plotters.

This was revealed in a dispatch from San Luis Potosi to the newspaper Laprensa, saying police there had arrested one Vicente Autecorchea, a student, who had in his possession a letter from another student who is now in the United States revealing the plans of the purported plot against the American President. The letter expressed satisfaction, police said, over the recent attack on President Ortiz Rubio.

STRIKERS SAY NEWSPAPERS ARE FAIR

Sun-Telegraph Indorsed In Handling Strike News; Minister Make Statement

Allegations that the newspapers have been unfair in their handling of the taxicab strike news were refuted in so far as the Sun-Telegraph is concerned in a statement issued today by the striking drivers' committee.

ATTITUDE DEFENDED

The statement says:

Except for the publication of the photograph January 20 purporting to show the men voting at the Moose Temple the Sun-Telegraph has been fair to the striking drivers. This photograph was taken before the meeting started. The men did not vote until two hours later.

Articles in the Sun-Telegraph concerning meetings that were supposed to have been held with Mayor Charles H. Kline were not accurate. This was due to a misunderstanding by the committee that such meetings were to be held.

The statement is signed by Paul F. Toole, chairman, and C. H. Waddle, vice chairman of the committee.

The following letter, received from the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan is a statement on a Methodist ministerial committee's activities in connection with alleged partiality in the publication of strike news.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

I notice that Messrs. Laird and Houston of the taxicab companies criticize the committee appointed by the Methodist ministers' meeting last Monday. As the chairman of that committee, I desire to correct the false impression which seems to obtain.

That committee was not appointed to give publicity to the statements of Father Cox as such, but to inquire into the alleged partiality of the newspapers toward the cab companies. The charge of unfairness came not only from Father Cox, but from members of the ministerial body before that meeting was held and because of which Father Cox, well known to be an ardent agitator for the strikers, was asked to speak.

The committee had only one function, namely, to call on the newspaper authorities, tell them of the complaint and ascertain if it were groundless or not. It is therefore not in order for Mr. Laird or Mr. Houston to criticise the committee because it did not go to them for their view of the strike. It had nothing to do with them nor with the merits or demerits of companies or strikers. It was solely charged with the promotion of newspaper fairness toward the men. It has discharged this function and will report to the ministers next Monday.

CHAMPION FAIR PLAY

A word should be said in advocacy of the course pursued by the Methodist ministers. They are an open minded body of men. They desire to hear at first hand those who have positive views on both sides of every controversy. They invited Father Cox to address them knowing that he did not belong either to the companies or the strikers, but that, as a very popular Roman Catholic priest, he was the outstanding ecclesiastical champion of the strikers.

The ministers neither opposed nor endorsed his utterances. The questions raised was the only action taken and its function, as above stated, was simply to promote fair play. The ministers have no apology to make for inviting Father Cox. If the cab companies can produce an outstanding ecclesiastic of any denomination who is equally ardent for them, I am sure that body will be glad to invite him to speak. The ministers believe in fair play and in the application of Christianity to situations of this kind. They will neither be intimidated nor cajoled into acceptance of one side or the other of this controversy. Nor will they keep silence. They may become the Hungry Club of ecclesiasticism. Who knows?

GAS MAGNATE FIGHTS FOR SON

RENO, Nev., Feb. — (AP.) — Ralph Elsman, Brooklyn, N. Y., gas magnate, testified that since May, 1928, he had a constant fear that his former wife, Mrs. Beatrice Elsman, would take their young son from him and that as a result of this apprehension he had lost hundreds of thousands of dollars by being unable to attend to his business.

The gas magnate was testifying at the District Court hearing on his motion for absolute custody of the child.

The Elsmans were divorced here several years ago and Elsman later married again. The present Mrs. Elsman recently brought the five-year-old child, Ralph, Jr., to Reno from San Jose, Cal., after the first wife of the gas magnate had started an action in California to gain possession of her son.

2 MEN HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

A. H. Donatelli, 28, of 428 Edmond street, was to be given a hearing today before Justice-of-the-Peace Anthony Ferraro, of Sharpsburg, in connection with an alleged attempt to attack Miss Anna Lucas, 23, of Detroit, a magazine subscription solicitor.

Donatelli was arrested by Police Lieut. Samuel Fair, of Sharpsburg. Louis Mariant, 23, of 720 Edmond street, a truck driver was held in connection with the affair. The Lucas girl, who had been staying at the Ritz apartment hotel, Center avenue, since her arrival here, was held in the county jail last night as a material witness.

The alleged attempted attack took place, police said, along a lonely road in Ohio Township.

Wives Join Army Men in Jungle Of Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Two American women have turned their backs on the pleasures of civilization to take up life in the Nicaraguan jungle where their husbands, lieutenants in the United States Army Engineers' Battalion, are surveying the route for another canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mrs. C. F. Robinson and Mrs. E. G. Plank are en route to Nicaragua and their husbands are building for them thatch houses on a hill above the San Juan River, near Camp Hoover at Machado, Nicaragua.

Entry into the wilds, however, will not involve the two women in the struggles and miseries which formerly surrounded pioneer women. Radio, electric lights, running water and adequate sanitation are some of the conveniences which the Army Engineers have taken into the jungle.

SUSPECT HELD FOR ROBBERY

A half-hour after his capture for holding up the Blossom Lunchroom, East Railroad avenue, Verona, John Kowalsky, of Cleveland, O., formerly of Verona, was held for court on a robbery charge by Justice of the Peace W. R. Zesky.

Kowalsky, police say, was identified by a witness as the man who had held up Mike Apostolos, the proprietor, at the point of a revolver earlier in the week.

County Detective Samuel Whisner, Police Chief W. P. Kipp, Patrolman William A. Bright and Constable Fred Lewis arrested Kowalsky at 10 p. m. Two blankets, alleged to have been stolen from a Verona automobilist, and a revolver were found in his possession, arresting officers said.

The Seat nobody would sit in

ACTUALLY, his case was so bad that even when the car was crowded, the seat beside his was vacant. People simply wouldn't sit next to him. And he wondered why he didn't get anywhere, socially or in business.

Do you Offend? Probably

The only one who doesn't realize that he or she has halitosis (unpleasant breath) is the victim. Social ostracism follows. Don't fool yourself that you are always free of halitosis. That is folly. Surveys show 1 person out of 3 is a victim—due to the fact that the mouth is the constant scene of germ activities, some of which result in bad breath.

Don't take a chance

Keep yourself ever free of halitosis by the systematic and frequent use of full strength Listerine as a mouth wash.

Though safe and pleasant, full strength Listerine is an active germicide* which immediately attacks the cause of odors, and then, being a powerful deodorant, destroys the odors themselves.

Keep Listerine handy and use it before any engagement, that you may appear at your best. Our free Book of Etiquette may interest you. Address Dept. H-9, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

*Within 15 seconds Listerine kills a total of 200,000,000 of the virulent Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs.

COUNTY PUSHES 2 FRAUD CASES

Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillips today was expected to prepare informations against members of two Pittsburgh election boards, charging them with election frauds in the primaries of last September. The informations were to be taken before an alderman, to be sworn to by Chief George W. Murren, of the County Detective Bureau.

The informations were to be prepared at the orders of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who yesterday received the report of County Detective David Drexler, assigned to check over the ballot boxes of the district.

Drexler completed his investigation yesterday of the 18 districts in which Ward Bonsall, chairman of the special recount board, charged that fraud existed. Gardner said only two boards would be prosecuted at present, and reports on the other 16 boards are being held until later.

Daughter Smartly Frocked

Pattern 1845

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

For the very small tot, or her older sister, this model is extremely chic. The pointed bodice effect, repeated in the joining of the skirt, and the front box-pleats of the skirt, are new and interesting features of the spring mode. Short, kimona sleeves are so popular with young and old alike.

This frock is particularly lovely fashioned of pique, wash silk or lightweight wool, preferably kasha jersey or challis. It may be bound in braid of contrasting color or in the self material. Two attractive buttons trim the bodice points.

Designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our NEW SPRING BOOK of PATTERN STYLES is now ready. Price FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Serious Now:

A sore spot no larger than a quarter can spread to the whole throat overnight. Gargle the very moment you feel the least soreness. Physicians recommend Bayer Aspirin for this purpose. It allays all inflammation immediately. It reduces the infection. Just crush two tablets in four tablespoons of water, and gargle well. It's a wise plan to take Bayer Aspirin after exposure to bad weather or whenever a cold threatens. GETS 4 MONTHS IN RUM SALE

David J. Wright, Heidelberg councilman and hotel keeper, today was sentenced to spend the next four months in jail, following his arraignment before Federal Judge Nelson MacVicker on charges of sale, possession and manufacture of liquor.

Wright was found guilty February 10 of possession of 650 gallons of red whisky, two 20-gallon barrels of whisky, 850 bottles of home brew and two 500 and 35-gallon stills, allegedly confiscated on his premises in a federal raid February of last year.

When the defendant appeared for sentence several character witnesses interceded and stated he was a wounded World War veteran and was in ill health. He was elected to the Heidelberg council last November by a large vote.

Steve Zietler, also of Heidelberg, tried as a co-defendant, was recently sentenced to serve two months in jail.

FRANK & SEDER ANNEX

A Further Expansion To Keep Pace With the Increasing Demands of Our Growing Business

The New Annex—only 60 feet from the Main Frank & Seder Store

FOR years it has been generally known that FRANK & SEDER has been doing the largest business PER SQUARE FOOT OF SELLING SPACE of any store in Pittsburgh. In fact it has been a serious problem to find the necessary space to display the merchandise to meet the requirements of our patrons. This problem has become more acute since the trend toward specialization. Every make-shift has been resorted to in order to find room for our ever increasing stocks. In October we made the first step in the direction of enlarging our store space by taking over the upper floors of the adjoining Theatre Building. This offered us the opportunity to open one of the most complete Furniture Departments in the city, to enlarge our Rug and Drapery departments, and to increase the facilities of our popular-priced dress department. Now comes the second step in our plan of a Greater Frank & Seder store, in

AGENT ARRIVES TO ORGANIZE CRUSADERS

Fight on Prohibition Evils to Be Extended to Every City Precinct.

In preparation for a vigorous fight against evils resulting from prohibition, the Crusaders plan to organize every precinct, Berkley A. Thomas, founder of the body, announced today. Thomas, a Cleveland man is in Pittsburgh to help in the formation of a Pittsburgh branch.

"What we are selling and to get," he said, "is votes—millions of votes, votes in every election district in the country. We are going to lick this orgy of lawlessness, crime and corruption."

SILENT ON FUTURE

"After you get the votes what will you do with them?" Thomas was asked. "Will you put your own candidates in the field, or will you indorse candidates of the established parties who support your views?"

"We are not ready to say."

"Do you seek modification of the Volstead act or repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment?"

"At this time we do not care to make a definite statement. We are co-operating with the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment but are not affiliated with it. We cannot be regarded as 'wets' or 'drys.' Our organization is founded on the belief that there is neutral ground of workable intelligence in which neither the old saloon days need be returned nor the present conditions of prohibition corruption and lawlessness endured."

WILL ELECT OFFICERS

Thomas said that Norman Allderdice, who has been designated as executive commander of the Pittsburgh branch of the Crusaders, would choose his lieutenants at a meeting in the organization's permanent headquarters in the William Penn Hotel Friday. Later a meeting will be held to which the public will be invited.

Thomas named as among the Crusaders' national officers Fred C. Clark, L. C. Hanna Jr., Dan R. Hanna, Jr., and John N. Garfield, of Cleveland; Charles H. Sabin, Jr., of New York; Lamont duPont, III, of Wilmington, Del., and J. Russell Forgan, of Chicago.

COAST GUARDS IN ICE; SAFE

LELAND, Mich., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Nine Coast Guardsmen who had been ice bound on Lake Michigan reached shore here shortly after midnight, walking the last hundred yards. Their two boats were left in the ice.

The men, who were from the stations on North Manitou and South Manitou Islands, had caused fears for their safety by sending up flares while in the ice filled lake. They explained that they had not intended the flares as distress signals, but for the double purpose of showing their own progress and sending a signal to a mail boat which they believed to be trapped or disabled on the lake.

The mail boat, however, had put back to North Manitou, missing the Coast Guardsmen, who started their search in two gasoline launches at 11 a. m. yesterday. The boats were in charge of Captain Fisher and John Gasch.

The mail carrier, it developed later, had put back to North Manitou, but there was no way to relay this message to the men in the boats. The Coast Guard boats were carried along by drifting ice and finally turned toward Leland, the slow movement being indicated by the flares.

FEE IN WATER FIGHT TRACED

Who was the recipient of a $2,375 check "for extra legal talent" in the Sharpsburg-Pittsburgh water litigation settlement some time ago, Councilman John Lennon asked at a meeting of that body last night.

President Edward S. Michalowski said the voucher was made to Borough Solicitor Edward Kraus, Jr., Lennon asserted Kraus was not legally permitted to receive it.

The borough paid Pittsburgh $32,000 for 12 years of water service, which the city claimed was worth $201,000. Sharpsburg retained Pittsburgh law firm at $1,000 to assist the solicitor in the litigation. The sum had not been paid and Lennon pointed out payment should be withheld as no appropriation had been made.

President Michalowski asked that the name of the sanitation and garbage committee, Councilman Fred Pontello chairman, be changed to that of sanitation and health as the former was odorous. Other members agreed.

ANTI-AMERICAN PUPILS STRIKE

MANILA, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—With but 16 of the 2,770 enrolled students attending classes, students of the Manila North High School continued their strike today, demanding the dismissal of Miss Mabel Brummitt, an American teacher, formerly of Valparaiso, Ind.

The students, influenced by the recent attacks upon Filipinos in California and alleged Communistic agitation, charged the teacher had insulted the Filipino race and "time and again branded Filipinos as savages, imbeciles, idiots and contemptible cads."

School authorities were still studying the case and had not decided upon a course of action. Police and government agents were investigating the origin of red posters found near the school.

A boycott of American cigarets has begun in Manila.

FERGUSON AIMS AT COMEBACK

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—James E. Ferguson, impeached and removed as Governor of Texas in 1917, will try a comeback. He has announced his candidacy for Governor subject to the Democratic primary in July.

Since his impeachment, Ferguson has been a candidate for United States Senator and ran for President on the American party ticket, a party of his own. Later he returned to the Democratic party.

Ferguson's wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, became the first woman Governor of Texas in 1924, becoming a candidate after Ferguson's name was refused a place on the ballot because of his impeachment. Mrs. Ferguson was defeated for re-election by Gov. Dan Moody.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Get poisons out of system . . . .

47 Years' Practice Taught Dr. Caldwell

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people. He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1885 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripes. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by druggists. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any druggist in the world.

You may be a chronic long time sufferer, you may have tried many things without relief, but do not give up hope before you know what Aurine can do for you. Dr. Edward Kolar, M. D. said, "Aurine helped cases I had given up as hopeless. A truly remarkable scientific remedy."

John Meredith of Canada says, "I have suffered from catarrh a lot over 12 years. At times I would be stone deaf. I have only used half of your bottle of Aurine and I find it a great relief. At the head noises have gone and I can hear people talking near. I heard the choir in our church and the organ play for the first time in 2 years. I also heard the minister read the Scripture."

Stop paying high prices for earphones, stop buying expensive treatment and enjoy the glorious relief that more than a half million others have found in Aurine. A few drops in each ear and relief comes instantly. Mr. R. P. Maxwell, a well known Deputy Sheriff says, "Just started using my second bottle and am glad to state that I can now hear my watch tick. WJAS—Detective Mystery.

Slaying of Patrolman.

A front page mystery story of nation-wide prominence, the identification and capture of the murderers of Patrolman James Masterson of the New York City Police department, will be dramatized.

The broadcast will provide a faithful dramatization of the story by Detective Thomas Martin, one of the men who was assigned to the case from the beginning. It also covers a trail which leads from Forest Hills, N. Y., to a snow-bound bungalow in the Adirondack Mountains, a trail on which the first clue was provided by a stained handkerchief. Each step in the man hunt is represented exactly as Detective Martin reported it.

MINE RESCUERS FAIL IN ALTA.

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The story of a slow, agonizing death in a lonely tomb far down under the earth's surface was unfolded to rescue workers who had hoped to find Frank Cheesek still alive in the caved-in Greenhill coal mine at Blairmore, Alta.

Cheesek and a fellow-miner, Frank Bombardier, were trapped in the mine Monday when tons of rock and shale fell and cut off their exit. Bombardier, uninjured, set to work to try to dig himself out, and 24 hours later a rescue crew found him, exhausted from fatigue and hunger, but still alive.

The rescue crew, working in shifts, attacked the huge pile of debris anew with their picks and shovels, all night they dug relentlessly.

They found Cheesek yesterday. He had been caught in the collapse. Unable to extricate himself, he apparently had died of his injuries in the darkness.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which, soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

"CONDEMNING SHADOWS"

[Shakespeare, 1564-1616]

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—you men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"It's Toasted." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Cleveland Doctor Recommends Flaxolyn in Remarkable Public Statement

"But since I have taken Dr. Luntz's pleasant Flaxolyn, I feel so entirely different that there is no comparison between my health today and what it was just a little while ago.

"There used to be times when I felt so knocked out that I could hardly do any work. But now I am always full of pep. I sleep fine, eat everything without any trouble—and if you know anybody who is like I was, you will be doing them a great big favor to urge them to try Flaxolyn. I will be glad to tell anybody personally, or in a letter, just how wonderful Flaxolyn really is."

Richard Dixon, 32, and Della Dixon, 32, of 1400 Orangewood avenue, were arrested when agents raided their home. A 100-gallon still, 65 gallons of whisky and a quantity of mash were confiscated, the agents' report states.

Less than a pint of whisky was confiscated, agents say, in a raid on a club on the second floor of 1211 Penn avenue. Joseph McBride, 35, was arrested, the report stated.

Lawrenceville Boy's Trip Interrupted

An overland trip to Niagara Falls by a 12-year-old Lawrenceville boy was halted when Councilman M. J. Dempster, of Wilmerding, interrupted a bonfire gathering along railroad tracks at Wilmerding early today. Dempster, who is chairman of the councilmanic police committee, took the boy to the police station and notified Pittsburgh authorities. Two companions escaped in the general direction of the East McKeesport hills, the solon said. Because of his youth, the Sun-Telegraph will not publish the boy's name.

Goat Eats Trees, Two Neighbors In Law Suit

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 20.—Victor Piccolimi, of Waltersburg, once had a goat, and Albert Black, a neighbor, owned $75 worth of young fruit trees. But now Piccolimi doesn't have his goat and neither does Black have any fruit trees.

Both men have been summoned for a hearing tomorrow night, as Piccolimi is seeking redress for the goat which Black shot. In addition to eating the bark of the trees to such an extent that they were destroyed, Black says the goat ate a suit of his clothes and a pair of shoes.

Van Kirk, who in a petition seeks the removal of Harry F. Davis, M. J. Thompson and P. H. Sandmeyer as members of the board.

In the removal action, Da's and Sandmeyer are alleged to have executed a voucher for $305 for a band and $135 to the park without proper authority of the school board, and Davis and Thompson are alleged to have violated the school code in selling supplies to the school district and receiving compensation therefor.

"Healthy babies get life's best breaks," say experts

THE first few years of the child's life—these are the important formative years when his physique (as well as his habits) gets "set." These are the years when you want to protect his health in every way. Have a doctor look after him regularly.

And in between times, no matter how healthy he appears, be prepared for little emergencies. "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly will be a big help. It is the approved first aid for chafed skin, sunburn, minor cuts, scalds, burns and bruises.

Use it in baby's regular bath routine, too. After you dry him apply a little to prevent chapping. His nostrils should be gently cleaned with sterile cotton swabs dipped in "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly.

A separate supply of "Vaseline" Jelly should be kept for the baby, ready for instant application. Sold everywhere in tubes and bottles. And remember when you buy that the trademark Vaseline on the label is your assurance that you are getting the genuine product of the Chesebrough Manufacturing Co., Cons'd, 17 State Street, New York.

FEW PETITIONS FOR OFFICES FILED

State Political Situation Seen as Cause of Laxity Of Candidates in Primary

Chaos in the state political situation probably caused the apathy of candidates in obtaining petitions to have their names entered in the spring primary election.

Petitions for senator in the Fortieth district were taken out by the incumbent, Herman P. Brandt, and by Park H. Martin and Francis McCulloch.

Others to take out petitions late yesterday were:

Second district—Richard F. Rowley, Joseph Dowling and Martin J. Mullen.

Third district—John A. Ryan and John M. Tracey.

Fourth district—Edward B. Goehring.

Sixth district—Robert J. McGrath, John Heniz and Frank Orzechowsky.

Tenth district—John R. Dierst, Jr., Ezra B. Nowell and John France.

Twelfth district—Matthew Dunn, J. E. Pastorious, Patrick Coyne, W. H. Prosser and M. A. Musmanno.

Two More Victories

BY TANLAC OVER "RHEUMATISM" AND STOMACH AILMENTS

Only Medicine That Does What It Claims
says Nicholas J. Jansen

You folks who have tried medicine after medicine without benefit, take heart. Read this letter of Mr. N. J. Jansen and then let your conscience be your guide.

"Before starting Tanlac," said Mr. Jansen, "I was very rundown and suffered terrible agony from pains in every bone in my body. My back hurt until I felt it was pulling in two. My appetite was very poor and gas would form on my stomach and I would bloat until I thought I would burst. I couldn't sleep and didn't care whether I worked or not. I tried medicine after medicine and none gave me relief until I started taking Tanlac and this is the only medicine that does what it claims. Now I feel fine in every way. Pains no longer trouble me, my appetite is good, I sleep good and get up in the morning feeling like a new person."

Neuritis and Stomach Gas Ended For This Lady

You may think because you have been suffering so long and terribly that nothing will help you now. But you cannot read this letter of Mrs. Margaret Wallace without believing that there is hope for you, too, in Tanlac. "All the good things I could say about Tanlac would not express my true sentiments. For 15 years I suffered stomach troubles worse than anybody it seems to me. Gases filled and smothered me causing a pain around the heart and the pain would extend to my back and shoulders and then turn into neuritis. I suffered awfully. Whatever I ate resulted in heartburn. Tanlac is the only medicine that could cope with such severe troubles as mine. It relieved me fully, my stomach is in best condition in 15 years, no longer causing acid, gases and heartburn."

CHICKIE BY ELENORE MEHERIN

ASK EVANS PROOF IN GARBAGE CASE

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

W. E. CLYDE TODD, who has been the curator of birds at Carnegie Museum for 30 years, is anticipating with relish a stroll which should establish him as Pittsburgh's walking champion. In a few days Mr. Todd leaves for Port Harrison on Hudson Bay. His dog teams will be able to carry only 300 pounds—his equipment—for the first 300 miles, because of the condition of the ice. Mr. Todd will walk those miles through a biting cold. Our admiration, but not our envy, goes out to Mr. Todd, who, in his early fifties, is as active as ever he was.

Mr. Todd has enjoyed experience enough for a dozen men, but he shuns the spotlight which would set him apart from the masses. He is genuinely modest. In fact, he will probably be a bit upset that we have written two insufficient paragraphs about him.

Frances Prendergast, 6, of Homewood, is old enough to go to school—and church, too—but her cousin, Betty Prendergast, 4, of Regent square, has been deemed too young for those advantages. They were discussing things the other day.

"God," announced the elder Frances, with finality, "is everywhere."

"No, he isn't; He's only in church," Betty argued.

"I say He's everywhere."

"And I say He's only in church."

"Well, what do you know about it?" Frances raised her eyebrows. "You only go to dancing school."

THEY were both young Pittsburgh artists and their honor was involved. Sabres for two and coffee for one was the choice of the insulted, a stickler for the "code duello."

Seconds met, bowed stiffly from the waist and arranged the conditions. The principals met in a studio, back to back, sabre (buttoned) in hand. It was all very serious.

The chief second read the conditions. "It is my solemn duty," he added, "to attempt to reconcile you gentlemen. Can this difference be adjusted and this meeting dropped? . . . . .No? Then! On guard!"

Three touches were scored by the challenged party and honor was satisfied. For history's sake, an illuminated copy of the charges and conditions was given each principal. This happened in 1930.

Sir: Once upon a time there were two colored fellows named Ham and Bones and Ham owed Bones $200 and Bones got tired of waiting for the money and he said to Ham, "Ef ya all don' soon pay me I'se gonna teah up this heah note fo' $200," and Ham replied: "Bones, ya teahs up de note and Ah sues you."

Regretfully,
ELIM WHEEL.

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Feb. 20.—

SEE where the disarmament conference adjourned for a week. That's the second time they have adjourned. The first adjournment was for five weeks. Now this one for only one, the old Democrat come through. Joe Robinson informed 'em that "we wasn't over there to guarantee anybody's safety. That we was over to try and save everybody some taxes. But if they saw fit to go out and match a war, with somebody to not count on us as being a member of the cast. Just a bleacher seat would do us the next time."

Mr. Hoover is making an awful big mistake. He feeds the regular Republican leaders for breakfast. The ones he wants to feed is the Democrats. And the sons of the wild jackasses.

Yours,

TALKS TO PITT STUDENTS

PROF. COLSTON E. WARNE — NORMAN THOMAS

Prof. Warne, economics teacher at Pitt, and Mr. Thomas, Socialist, former candidate for mayor of New York, and president of the nation, at Pitt, where Mr. Thomas addressed students.

THOMAS SEES NEW COALITION

Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist party, heralded a reawakening of the United States to the significance of political parties and predicted that an alliance may be forthcoming between the Socialists and Progressives of the future to become a whip party and a power.

Later, speaking at the dinner of the Pittsburgh group of the League for Independent Political Action, in the Y. M. & Y. M. H. A., Bellefield avenue, he commented as well on the "Liberal Party" whose formation Samuel Harden Church recently suggested in a New York address.

"Just as there is no excuse for a prohibition party, so there is none for an anti-prohibition party. There has to be a reawakening, but if the history of American politics is to be a guide, it will have to be one based on economic values," he said.

ISSUES CHANGED

"Hamilton and Jefferson had real economic differences. The Democrats today still talk in terms of Jeffersonism, forgetting that they are not living in his age, but in a machine age.

"Today, the issues differ in their philosophical aspect. Men today must change their approach, and begin thinking in terms of the machine age and its problems.

Thomas previously mentioned Pennsylvania, expressing his pleasure that Joseph Grundy and pleasure that Joseph R. Grundy and David A. Reed were in the Senate, since "it brings the representatives of textiles on the one hand and steel on the other" into the open.

"I am more pleased, however," he said, "that James H. Maurer of Reading is to be candidate for governor, and that Reading has gone Socialist, and that our party has a good chance of sending Mrs. Berger into Congress in the place vacated by the late Victor Berger, of Milwaukee."

Dr. Colston E. Warne, economics professor at the University of Pittsburgh, presided.

GLOW IN SKY NOT COMET

Dr. Heber D. Curtis's surmise that the peculiar glow in the sky Monday night was a "blast furnace comet" was confirmed by a letter from John S. Richardson, of Wheeling.

Richardson wrote Dr. Curtis, who is director of the Allegheny Observatory, that as he was driving to Wheeling from Pittsburgh that night he saw what "appeared to be a vertical column of fire surrounded by a more indistinct glow."

"As I came out on the Ohio river bridge at Steubenville," Richardson says, "I discovered that it was caused by a blast furnace from one of the Wheeling Corporation plants at Mingo Junction."

Fairhaven Bus Line Permit Opposed

W. A. Kimble, of Mt. Lebanon, has made application to the Public Service Commission for a certificate to operate a passenger business service from downtown Pittsburgh to old Fairhaven, now a part of the city.

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company which operates a line over the route has entered formal protest against granting a permit. Kimble, who is an employe of the Carnegie Steel Company, said that he would operate two buses, giving the territory a 30-minute service. The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company says the service it is giving is ample.

Burglars Ransack Downtown Store

Cigarets, cigars and candies valued at $600 were stolen by thieves who forced the front door of the establishment of H. Meyers, wholesalers, of 245 Third avenue. After ransacking the place the thieves escaped through a rear door.

Moose Will Hold Charity Ball, Bazar

The Moose charity ball and bazar will be held this evening at Moose Temple, Penn avenue, under auspices of Pittsburgh Lodge No. 46, and the women of Mooseheart Legion Chapter No. 1. Proceeds from this affair will be used at the Moose home for dependent children, Mooseheart, Ill. The home was founded by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

Gas Company Here Tests Storage Under Ground

The Carnegie Natural Gas Company has been experimenting, with encouraging results, President Samuel W. Meals disclosed today, in storing gas under ground in old wells.

No difficulty has been experienced with natural gas, he said, but manufactured gas presents a problem, because it contains tar and other impurities that tend to seal the pores in the sands of the wells. This makes it hard to draw the gas out again. Accordingly it has to be cleaned before being forced into the wells.

Mr. Meals said that under the best of conditions storage of gas in tanks is hazardous. He mentioned the Equitable Gas Company's explosion in the autumn of 1927 as an example of what might happen.

Storage under ground is free from hazard, he said, and will supersede tank storage.

Chickie Sees Barry's Car Parked at Her House

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. Arthur Sontag, a classmate, takes her to a dance and she confides to her friend, Mary Blake, that the avenues of romance are opening to her. Mary and Chickie blandly discuss love and marriage. Chickie thinks it will be all kisses and "walking on the mountain tops with her lover by her side." She forgets Arthur in the excitement of getting a position in an office. One of her co-workers there is Janina Knowles. Through Janina she meets Jake Munson, a rich and attractive bachelor. Mary suddenly marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Jimmy Blake, Mary's brother, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie is attracted to a handsome young man who smiles at her from the window of another office. Chickie goes to a party given by Munson, against her father's protest. Janina introduces Barry Dunne, the young man Chickie had seen at the window. Chickie is thrilled, then horrified and alarmed when Janina tells her it's an all-night party. Barry takes her home. Her father lays down the law and says no men shall take her out unless he meets them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIV.

NOT quite so jubilant!—not quite so thrilled with her own youth and prettiness, Chickie walked down the block. She gulped once or twice. She didn't have to take orders from Jonathan. He didn't own her. She'd tell him that!

Oh, yes. And have him give her a hurt, tragic look, as though she were stepping on his throat—

They took advantage of her love—Jonathan and her mother did. She knew it. She could no more stand up and say to them: "I earn my own way. I'll do as I please," than she could strike them. She would suffer any subterfuge, any evasion, rather than deal them a blow like this.

Just the same, she was determined rigidly on one thing—she would not turn her back on all the new pleasures that were now opening to her. Oh, she had wanted them far too long!

Sunday after Sunday when she had loafed around the house, or visited Mary or gone to a movie with Jimmy how she had longed to be racing down the country in an automobile speeding off on a joyous picnic to some beautiful woodside. Often when she saw the machines—thousands of them returning in the evening from country villages she had stood still with eagerness. She had thought with glistening expectance: "Some day! My turn! Soon!"

Mrs. Blake
Pictures Martha and Children Overrunning House

Now it was come . . . the bright new life. She ran to meet it, ardently waiting for it to sweep upon her like a tide, strong and beautiful, alive with its own music. Oh—she was young. She had a right to this.

Half way up the garden walk she plucked a pink rose, ran her trembling fingers over the soft leaves. What was Jonathan going to say? Would he insult her? Would he lay down some ridiculous laws?

She wondered what Martha Blake would say to this. Chickie had a picture in her mind of the Blake mother. It was of a tall, ample-busted woman—an elemental figure, carrying a baby on her hip—always a baby. Cooking the dinner, standing at the door to buy vegetables from a peddler, the "immortal infant," as Mary called it, was always in evidence.

There were Martha's grandchildren. They overran her house from the time her own youngest, Tommy, was in her arms. Martha was a perennial mother, a great, faithful tree, taking no laurels to herself, but doing her part with wise, serene tolerance.

With her deep mind and her mellow heart she might have flashed her name brilliantly before the world. But she had loved and married. Seven children had come to her. They were her compensations.

Pleasant Person
Never Required Children To Think Her Perfect

Sometimes, indeed, seeing them dissatisfied, her mind nagged her with disturbing questions.

After all, had she the right to bring all these children here? Suppose they should be unhappy? Suppose they should scorn the gift of life thrust upon them so audaciously? They often reminded her that they had not asked to come; they told her very coolly that her wish for children was a purely selfish instinct. It did not merit gratitude from them.

Martha agreed. She found no answers for her problems. She met them with a brave adventurous trust in the future.

Chickie loved Martha Blake. She was such an easy, pleasant person; one that you could accost carelessly like this: "Well, what about it now—did you honestly never kiss a man in your life except your husband?"

Martha had never built up about herself the "mother legend." She had never required that her children think her perfect, so there was not this unnatural chasm between her omnipotence and their humanity. She cheerfully admitted herself in the wrong, begged their pardon, accepted their censure. In return they loved her without bounds, sought her opinions, quoted her as a prophet.

Her Problem
Asks Question That Has Been Puzzling Her

She was in the kitchen making huge platters of sandwiches. These would be set on the dining room table for the Sunday influx of family and friends.

The Camera Question Box

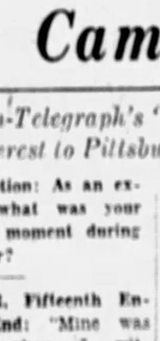
The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: As an ex-service man what was your most thrilling moment during the World War?

FRED CODER, Fifteenth Engineers, East End: "Mine was when I witnessed my first air battle above the line on the Western Front. There were eight planes in the dog fight, five German and three French. As they battled the anti-aircraft guns slammed away. We all stood spellbound. In the end two of the enemy planes were shot down and the others forced back to their hangars. It was thrilling to watch as the planes dipped and re-formed."

Fred Coder

J. A. HOBSON, One Hundred Seventh Field Artillery, North Side: "Mine came just after our outfit had crossed the Fismes River under heavy shelling. Machine gun bullets puttered all around us and the shells exploded in close vicinity. Many of our men were falling. We lost a lot of men and what made me feel so nervous was that I didn't know whether or not I was going to be the next victim. I felt relieved when it was all over."

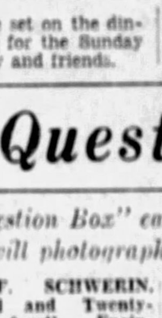


J. A. Hobson

WILLIAM F. SCHWERIN, Three Hundred and Twenty-fourth Engineers, North Side: "I was in London when my most thrilling experience occurred. I had many more on the lines but this was my worst. As twilight fell the sirens began screeching. It was the signal that the Zeps were over us. At that time they were far from my thoughts, but when the first bomb fell I ducked to cover. In a few moments the streets were deserted and all pedestrians had taken to cover. I think several people were killed, but I'm not sure."

W. F. Schwerin

RICHARD J. WALSH, One Hundred Eleventh Medical Detachment, Duquesne Heights: "We had just captured Fismes and had been under heavy fire for hours. I was walking through the town and as I turned a corner a German soldier, fully armed and with his gun and bayonet pointing at me, met my gaze. He stood motionless. I was so close that the bayonet point touched me. The German was leaning against a building. Well, I didn't have time to draw my side arm and figured it was the end. Awaiting the shot I expected, I noticed a bullet hole through his head. He was dead. I later found out he had been sniped off and paralysis developed. This kept him from falling over."



R. J. Walsh

DAVID G. PROBERT, Twentieth Engineers, Northside: "While I have had some thrilling experiences under fire on the lines I think the biggest was when I read the bulletin that we were to go to the front within a few hours. Our outfit had been in France only a few days and we didn't have much equipment. This was in 1917 after the big British-German drive. I hadn't received my baptism of fire and this notice sure was a shock to all of us. We came through all right and I'm still alive. Just before that we had been 25 days on the ocean and this probably aggravated our nervous condition. We had crossed in an old fruit steamer."

D. G. Probert

HENRY D. JOHNSTON, JR., Seventy-second C. A. C., Squirrel Hill: "Mine came during my first night on French soil. We hadn't yet reached the lines. If I remember correctly it was on June 7, 1918. We were on a train from Le Havre. Suddenly Zeppelins swooped down over our train and let go a lot of bombs. They seemed to burst everywhere. The train was stopped and we were all ordered to the ground. While all this was going on the 'ash cans' kept falling and the anti-aircraft guns barked. It was quite a sudden baptism of fire. The best part, however, was that we lost but two men."

BRIBE HINTS AIRED BY GARDNER

Charges of Deal Between Discharged City Employe And Waste Worker Made

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today called upon Former City Controller Henry Oliver Evans to appear at the court house at his earliest convenience and bring all the proofs in his possession against a discharged employe whom Mr. Evans had stated should be convicted of bribery in connection with contracts of the city with the Pittsburgh Reduction Company.

About the time Mr. Evans resigned the controllership last fall, he gave out statements that the discharged employe and an employe of the garbage company had conspired in the matter of adjusting the monthly payments due the company from the city. Mr. Evans went to the district attorney with part of his evidence, including an alleged confession and photostats of certain vouchers. District Attorney Gardner, just then in the midst of the second graft probe, said he would go into the evidence as soon as time permitted. Shortly afterwards he injured his leg and was absent from his office nearly a month. He said a cursory examination failed to satisfy him that Mr. Evans had sufficient evidence upon which to convict. Now he is going thoroughly into the matter before making a final decision.

CHARGES WIFE TOOK SAVINGS

A bill in equity was filed by John A. Weinfurter, of Springdale, in Common Pleas Court, against his estranged wife, Salome Weinfurter, seeking an accounting of savings during 10 years of married life and to prevent withdrawals from bank and building and loan accounts.

He averred that he turned over his earnings regularly to his wife to deposit the savings above the expenses of the family, which included two children. She deserted him without cause October 1, taking all bank books and other evidences of deposits, aggregating about $3,600, according to the bill.

Weinfurter alleged his wife withdrew the bank deposits amounting to about $1,000, and held in their joint names, and deposited it in her name in the Logan Trust Company, and threatens to withdraw about $2,600 in her name in the Springdale Building and Loan Association.

SCORE DEMAND GAS STATION CHANGE WALL

Some Residents to Continue Fight in City Land Case Despite Offer of Stairs

After a score or more residents of the neighborhood appeared to protest against the construction of a gasoline station on Brosius way, Council ordered Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang to submit plans for steps up the hillside to replace those torn away.

The general plan of the steps was outlined to the protestants by Lang and members of Council, who suggested that they be four or five feet wide, constructed in the open, well-lighted and designed to safeguard the lives of children who use them.

DEMAND WALL GO

Councilman Charles Anderson, declaring that in the past he had always opposed such propositions, said he would not vote on the suggestion that Lang prepare plans for the steps.

"My people are concerned," he explained.

The wife of Edward M. Kenna, owner of the gasoline station, is a sister of Councilman Anderson.

While several of the residents indicated that they would present no further opposition if the wall of the station is changed to provide adequate steps, others insisted that Kenna be forced to tear down that section of the wall which is in Brosius way. Among these were Mrs. Mary Barnes and J. A. Orr.

ADMIT PERMIT LACK

Both Lang and President of Council John S. Herron, questioned by those appearing, declared that Kenna had secured no permit to build the wall across the alley. Both insisted, however, that the steep grade of the alley would prevent its improvement at any time.

Samuel J. Reno, Republican chairman of the Nineteenth ward, appeared with the protestants. He declared that the steps are badly needed. Director Lang said an inspection had led him to the same conclusion. The plans prepared by the latter are to be submitted to residents of the district for approval.

At the close of the hearing Mrs. Barned again demanded to know why Kenna should be allowed to erect a wall across the alley.

SPROUL WAIVES CHECK HEARING

The Rev. John W. Sproul, evangelist, yesterday appeared in the court of Justice of the Peace Richard W. McCarthy, in Millvale, and waived a hearing on charges of having passed a worthless check on F. J. Vogal, of 301 Colton avenue, Millvale, an invalid. He said he would fight the case in the higher courts.

Vogal charged that he advanced the evangelist $5,000 to build a "glory barn" in Parnassus, and that the former paid him $2,000 of the amount in two checks later termed as worthless by his bank. They later were redeemed. Other checks for $3,000 also were found to be worthless, Vogal said, but they were not redeemed.

Moonshine liquor sells for 25 cents a half-pint, according to testimony yesterday before Council on a request to exonerate $2,200 taxes on the Keystone Hotel, Forbes street. The request was asked on the grounds that the hotel is a charitable institution.

"Some of the men staying there can pay 25 cents," said the Rev. Alexander Gibson. "In some cases we do them a good turn when we take it. If we didn't they would buy a half-pint of moonshine."

"Can you get moon for two bits a half-pint?" asked one of the councilmen.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Weddings Here, in East Today Hold Interest Of Society Folks

"HERE comes the bride" is the tune running through everyone's mind today. And it's a charming spring day for a wedding, isn't it, even though according to calendar it's late winter. There are two weddings of much interest for Pittsburgh society folks, one here at home and one in the East.

Florence Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, is becoming the bride of Robert Kerr Follansbee, son of the John Follansbees of Squirrel Hill avenue, this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the Wainwright home.

And at 4 o'clock this afternoon Doris Sherman Easton, daughter of the Norman F. Eastons of Fall River, Mass., is becoming the bride of Edward King Thompson, son of Edward T. Thompson, of Wallingford street.

And the ceremony is taking place in the First Baptist Church of Fall River. Easter lilies and palms decorating the church suggest that the spring weddings have begun.

The bride is wearing the wedding gown her mother wore 31 years ago. It is fashioned of ivory moire and trimmed with rose point lace. Her veil of tulle is trimmed with the same lace. And she is carrying orchids, lilies and gardenias.

And all the members of bridal party are wearing French blue hats with slippers to match, and are carrying arm bouquets of spring flowers.

Marion Phillips Easton, who is her sister's maid of honor, is wearing a blue lace gown, and Mrs. Manning Barr, of Cedarhurst, L. I., Annabell Thompson, of Pittsburgh, sister of the bridegroom; Ruth Brayton, of Boston, cousin of the bride, Constance Varney and Mary Sullivan, of Fall River, and Eleanor Somers, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., who are bridesmaids, are wearing peach lace gowns.

Vincent Thompson, of Pittsburgh, is his brother's best man, and Russell Dodsworth and Karl Satler, also of Pittsburgh, are ushers, as are Gerald Vosburth, James Buffington, Harold Hudner and Herbert Smith, all of Fall River.

After the wedding there is to be a reception in the Eastons' home, and later Mr. Thompson and his bride will leave for the West Indies.

The bride is a graduate of Knox School, and is a member of the Fall River Junior League, and Mr. Thompson is a graduate of Lehigh.

THE LATEST MODE GOES INTO THE SMART JACKET

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Every Jill has a jacket. Which is just to tell you that almost every smart frock seen along the Riviera has a matching jacket, either quite long, or just a short jaunty affair that manages to encompass much charm within its small dimensions. Tweed frocks with little box-jackets are just now very popular versions of the ensemble, and, somehow, no dress seems complete without one. The high waistline obtains in a great many sports costumes, and the skirts are of sensible length for ease of movement, a prime factor of importance. The fine supple tweeds that made their debut last autumn are delightfully in evidence this spring for dresses as well as for suits, and seems to be becoming standard equipment, to which, very few will object. Black and white, brown and white and blue and white are some of the most popular color combinations in tweeds, also brown and beige.

OF COURSE, those who know their Monte Carlo realize that red and black is the popular and most important color combination there. But we must record the success obtained by black and green, always a most delightful color merger. The lovely evening frock is of these two colors. The material is of black faille, and the princess lines of the frock are softened by means of a cluster of folds coming from beneath a vertical band at the front of the bodice. The very full, shirred skirt, not quite to the ankles in front, trails behind and is faced with Empire green crepe. Emerald and diamond bracelets and a short ermine coat, with other details of the costume which was worn at the Saturday night dinner-dance given at the Cafe de Paris at Monte Carlo.

THE Molyneux ensemble was worn by Mrs. S. S. Dodge, when lunching at the Ambassadeurs at Cannes. It is a one-piece frock of black and white tweed, very light weight and supple in weave. The short box jacket is unlined and is edged with an applied band at each side of the front, forming loops where the lapels are usually found and making a flat collar effect in front.

News From the Talk Studios and Local Amusement Notes

OLD STAGERS LIKE GILLETTE AND OTIS SKINNER HOLD FAVOR OF PUBLIC

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THE return of Sherlock Holmes in the person of William Gillette, which will be one of the events at the Nixon before the season's close, gives new emphasis to the fact that the grand old actors of the past have more enduring reputations than the newly rich stars of today. Gillette has been doing a big business wherever he has played, just like Otis Skinner, Gillette was born in 1855, Skinner in 1858. And they are still going strong.

George Seibel

Another of these perennial youths is playing a leading part in Mrs. Fiske's new production. It's a Grand Life. Cyril Scott, born in 1866, where the Shannon flows. Played with Mrs. Fiske as far back as the 80's. Some time after that he got hold of a play and yet they manage to gain a little weight each season.

People

Chaplin, a few years ago a little girl then in her teens, became one of America's idols. Today she is the handsome and desirable wife of a philandering husband with a delightful dash.

Ross Again Popular

Thomas W. Ross is one as these do. He's fit as a fiddle, chicken either. He was starred in one of George M. Cohan's earliest efforts, so he was not born yesterday. Yet he is a popular favorite in New York in a play called "Your Uncle Dudley," which has proved such a success that it was extended when it was scheduled to be seen for the stormiest because a more flamboyant star had flared out of it.

Everyone remembers how Maude Adams, Ethel Barrymore and Drew established their reputations and held their public up to the end. E. H. Sothern, born in 1859, and Frederick Warde, born in 1851, are legitimate dramatic actors. Both made a hit on the stage. The list of actors of dramatists that blossomed forth in time with centennials runs.

Gillette's Career

The career of William Gillette is one of the most remarkable of them all. He first won fame with a comedy he had written. The Private Secretary, adapted from a German farce by Gustav von Moser, entitled "Der Bibliothekar." All America was laughing at the ludicrous figure cut by Gillette in the title role and quoting his tag phrase, "What shall I do with my goods and chattables?"

Next it was a war play, "Secret Service," that brought more fame and wealth to Gillette. Based on the conflict between love and patriotic duty, like "The Heart of Maryland" and "Barbara Frietchie," it also introduced realism in the form of the military telegraph at a time when the stage had not yet been electrified.

Nowadays small casts are possible because so many characters can just be called up on the telephone. Edison and Bell have changed the whole technique of the drama.

"Sherlock Holmes" was the last stage in Gillette's career as dramatist and actor. He could have played it as long as Jefferson played Rip Van Winkle, as long as Warfield played "The Music Master." The public hardly ever tires of such things.

As to the Ladies

It will not do to inquire too closely into the anniversaries of the dear ladies on the boards but both Mrs. Whiffen, who was born in 1845, and Rose Coghlan, who was born in 1850, made no attempt to camouflage their age. Perhaps after a certain time they are proud of it and may exaggerate their years to make their miraculous state of preservation even more notable.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Marie Dressler are acting still. Julia Arthur and May Irwin are among those who have made appearances in recent years. Over in London Marie Tempest is still sprightly and chic, though her years can't be few.

Few will retire in their prime as Maude Adams did to enjoy travel abroad and solitude in the wilds of Long Island.

Popular Star

The popular Mitzi comes to the Nixon stage Monday in the starring role of "Sari," the operetta which first brought her fame a few years ago.

NEW TALKIES AND STAGE BILLS

Doctors who urge patients to exercise in order to lose weight have a scientific problem to consider in the case of Mitchell and Durant, the knockabout dancing comedians in George White's "Scandals," which opens in the Alvin Monday evening. Their stage work is of the most arduous and yet they manage to gain a little weight each season.

A few years ago a little girl then in her teens operated a New Hungarian operetta in Washington, D. C. The name of the operetta was Sari and the little lady was Miss Hajos, now known as Mitzi. Over night she became a star. She again will be seen in this famous operetta at the Nixon next week.

Some merchants in the Pitt are putting the finishing touches to their elaborate sets to be used in "Aloma of the South Seas" next week. The first act shows the exterior of the Blue Pearl an inn near the shore of the tropical island and the second and third acts are laid in the interior of a hut in the mountains.

ARLISS OPENS TODAY

George Arliss, whose initial talking production "Disraeli" was selected as the best picture of 1929, comes to the Warner screen today in his latest effort, "The Green Goddess."

Ray Johnson, stage actress who scored in DeMille's "Dynamite," makes her second talking picture debut in "The Ship from Shanghai," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama of the sea which comes to the Penn next week. Conrad Nagel and Louis Wolheim are in the cast.

"Happy Days," all-talking musical romance, comes to the Aldine Monday. Most prominent among the 100 entertainers appearing are Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, William Collier, Sr., Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, El Brendel, Marjorie White, Sharon Lynn, Ann Pennington, Tom Patricola, Frank Richardson, James J. Corbett, Walter Catlett and Warner Baxter.

NEW FILMS TOMORROW

Featuring a war between rumrunners a newspaper background and a thrilling romance, "Roadhouse Nights" will open in the Stanley tomorrow as the screen feature of the Second Anniversary Week program. On the stage "Jazz Preferred" will be Dick Powell's Warner-Publix Unit offering.

The all-talking film in the Enright beginning tomorrow will be "Hello, Sister." On the stage the presentation will be "Broadway to Pittsburgh," with Jay Mills directing.

"Troopers Three," Tiffany's all-talking comedy of army life, will remain in the Olympic for a second week, beginning Saturday.

SATURDAY OPENINGS

Mary Carr has played "mother" to more screen stars than any woman in the world. In Radio Pictures' "Second Wife," coming to the R-K-O Sheridan Square Saturday, she is cast as the aged family servant and does a comedy relief role.

Victor Graff will present "Sidewalks of New York" in the Harris beginning Saturday. Richard Dix in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" will be the screen attraction.

The management of the Winter Garden Roof has extended the engagement of Joe Lang and Chuck Wilson for another week, beginning Monday.

Washington Day Speakers Announced

Washington Infantry, Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Hall, will hold its annual observance of Washington's birthday Saturday in the Bird Room of Kaufmann's store. Congressman Guy E. Campbell, Michael A. Musmanno, member of the State Legislature, and Robert B. Cain, sheriff of Allegheny County, will address the meeting.

MACK SENNETT SOON TO PUT NATURAL COLOR INTO TWO-REELERS

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20.

FOR lo, these sundry years, Mack Sennett has been working on a color process in which he places high hopes—financial and otherwise. I saw a few experimental tests run off in the projection room. The under-water scenes were extraordinarily fine. I'm no fair judge of celluloid color. To me, its finality destroys the romance of a picture. Black and white photography is to the eye and the imagination what a cross word puzzle is to lovers of this indoor sport. The color racket—three yawns and a snore. Mr. Sennett has patented his color process and will soon burst forth with a few natural-color "two-reelers."

Virginia Lee Corbin

Virginia Lee Corbin landed on British shores and advises young girls to steer clear of the movies. Said they weren't what they uster was, particularly with the furnace-Y lights banked for technicolor shooting.

And now we have a grizzled cynic explaining the secret fate of old safety razor blades in Hollywood. They're used to scrape names of departing tenants from scenario writers' offices.

Ramon Novarro Plans Vacation

RAMON NOVARRO has dug his histrionic ability into three successive pictures. "The Singer of Seville," his current vocaloid, is nearing the completion mark. After which, Ramon packs his luggage and sets forth to London and European cities—alone. 'Twill be his first trans-Atlantic sail—alone. Hitherfore, two or three members of his large family have accompanied him. But Ramon goes by his lonesome this trip. To Study. To holiday. And mayhap, to joy.

Ken's Western Star: Maynard has a brother in the colony, Kermit. Together with George O'Brien and Ewing (Director) Scott, the three assist their basketball team to shoot for baskets.

Norma Talmadge is fairly busy, what with this and that. Norma's next offering will be "Du Barry." She's learning diction: "Du Barry."

the Thalberg heir—or heiress.

Brock (Broadway Producer) Pemberton, in an article for the Quill, printed voice of the stage and its executives, discloses a few startling facts about the Theater versus the Motion Picture. "Ten years ago," writes Mr. Pemberton, "there were nearly 4,000 legitimate theaters playing road shows. Today there are said to be less than 600 on syndicate books." He goes on to comment that "all the fortunes in show business were made on the road and if the road shows are again to become profitable, it will require a sales organization."

"Three years ago, there were 300 stock companies paying royalties to authors; today, there are only about 60, active. Too many plays are being produced with an eye on the picture rights. Competition of the cinema, radio, speakeasy, and various other active night-life entertainments has changed all conditions."

WALTER WINCHELL—On Broadway

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.

Plea

I CANNOT say the things that lovers say,
The pretty speech—the fervid compliment
Is strange to me, I lack the subtle way
That lads should have—and I am innocent
Of tricks that are a part of cupid's trade,
And yet I pray and hope you understand
That though my love is not upon parade,
You sense it in the pressure of my hand.

You note my eagerness in pleasing you,
Your happiness is my avowed concern,
Please then, forgive the things I cannot do—
At least my kisses are not taciturn.

Read in my eyes and banish all your fear,
The things I've left unsaid—speak there, my dear,

GAG

THEN there's the one about the war vet who asked a theatrical manager (his buddy during the Big Tilt) for a job. The producer placed him in his bookkeeping department. Two days later the lad said: "I should have told you, I guess, that I was shell-shocked during the war and my memory is bad." The producer had him switched to the publicity bureau. The next day the veteran explained: "I guess I'm a bore, but really, I cannot read or write."

The producer summoned his stage manager. "Listen, Pete," he instructed, "this bird can't read or write and he hasn't any memory. Make him an actor!"

WISECRACK

The newest dramatic hit in town is christened "The Last Mile," in which there is a prison revolt and the entire cast dies. So Jack Osterman says the night he saw it the ushers took the bows.

SOUNDS LIKE HIM

ARTHUR CAESAR, of whom it was first said "He even makes a noise buttoning his coat," has been in Hollywood for a long spell, and some of his severest friends and best critics were wondering when he would return to the Grandest Canyon.

"I saw him two weeks ago," said a Hollywood visitor, "and he told me he intends staying out there and saving his high wages so that when he returns he can afford to make more enemies."

CAPSULE CRITICISM

It is one sassy Broadwayite's argument that the supreme "comedy" act would be one consisting of Paul McCullough, Eugene Howard and Zeppo Marx.

JUKK

Samson Raphaelson, who authored "The Jazz Singer," asked his old granny what she thought of his play. "Wall," she replied, "I'll tal you. I deedn't like so much de part where de son went away."

"But, grandma," explained Samson, "if the boy didn't go away there wouldn't be any second or third acts."

"So ull right!" was the indifferent response as she shrugged her shoulders, "so den dare wouldn't be no second or toid ects!"

BY WAY OF REPORT

DURING a performance at Loew's State the other evening Jack Osterman offered a travesty on Rudy Vallee's style of megaphone warbling, which is very amusing. The men spectators roared with lusty laughter, as did many of the women, but there was hissing by several femmes, too. Osterman later explained: "You should catch me at the matinees when the theater is crowded with men. They howl at it." He added that the hissing at the night performance indicated that he probably would receive some stiff mail, denouncing him from the hissers, who obviously are Vallee fans.

New York has one or two other favorites whom you cannot kid or even jot down a sour criticism about, even if it is an honest one. They have their individual followings and to offend them in any way is to invite "the indignant subscribers" to complain to the editor. In fewer words, Vallee and one or two others are "local Lindberghs" or "gods" and it amounts to so much sacrilege to roast them.

AS A MATTER OF FACT

AN otherwise engaging story dealing with Broadway is that one by Ishbel Ross which just started in the Trib. Only when the author asserts that playgoers spend $500,000 nightly to see the shows do we titter, for $500,000 is twice as much as they spend.

Of the 78 legit theaters but fifteen of them are housing money-making hits, the others are in the hands of the half-price ticket brokers or are flops. And now and then a "Whoopee" or a "Sons o' Guns" comes along that reaches the $48,000 a week mark. The Times Square Theater house record was only broken last week when it enticed $37,500.

So $250,000 a night would be the local playgoer's top, and that includes the coin earned by the cinema places.

PROOF

That dramatic critics are not so important, after all, was exemplified recently. Of course, it was a press agent's blunder; nevertheless, it shows how not so well known the critics are to those with whom they deal. The show in question got but one favorable re- [illegible] great space at great cost in the newspapers to play up pa[illegible] of the lone indorser's report.

And for his generosity, the critic's nice comment was credited to his predecessor who quit Perk Row last year.

And to make matters more irritating the huge ad with the error ran three days unchanged—in his own sheet!

IN THE 40'S

MANY of the landladies in the theatrical rooming house belt are complaining about conditions again, according to Fred Allen. A landlady, it appears, was beefing about her tough luck with roomers to her butcher. "My best room is let to a weight-lifter who hasn't worked for six months," she moaned.

"Why don't you put him out?" suggested the steak-juggler. "It would be a weight off your mind and the floors as well."

"That's the whole trouble," she answered. "I can't get him out. The weights are so heavy no one can lift them and he hasn't worked so long he is too weak to lift them himself."

NIFTY

Judge Shuttleworth sums the sitch-ee-ay-shun up in these words: "The only trouble with eating in the places where Broadway celebrities eat is that the only people you see are those who want to see Broadway celebrities."

Never before a gas like this — at the price of regular gasoline

WHEN our last tests were made—when ORANGE AMERICAN GAS was finally ready to be marketed—we know that we had a stirring story to tell! For here was a gas—definitely checked by a scientific testing machine—which showed an exceptionally high anti-knock rating for a gas selling at regular gasoline prices. Here was a gas quick-on-the-trigger in cold weather as well as in warm. Here was a gas which made new cars and older cars soar up hills which formerly were stumbling-blocks. Here was gas chock-full of vim, vigor and velocity—a gas packed with power, flowing over with flexibility, the finest gas ever offered at the price of regular gasoline. Although there's every reason for charging a higher price for ORANGE AMERICAN GAS, you'll find it sold at the price of regular gasoline at convenient pumps. Of all gasolines sold at this figure, this new ORANGE AMERICAN GAS gives the best all-around performance. Prove it yourself—there's a pump nearby.

THIS MACHINE CAN'T LIE!
When we tell you that ORANGE AMERICAN GAS has an exceptionally high anti-knock rating — we're not making claims — we're stating a fact. This is the machine that proves it — the machine on which comparative tests of all gasolines are made every day — a machine which delivers cold, scientific facts — the machine that definitely establishes the preeminence of ORANGE AMERICAN GAS among all gases selling at the price of regular gasoline.

PIRATES ROLL WESTWARD

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Big Local Grid Year. Teams Smash Records. All-Graduate Coaching.

Post Urged for Cobb. Susce Has New Rival. Floor Stars of Past.

700,000 SEE PITT, PLAID AND DUKES

WITH spring baseball practice under way at some of the big league training camps, football matters of 1929 may not be the most seasonable of topics, but an attendance check-up for last season made by W. Don Harrison, of Pitt; Clarence Overend, of Carnegie Tech, and John D. Holahan, of Duquesne University, presents angles of more than ordinary interest. It shows that the gridiron sport is in as healthy a condition here as anywhere in the country, that the 1929 campaign smashed all previous local records, and that as drawing cards the three local college teams rank with the strongest in the game.

W. Don Harrison

Most assuredly there is nothing wrong with football in a city that has three big teams playing to a total of more than 700,000 in a single season. That's what the Panthers, Tartans and Dukes did. Excluding their own game, Pitt and Carnegie played to a combined total of 620,000, and Duquesne drew 81,960, the latter patronage including 12,000 at two games abroad. All three teams established record financial seasons. Pitt's gross football income was approximately $600,000.

EXCLUSIVE of the Pitt-Carnegie meeting, the Panthers played to four and the Scots to three crowds of 40,000 or more. A total of 218,000 witnessed Pitt's home games, and 141,000 saw Carnegie at The Stadium, making a total attendance of 359,000 at the games of the Panthers and the Skibos in the Oakland bowl.

Both Pitt and Carnegie brought national recognition to the city by playing games in every section of the country. In the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena on New Year's Day, the Panthers played before a capacity gathering of 71,000, the largest crowd a team of this district has ever drawn. Carnegie's game on the Pacific Coast attracted 55,000.

THE largest crowds drawn by the Panthers and Plaid during the season were: Pitt-Southern California, 71,000; Carnegie-Notre Dame, 62,000; Carnegie-Southern California, 55,000; Pitt-Ohio State, 52,000; Pitt-Carnegie, 48,000; Carnegie-New York U., 45,000; Pitt-Nebraska, 40,000, and Pitt-Penn State, 30,000.

The attendance figures given for Pitt's game with Ohio State and Penn State are based on the number of tickets sold. Many persons who bought tickets in advance remained away from the games on account of unfavorable weather.

John D. Holahan

WHILE the relative playing merits of the 1927 and 1929 Pitt teams will continue to be a subject of debate, there is no doubt that Coach Jock Sutherland's Eastern championship eleven of last fall was a better drawing card than the team that won the championship of the same section in 1927. Attendance figures for Pitt's last three seasons show that the games of 1927 were witnessed by 250,000 persons, those of 1928 by 202,000 and those of 1929, extending into New Year's Day of 1930, by 360,000.

SPEAKING of football, the action of the Pitt athletic council in confirming the appointment of Joe Donchess and Ray Montgomery, stars of the last three varsity elevens, as part-time coaches for next season, completes the largest graduate coaching staff the Panthers have ever had. The late Alex Stevenson was a graduate of West Virginia University and did all of his football playing there.

Coach Sutherland will have five former Pitt players as assistants next season in Skip Gougler, freshman coach; Andy Gustafson, Zonar Wissinger, Donchess and Montgomery. Gougler learned his football under Pop Warner and for two seasons was one of Sutherland's teammates. Gustafson and Wissinger played under both Warner and Sutherland, while Donchess and Montgomery are exclusively Sutherland products.

FRIENDS and admirers of Ty Cobb are asking if the Georgian is being made the victim of a boycott by the club owners of the major baseball leagues, inasmuch as none of them has offered him a post for the approaching season.

Cobb is 43 and is done as a player, of course. He is also wealthy and doesn't need the salary attached to the kind of position he could fill, but it is said that he would like to stay in baseball because of the kick he gets out of it, and his friends insist that he has done enough for the game to deserve a place as a coach, at least. It is being urged that he would prove a good attraction as a coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers or some other National League club.

George Susce

GEORGE SUSCE, Pittsburgh boy with the Phillies for his second season in the big show, is going to have some new opposition in his fight for a place on the Quaker catching corps this year. The Phils have just signed another young backstop in the person of Jimmy Spotts, who caught for the Muhlenberg College team last spring and also worked in the Burlington County League, of New Jersey. Spotts stands above 6 feet in height and is a right-hand hitter. Susce, Spotts and Al Cooper are expected to fight it out for the third berth on the receiving staff. Manager Burt Shotton is counting upon Virgil Davis to do most of the catching, with Harry McCurdy as a second-string man.

THE death of Andy Sears recalled to Johnny Freund, local basketball veteran, the days when the old Central League flourished, with outstanding teams representing McKeesport, where Sears was leader of one of the best quintets of all time; South Side, Homestead, Greensburg, Uniontown, Connellsville, Johnstown and East Liverpool.

"Sears was a player to be rated with the world's best of any time, regardless of what present-day critics may say or believe," said Freund. "Only those who have followed the sport for the last 30 years will ever be able to realize how great some of the former stars were. Basketball in those days was far more difficult to play, too. It was played in a cage and required greater skill, and above all, greater stamina.

"UNDER those conditions, the sport was featured by more action, and greater speed and concentration of effort, which gave the spectators much more enjoyment and many more thrills. And that period boasted a much larger number of great players than we have today. I could run off a list of 100 players of 20 years ago who would shine in any company today, while now it is a hard matter to name half a hundred.

"Such men as Sears, Hough, O'Donnell, Getzinger, Henschell, Botzo, Keenan, Sulls, Muller, Mayham, Fogarty, Wohlfarth, Kummer, Powell, Steele, Jimpsy and Ailie Brown and others would stand out among the moderns like beacon lights on a foggy night.

"BUT the players of that period were not given the same ballyhoo received by those of today. The Celtics were a great team, there is no denying, but they received more than their share of publicity because they were a New York aggregation. Had the old McKeesport, Johnstown or South Side outfit been a New York team it would have received more ballyhoo and publicity, and consequently would have become more famous than the Celtics or any other great club of later years. Sears, for one, compared favorably with any passer of any period, and if ever there was a mord

PITT GRIDDERS TO SERVE AS ASSISTANTS

By JESS CARVER

E'en though they have put in their allotted time as varsity players, the visages of Joe Donchess and Ray Montgomery will still be seen beaming about the Stadium and practice field when another football season rolls around at Pitt.

Messrs. Donchess and Montgomery, both of whom made reputations as all-America stars, have been okayed by the University athletic council as assistant coaches and will serve in such capacities as aids to Dr. John Bain Sutherland, head coach, next fall.

Montgomery will devote one-half of his time to coaching duties and will spend the rest of the time to teaching football, basketball and track to students in the department of physical education directed by John Dambach.

Donchess will continue his studies in the School of Medicine.

UP AND COMERS

This season's crop of freshmen and first year varsity basketball stars, though lighter than usual, includes five as promising young bloods as have inflicted their presences on the tri-state section for some time.

Not since Hyatt, Babe O'Donovan, Ryan, Glenn and Delahunty first came up have there been five players of the class about to be mentioned silhouetted against the basketball screen.

The youngster who appears to be THE find of the year is Flading, Bethany's freshmen guard. A good shot, he combines speed and clever floor play in a dangerous combination, and has been the outstanding figure in Bethany's play this year.

GROVERS HAVE STAR

Stavnitsky, Grove City's flash, would make a fine running mate for Flading. He has an edge on Ryan, captain of the Grovers, in that he is a better scorer.

Eddie Cubbon, West Virginia's sophmore forward, and Fair, Geneva's frosh ace, are among the best forwards in the section, and are possible the best first year men. Cubbon is expected to rival Little Sleepy Glenn in effectiveness by next year. Fair has been a star for Geneva throughout.

Among the centers, Bunk McGeever, Duquesne's rangy and husky pivot man, is outstanding. Playing his first year of varsity ball, Bunk has won a regular berth and has given an excellent account of himself against more veteran opponents.

DUKES WORK ON GRID

Elmer Layden inaugurated spring football practice at Duquesne University yesterday when more than 20 members of the Bluff eleven donned moleskins and went through a punting and passing session.

The Tipoff

Bob Thorn's Grove City passers, due to make their second appearance of the year here tomorrow playing the Dukes, continue their travelling and meet Waynesburg tonight. The Grovers played a return engagement with Geneva last evening.

West Virginia Wesleyan and Marshall, in a setup at Huntington, complete the eight-game card for the district. Carnegie Tech, in the east, will rest up for the game with College of the City of New York quintet on the morrow.

Winning 28 games in a row, the Pitt freshmen five of the past three campaigns have hung up quite a snappy record. During the past two seasons George Kowalik, former years forward, has been coaching the frosh, and has developed two high powered machines.

The Panther Cubs showed the old fight against Wash. Jeff's husky freshmen team Tuesday. Trailing 20 to 10 at the half, Pitt came back to hold the young Presidents to one point during the second half, meanwhile scoring 11 on their own account.

Wash. Jeff's swimmers have a dual meet on the chart with Franklin and Marshall in the Pitt pool tonight.

Bottles Capone Hits Bookies In Race Coup

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Local bookmakers were trying hard to recover today from the coup accomplished by Ralph (Bottles) Capone, Scarface Al's brother, when his racer Charm, yesterday sprung the surprise of the season at New Orleans by winning the fourth race.

Charm paid $118.50 for $2 to win, $46.50 to place and $11.70 to show.

Chicago bookmakers alone are estimated to have lost $100,000 on the race.

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATION — THE ACRES OF LAND DEEDED TO ALMIGHTY GOD—In 1860, Solomon Parsons, of Worcester, Mass., deeded 10 acres of his land to Almighty God. The legend is chiseled on a boulder on the property. However, when his estate was probated the courts ruled that, since the document could not be recorded, the conveyance was not legal and the tract went to the heirs. The boulder upon which the deed is inscribed is one of the points of interest in Worcester.

CORSAIR PARTY INCREASED TO 28

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Feb. 20.—The party increased to 28 persons, the Pirate advance guard early this morning partook of an early breakfast at this Kansas town and then rolled onward merrily toward California and the Paso Robles objective.

Nine athletes and the only woman in the entourage were added during the night at Kansas City. Heinie Meine accompanied by Mrs. Meine, his brother, Walter, and seven others were at the pretty Union Station at the midwestern city shortly after midnight when the cross-country tourists landed at that point.

With the Meines were Al Bool, Hal Finney, Jess Petty, Lil Stoner, Martin Lang, Ben Sankey and Charley Engle. The last two named are infielders who were ordered to report with the pitchers and catchers. Bool and Finney are two new catchers. Petty, Stoner, Lang and the two Meines are hurlers, Lang being a left-hander. No further additions to the squad are scheduled before the flyer reaches Los Angeles.

PLEASANT TRIP

So far the trip has been most pleasant, with everybody enjoying good health. The club physician and the two trainers are aboard the train, but they and Manager Ens trust that their services will not be required for anything more serious than baseball fever.

Speaking of good health, Manager Ens and his assistant, Max Carey, introduced a physical innovation yesterday afternoon that is apt to be adopted by many managers. The Buccos' leaders put their charges through a course of setting-up exercises when the flyer stopped at one of the wayside stations.

Ens told all hands to be ready sans coats when the station was reached. In a jiffy he had his pitchers and catchers in squad formation on the little station platform and for five minutes the athletes went through a form of exercise that pleased them all. Ens announced that the plan would be followed every day until the squad reaches Paso Robles. It is likely that the idea also will be followed at the training camp.

PLAYERS EXERCISE

Coach Carey is one of the advocates of this form of exercise. Carey introduced it at the camp of the Robins last spring. The plan has much to recommend it, especially on long train rides. Athletes are prone to play cards and read through the pleasant daylight hours unless a command for exercise is given. Manager Ens has no scruples whatever as regards breaking up a card game to drill the boys in something more important.

Every training trip is featured by the presence of rookies and the present junket of the Pirates has

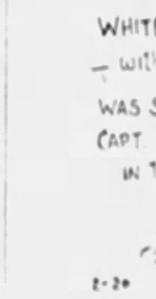
MICKEY SOLMEN AND MORETTI GO TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A fight that McKeesport fans failed to get a few weeks ago when Mickey Solmen, New Castle middleweight favorite, was stricken ill and was unable to go on with Gene Moretti, of Atlantic City, will be served up to them tonight, in the same ring.



Gene Moretti

Moretti accepted K. O. Kelly, Akron Negro, as an eleventh-hour substitute for Solmen, before and pulled an official draw out of the battle. Because of Kelly's unorthodox style, however, he was unable to show to his usual good advantage and he hopes to impress the patrons of the Tube City club more favorably when he goes through with the original match tonight. It shapes up as a good bout and promises to draw well.

Harry Devore, of Huntington, W. Va., and Danny Russell, of Braddock, and formerly of Baltimore, box the semi-final. Joe Corelli, of Erie, and Nick Susnell, of Rochester, Pa., are in the second bout, while Casey Hayes, Negro of Homestead, meets Al Capone, of Mt. Washington, in the opener.

ICE PIRATES PLAY LEAFS TONIGHT

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Although they are in last place by a very substantial margin and are sporting a new losing streak of six games, the Pittsburgh Pirates will command plenty of respect from the Toronto Leafs when they meet the local skaters in a National League game here tonight.

RESPECT BUCS

The Leafs respect for the lowly Bucs achieved noble proportions in Pittsburgh early in the season when the locals were overwhelmed by a 10-5 score, and when the Pittsburghers made their season's debut here they bowed by 2-1 only after a battle so hot that an overtime period was required to reach a decision.

Tonight's game, originally scheduled to be played in Pittsburgh, will be the sixth in which the Steel City puckmen have engaged since they left home almost two weeks ago and will mark the close of the longest road trip in modern National League records. The long jaunt appears to have affected the Pirates but little, however, for they gave the Senators plenty of opposition before dropping a 3-2 decision in Ottawa on Tuesday. On the same night the Leafs were walloping the New York Rangers to the tune of 5-1, and they will rule slight favorites to extend their victory drive this evening.

PLAY AT HOME NEXT

At the finish of their fight here the Pirates will rush to Pittsburgh to make ready to welcome the Montreal Maroons to Duquesne Garden on Saturday night. The probable lineup:

Toronto		Pittsburgh
Kasher	G	Moser
Clancy	D	MacKinnon
Primeau	C	Ulrich
Conacher	R	Fraser
Jackson	L	Darragh

By JULIUS LEVIN

A battle royal is in store for the followers of the Allegheny County League second half race tonight when the J. J. Veronas battle the Fintex team at Columbus Temple. The Fintex team, out of the running for the County League championship, appear to have an old score to settle with their Hill district foes and tonight's contest promises to develop into a real battle.

Sammy Klateman

The Veronas are strengthened by the addition of two former Fintex stars, Bill Mauer and Johnny Scott, whom they grabbed at the finish of the first half race. Fintex, after a fast clip, suffering their first defeat of the season Tuesday night after copping five straight. Taking the two Fintex stars had much to do with the downfall of that team in the second half and Fintex will be eager to get revenge by striving to defeat its opponents tonight.

DEFEAT HELPS GAME

The defeat suffered by the Veronas at the hands of the Lafayettes has tended to increase interest in tonight's battle. The tension that gives a winning combination is no subject evident in the makeup of the Veronas and they will be able to play their natural game tonight. They realize they have a tough battle on their hands tonight and with both clubs in the pink of physical condition fans are going to witness a struggle that should keep them on their toes from start to finish.

The Veronas will have available for service such stars as Miller, Serbin, Twomey, Hofmann, Delvecchio, Demaria and several others, while Fintex will depend on Nate Lippe, Wy Potts, Steve Paris, Red Sarris, Sammy Klateman, Eddie Lesmak and Harvey White to uphold its colors.

This contest has been awaited by the fans all season, and indications are that a capacity crowd will attend the struggle. The members of the Goldenson quint, one of the favorites to win the second half championship, will attend the game in a body.

The Goldensons and Verona are battling neck-and-neck for the right to meet the Lafayettes for the championship at the close of the season, and neither can afford to lose another game without facing the possibility of being eliminated.

SCOTT BOXES FOR SOCIETY IN FLORIDA

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—Society folks of Palm Beach today were mildly thrilled over the prospect of getting an eyeful of Phil Scott, British heavyweight championship contender, who will be the star attraction in a boxing exhibition at the fashionable Oasis Club this afternoon. Three hundred invitations have been issued and attendance will be limited.

Scott, who has been training in Miami for his bout next Thursday night with Jack Sharkey, left Miami this morning for Palm Beach accompanied by his trainers and 30 or 40 newspapermen. William P. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden and well known in Palm Beach, also made the trip.

It will be the first peep society has had at the English champion, and the affair is expected to be quite a swanky event, something new in American fisticuffs. Scott will box four or five rounds for the edification of the elite of Palm Beach, who have taken a strong fancy to boxing.

Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, also will box on the program.

SHARKEY IMPRESSES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—(INS)—Admirers of Jack Sharkey were enthusiastic today after watching their favorite perform in a snappy workout with Pierre Charles and Johnny Grosso yesterday.

Sharkey snapped back Charles' head several times and showed almost amazing execution with a tantalizing left jab and a mean hook. His short right was working well, too, and it was with this punch that he rocked Charles.

Phil Scott boxed nine rounds yesterday, using seven sparring partners.

In boxing Jack Renault, the Briton went down on his haunches, but it was claimed he slipped and was not knocked down. Scott did seven miles on the road yesterday and weighed 205 pounds before his workout. Manager Jimmy Johnston said he was delighted with Scott's condition.

Announcement was made the Scott-Sharkey battle would not be broadcast.

Arthur Irwin, shortstop for Providence, was considered one of the greatest field captains in the history of the game. He later was one of the managers of the Rochester International League club.

Charles Radbourne, who hurled for Providence in this game, is considered by many of the oldtimers as the greatest pitcher to ever step on a mound.

The tourists will reach Havana on Sunday and will remain there until Tuesday, when they will start their return trip to Miami, arriving in the Florida metropolis the day before the fight. The return to Pittsburgh will be begun the day following the fight, but persons in the party have the privilege of leaving Miami any time up to March 13.

Quite a few lads whose eyes pop out in wonderment. Some of them have never been far from the family hearth and the long voyage to the coast naturally has cast a spell on them. Many a lad gets homesickness blues as twilight falls on the speeding Pullmans but when a new day breaks they are up and full of life again.

All hands were glad to realize that the journey was just about half done as they rolled along into the Golden Southwest. Paso Robles will not be sighted until Saturday afternoon, but the train is due to reach the Los Angeles and the Santa Fe terminal early in the morning of that day.

Chillysauce

The newest basket of the Pirate ship to Lake Tahoe shifts its periodic rendezvous once again to that distant port. The Jimmy Dykes' Aggies first piled to California points in 1928 and the result was an outing that the sport has not been dropped.

The Cubs are the only other major league team to journey to the coast conditioning grounds, for in 1929 they took the White Sox to the Pease Robbie training ground, but the conditions at the little resort town were not so favorable and the Cubs soon left for more suitable climes.

The unfavorable end to the Pirates' jaunt to Tahoe is indicated. The playing field is right there, as is either of the major golf links and the natives take pride in keeping the land in good condition.

The vanguard of Cubs is coming out two days ahead of the Pirate pitchers and catchers, among those present will be Mickey Heath, outstanding catcher whose principal asset of the past season was his strength at the bat.

Last year Heath was unable to catch in a single game owing to a home run bat he received in the ribs. He was then the leading home run hitter of the Cubs' squad and was selected by Manager Joe to pilot the final game of the season, the Pirates' finale to the curtain of the bullpen wizard.

Heath had been in the bullpen so long that when told he'd catch that he was going to the Pirates he became speechless. The eighth inning man developed homers and he was escorted to his private cabin on the presidential Pullman but never before had he caused his head with one hundred and one instructions as to how to pitch to the Waners, Grantham, Traynor, Harris.

Heath's head was filled with good instructions. There's a certain spot that is said to be paved with the same sort of good intentions. Nevertheless Hank wished to be excused a few weeks under the shadow of the Golden Gate. After a series of wild actions of one sort or another the lad retired the side but when Brother Lloyd came up again he once more put John Heydler's trade mark on the star with another fast ball. Hankus Pankus was doing a nice suggestion act when Manager Joe called for substitutes. He figured the worst had later came so with a full share of the World Series at that he did not look any worse than some of the other rube in that 10 run inning at White Park.

GRAMPP "PICTURESQUE"

Another rather picturesque member of the Bucaneering Corps of Frank Frederickson's hurlers who warmed up for two days before being called upon to pitch a ball game. Henry Gaspar of the Big Meadow was selected by Manager Joe to pitch the final game of the season, the Pirates' finale to the curtain of the bullpen wizard.

Hank had been in the bullpen so long that when told he'd start that he was going to the Pirates he became speechless. HUDLIN IS HOLDOUT

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20.—(INS)—Willis Hudlin, of the Cleveland Indians hurling staff, today sent in an unsigned contract to Billy Evans, general manager of the tribe.

Unless Hudlin and the management of the Cleveland club come to terms shortly, Hudlin will not make the trip to New Orleans when the Indians leave Saturday to get in condition for the coming campaign.

RUTH ONLY HOLDOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP)—With Babe Ruth classed as the only holdout, the Yankees yesterday announced the signing of 34 players, who will be taken South for the spring training trip.

Col. James Ruppert will leave for St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4 for a conference with the home run king. The signing of Babe may be expected within a day or two after the conference.

Sport Vignettes

All sorts of arguments are cropping out about this fellow Primo Carnera, the Italian giant. . . . Some of the fans even are betting that he never boxed Young Stribling, despite the fact that they met twice and the bouts are of very recent vintage. . . . The first was staged in Albert Hall, London, and Carnera won on a foul in the fourth round, when Stribling was adjudged to have struck low. . . . In the return bout, in the Velodrome d' Hiver, Paris, last December 7, Stribling reversed the verdict, winning on a foul at the end of the seventh round, when Primo was disqualified for attacking him after the bell. He hit Stribling three times after the bell had rung, seemingly going mad in the ring. . . . Antonio Ortale, of Mt. Lebanon, writes that he witnessed the second bout. . . . He wants to know if it is true that Gene Tunney didn't win his second bout with Dempsey, but that it was given to him. . . . No, Tunney won it by a mile, although he was knocked down and in a bad way in the seventh round. . . . He was up at the referee's count of nine, but actually was down for 14 seconds, due to the confusion caused when Dempsey did not promptly go to a distant corner. . . . Ortale also wants to know when Mickey Walker won the middleweight title and from whom. . . . He won it from the late Tiger Flowers in Chicago, December 3, 1926, on a decision that was violently protested by many of the spectators. . . . L. F. Noyes, the big garage man of West Liberty avenue, who has been vacationing with his family at Miami, writes that he will not return home until next month, but plans to miss the Sharkey-Scott fight next week, and, he's a red-hot fight fan, seldom missing a battle here. . . . Writing about the impending combat, he says, in a letter back home, "the preliminary card for the big show is good, and they also are pulling off some good wrestling matches down here". . . . There's a boost for you. . . . Press agents for the big circus please copy. . . . Jack Elder quits competition as an amateur to go to work for a living, we read. . . . The amateur racket evidently isn't what it used to be. . . . Time was when a young feller could make a better living as an amateur than as a pro. . . . And these new open tennis tournaments, in which pros will be permitted to play with the amateurs. . . . The difference between a pro and an amateur here still will be that the amateur will get his expenses for playing in tournaments arranged to advertise hotel resorts while the pro will pay as he goes. —HARRY KECK.

deadly shot, either from field or foul line, he escaped my notice. Not only that, but Sears could dribble with wonderful precision, and was equally as good defensively, so that he left nothing to be desired as an all-America selection. Any of the present-day players, barring none, would have had a great night's work ahead of him if he had attempted to oppose old Andy in the rage game when he was in his heyday on the McKeesport floor."

Mickey Walker

Of course, they'll call it a non-title fight. But what if Mickey Walker should defeat Jimmy Slattery in the bout that has just been clinched for the latter part of April in Detroit, particularly if Mickey should win by a knockout. It would be no easy matter for Slattery and the New York Boxing Commission to keep Walker from being recognized as the light-heavyweight as well as the middleweight champion.

And there would be every reason for considering Walker entitled to such recognition. The ruling that a challenger cannot win a title unless the champion is down to [illegible] built of his class is one of the modern absurdities in [illegible]. It ought to make no difference if the champion weighs a ton or is lame as his successful opponent is at the class limit. Incidentally, if Walker were to defeat Slattery and be given recognition as the light-heavyweight champion he would be one of the few fighters ever to capture title in three divisions, as he now wears the middleweight crown and previously held the welterweight scepter.

N. B. A. Seeks Dempsey's Status

CINCINNATI, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The National Boxing Association, through John W. Driskill, secretary, has asked Leonard Sachs, manager of Jack Dempsey, to obtain a statement in writing from the former world heavyweight boxing champion as to just where he stands in the fight picture.

Driskill said the N. B. A. would not recognize the winner of the Sharkey-Scott encounter as world champion and would not recognize a champion until at least one more fight after that. The N. B. A. wants to know whether Dempsey intends to fight again, whether he is willing to fight again, or whether he is through.

ARMY FIVE WALLOPS CARNEGIE TECH, 49-29

GROVERS NOSE OUT GENEVA; W. VA. COPS

WEST POINT, Feb. 20.—Army defeated Carnegie Tech 49 to 29, in a well-played, interesting basketball game here last night. The visitors, led by Merten and Nease, spent themselves in the first half during which period they kept pace with Army until within the final seconds when Kreuger, who was high scorer with 22 points, wriggled under the Skibo's basket and broke a tie score with a field goal which put Army in front at 19-17, as the half time gun went off.

TECH DISTANCED

In the second half Army began drawing away after a brief period of stubborn resistance, Kreuger, Abell and Stecker doing effective work on shots from scrimmage. Tech's defense crumbled, while Army men swarmed down court and on top of the ball and midtime in the final half. Stecker and Abell dribbled and shot field goals, until Army led 45 to 23, with only five minutes to play.

Nease's shot from foul was followed by two from the line by Fox to give Tech three more points. Stecker and Strother tossed in field goals for the Cadets and the count read Army 49, Tech 26. Merten and Weiss on foul shots brought Tech's count to 29 and with two minutes to play substitutes filled the lineup of both.

GROVERS BEAT GENEVA

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 20.—Grove City came from behind to nose out Geneva 30-28 here last night. Trailing until the last few minutes, the Crimson was outclassed in the first half by Geneva. Shortly before the half was up Coach Loeffler sent in a complete new team. Geneva led 19-7 at the intermission.

Stavinitsky started things in the second half and led an attack that pulled the Grovers to within three points of the Covenanters when the Gold and White varsity again went back into the game. But Grove City had tasted of success and sustained their drive to finally tie the score at 26, with nine minutes to play.

During the remaining time Montgomery scored a field goal for Geneva. Hildebrand scored from the floor for the Grovers and two fouls by Raplenovic sewed up the game. The lineup:

W. VA. TOPS JACKETS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 20.—Little Sleepy Glenn's last-half spurt for five field goals was the chief factor in West Virginia's 31-28 victory over Waynesburg here last night.

Waynesburg employed the slow, revolving offense, but the Yellow Jackets could not penetrate the Mountaineers' inner defense. Their long shots were "breaking" however, and West Virginia appeared to be badly off in its passing and shooting, and as a consequence the game evolved into a rough affair.

Glenn was held scoreless from the field in the first half and the Mountaineers were all missing their attempts while Waynesburg looped her long goals. The rest period was reached with the Jackets in front, 14-13.

In the second half West Virginia got away to a five-point lead, but Waynesburg tore it down and held a 23-22 margin with six minutes to play. Glenn caged three goals in succession and Cubbon got another, while Waynesburg's efforts thereafter were two goals and a foul. The lineup:

West Va.—31.		Waynesburg—28.
Doyle	F	O'Connell
H. Glenn (C)	F	Avery
Bartrug	C	Smith
Ratcliffe	G	(C) White
Plaster	G	Patsch

Scores by halves:

West Virginia	13	18—31
Waynesburg	14	14—28

Substitutes—West Virginia, Cubbon, Lepera, Waynesburg, Sansaro, Porter, Ulom. Field goals—West Virginia, H. Glenn 5, Doyle, Cubbon, Bartrug 3, Ratcliffe, Plaster, Waynesburg, Avery 3, O'Connell 3, Smith 2, Ulom, White 2. Fouls—West Virginia, Glenn, 2 out of 5; Doyle, none out of 2; Bartrug, 1 out of 3; Ratcliffe, 1 out of 1; Plaster, 3 out of 3. Waynesburg, Avery, none out of 1; O'Connell, 4 out of 5; Smith, 2 out of 2; Patsch, 1 out of 1; White, 1 out of 2. Referee—Daugherty. Umpire—Rehn.

D. & E. WINS AGAIN

ALDERSON, W. Va., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Davis and Elkins made it 18 straight for the season by trouncing Aldermon College in a basketball game here last night, 61 to 19. The Alderson team never threatened during the game. The score at the half was 25 to 7, Davis and Elkins.

SALEM VICTOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Salem College swung into splendid form here last night in winning from the George Washington University quintet, 39 to 35. George Washington led at the half, 20 to 13, but the invading Tigers held the local club scoreless for the first six minutes of the second half as Dodds and Pager staged a clever and sensational rally to put Salem in the lead. The lineup:

Salem—39.		Geo. Wash.—35.
Bowers	F	Fite
Neville	F	Harris
Dodds	C	Hoover
West	G	Chatell
Goldsberry	G	Blaine

Substitutes—Von Phillips, Pager, Schaal, Perry, Thacker. Field goals—Bowers 3, Neville 3, Pager 3, Dodds 4, Schaal, Goldsberry, Vine 2, Harris 7, Hoover 3, Chatell. Free goals—Salem 9 out of 16; George Washington 7 out of 13.

BARBOURSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—West Virginia Wesleyan College defeated Morris Harvey College in a closely contested basketball game here last night, 34-28. Morris-Harvey led, 17-16, at the half.

BRUINS TRIP ROSIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—The second half rampage of the Cleveland Rosenblums resulted in a rude fall here last night when Nat Holman, their former star, baked in five baskets in quick succession to help the Chicago Bruins to an American League basketball victory. But teams sparkled on the defense and the field goals were nine to six, with the virtues on the long end. Nat Holman tallied only one basket.

The lineup:

Rosenblums—15.		Chi. Bruins—21.
Glazer	F	Holman
Harry	F	Hickey
Lapchick	C	Kuhlli
Talbert	G	Russell
Hunt	G	Ely

Substitutions—Voss for Kuhli, Shorkey for Glazer, Unqualified Kuhli. Field goals—Hickey 4, Holman, York, Russell, Glazer, Harry, Talbert, Hunt, 2. Fouls—Chicago 3, Rosenblums 3. First half score—Chicago 13, Rosenblums 9.

The Steel City loop will meet at Wagner's this evening at 7:30. All managers, including Vive Young, Bob White and Kenny, should be on hand.

Wally Wiseline is going to team up with Mike Tedjesk this season, in the running of the W. C. W. club, Greater Pittsburgh Class A and Central League champions. The Squire and Mike should put the Wows over in a big way.

BATTLING GIZZY

Gizzy, recent victor over Chet Smallwood at New Brighton, is one of the best "club fighters" in this section and his services are in great demand. He boxes Joey Powell, of Philadelphia, in a main bout at Johnstown, Friday night of next week; Midget Mike O'Dowd at Wheeling, March 3, and Babe Ruth at New Castle, March 17. New Brighton also wants him with Howard Mitchell for March 6, but he likely will have to pass up this match because of the others.

POPP TO PILOT HOMESTEAD ACES NINE

By TOM BIRKS

Jack Fertig, popular Homestead citizen, and sponsor of the Homestead Aces, for many years one of the leading contenders for honors on the local sandlots, certainly made a ten-strike when he lined up with Johnny Popp, of Whittaker, as playing manager for this season.

Johnny Popp

Popp, a real ball player, and one of the smartest field generals in the district, has been piloting ball clubs in Whittaker for many years. The battles between Whittaker and the Aces packed in the crowds. Now that Johnny will be with the famous Aces in the league battles against his former comrades, there is reason to feel that the spacious stands at West Park will be packed when the umpires call "play ball."

ANXIOUS TO PLAY

Fertig, Popp and Paul Mach represented the Aces at the West Penn League meeting on Tuesday evening, and the loop was tickled to have this famous organization battling with Verona, Wilmerding, North Bessemer, Cheswick and Universal. Fertig made it plain that his club was anxious to to do their stuff. Last season Wilmerding, Universal and Verona had a triple playoff for the first half championship.

Bunts

North Bessemer had its organization meeting during the week, and the following officers were elected: T. L. Coonfreedent, J. Underberger, vice president and H. J. Wadsworth, secretary-treasurer. Election of a manager was deferred until the club's meeting next week.

Buzz Isherwood, former Verona and Homewood star hurler, is working hard getting into shape to report to the Elks' club. When the Verona lad is right, he has more stuff than any pitcher in the district. George Miller, Bellaire Life standby, disputes this. The Insurance official feels that Gumbo has more stuff than any pitcher on the sandlots.

The Steel City loop will meet at Wagner's this evening at 7:30. All managers, including Vive Young, Bob White and Kenny, should be on hand.

Wally Wiseline is going to team up with Mike Tedjesk this season, in the running of the W. C. W. club, Greater Pittsburgh Class A and Central League champions. The Squire and Mike should put the Wows over in a big way.

Ford City Clinches Section VI Title

FORD CITY, Pa., Feb. 20.—Ford City High School last evening clinched the Section VI championship in the W. P. I. A. L. and will take part in the Pittsburgh tournament.

The game with Leechburg was taken by a score of 36 to 26. Ford City, with two more games to play, has a perfect score in the league.

Apollo and Kittanning still remain on the schedule. Apollo plays here tomorrow evening and the locals play at Kittanning Tuesday evening.

The lineup:

Ford City—36.		Leechburg—26.
Pryor	F	Human
Cook	F	Klingensmith
Baer	C	Pyle
Wallace	G	Reagle
Orman	G	Ruman

Substitutions—Ford City, Brookhauser, Parkhurst, Leechburg, Schaal. Score at half—Ford City, 14; Leechburg, 13. Field goals: Ford City—Pryor 4, Cook 4, Baer 2, Wallace, Orman. Leechburg—Human 3, Klingensmith 3, Reagle 3, Hill 2, Pyle 2. Fouls—Ford City, 3 out of 10; Leechburg, 6 out of 18. Referee—Butler.

Racqueters Leave For Tourney Tonight

Local squash racquets stars will leave for Chicago tonight to represent Pittsburgh in the anual national squash racquets championship tournament which opens there tomorrow.

Dave Gilmore, of the Allegheny Country Club, and Percy Siverd, of the P. A. A., are to compete for the Steel City in the singles, and Frank White and George L. Stocking, of the Keystone A. C., and W. Mc. C. Reed, J. Scott Burke and A. W. Hamilton, of the P. A. A., are to compete for the team championship.

The party will be accompanied by Pen Pope, squash professional at the Keystone A. C.

Tournament play is slated for tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

Paulsen Jumps 212 Feet for Ski Record

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Wyo., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Leaping 212 feet in perfect form, Cuttrom Paulsen, of the Norge Ski Club, Chicago, set a new world amateur ski jump record here yesterday during the annual winter sports carnival. The former record was 210 feet.

Pressing Paulsen for honors were Peter Falstad, Canton, S. D., who made a jump of 206 feet, and John Steele, of the Homewood Ski Club, Denver, whose leap was 201 feet. Paulsen set a new record on the Genesee Mountain course, near Denver, last Sunday, with a leap of 183 feet.

Harrisburg Club Changes Hands

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Harrisburg was assured an entrant in the 1930 New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League with the announcement last night that the Senators' franchise had been purchased by Charles A. Hoak, a local dairyman and manufacturer. It was also announced that Johnny Tillman, manager of the team last year, again would direct the club.

LOCAL BOXERS SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Nineteen boxers, several of them well known throughout the state, and Jim McMillan, well known wrestler, felt the heavy hand of the State Athletic Commission at the regular weekly meeting here. Two of the pugilists had their licenses revoked, eight others and the lone wrestler were suspended and nine were declared ill and unavailable.

Frank Houser, of Mt. Carmel, and Al Bowman, of Shamokin, were the two battlers to lose their licenses.

Those suspended were: Nick Sparta, Allentown, indefinitely; Jim McMillan, ex-football star of Illinois and the late opponent of Dick Shikat, in a championship match here, 10 days; Larry Madge, Cleveland; John P. Dougherty, Pittsburgh; Alfred Farone, McKees Rocks; Johnny Jadd, Cleveland; Harry Spencer, Washington, Pa., and Calvin Snyder, Lock Haven, all were suspended for 60 days, while Joseph Telatovich, of Hazelton, Pa., received 30 days.

Those declared ill and unavailable were: Mickey Blake, Allentown; Bill Johnson, Kalamazoo; Johnny Sheridan, Tom McDonald, Tony Stroops, Speedy Culberson and Harry Lebo, Philadelphia; Joseph Hoover, Tamaqua, and Gene Lester, of Wilmington, Del.

Reinstatements included: Jack Hennessey, Philadelphia manager; Battling Gizzy, Pittsburgh boxer; Anthony Keysock, Frackville boxer; Ken Hargreaves, New Kensington boxer, and Louis Pipola, a second, of Hoboken, N. J.

The commissioners also concurred with the New York commissioners in suspending indefinitely Kid Chocolate, Frankie Garcia and Eddie Provos, all boxers.

Rosies May Play Exhibition for Boys, Girls

During the stay here of the world champion Rosenblums, of Cleveland, when they will play an American League game, it is likely they will appear in a special afternoon exhibition contest for the benefit of grade and high school boys and girls who like basketball.

If present plans materialize, boys and girls will be admitted at a reasonable admission fee to the game, which will be staged in one of the leading gyms here. The American League game will be played here on March 13, and it is likely the special game will be played on the following afternoon.

BOBBY JONES SCORES 70

SAVANNA, Ga., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—More than two-score professional and amateur golfers, led by Bobby Jones, National open champion, took a practice swing around the Country Club course here yesterday in preparation for the 72-hole $3,000 open tournament starting today.

The Atlanta lawyer-golfer, playing his first tournament round of the 1930 campaign, stroked his way over the difficult par 74 layout in 70, four under standard figures. However, Bobby required two strokes more than did Horton Smith, of Detroit, and Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who were members of a fivesome which also included Al Espinosa, veteran Chicago pro, and Dr. C. P. Holton, Savannah amateur entry.

Dudley and Smith, paired together against Jones and Espinosa, collected birdies all over the premises to post scores of 68 each. Espinosa had a 72, while Holton shot a 78.

MUTE COPS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Fred (Dummy) Mahan, deaf mute welterweight from Tombstone, Ariz., knocked out Arizona Joe Rivers, of Phoenix, in the third round here last night.

ROSIES HAVE OPEN DATE

The Cleveland Rosenblums, who will be in this section the week of March 2, have one open date between March 2 and 8, which they would like to fill with an out-of-town team today. Managers call J. J. Freund, Jr., Lafayette 6297.

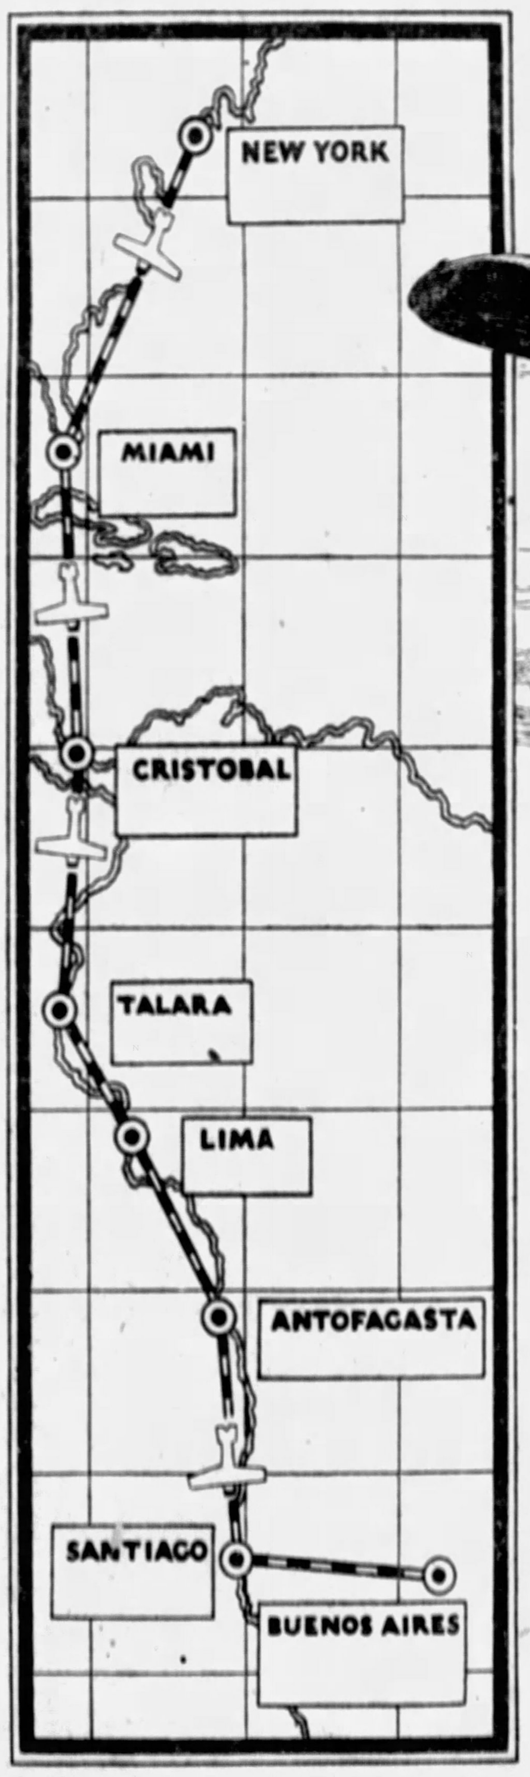
7000 MILES OVER LAND, SEA AND MOUNTAIN PEAKS ON "STANDARD" PRODUCTS ... IN RECORD TIME



Out of the freezing, early morning mists of the Metropolitan Airport, at Newark, N. J., rises a great white bird—a stream-lined Lockheed Vega. It has already flown more than 50,000 miles over two continents, and is off to span a third. Lieutenants White and McMullen have started for Buenos Aires; 7000 miles distant—18 days by the fastest steamship. Eight hours and a half later they land for STANDARD gas and oil in the semi-tropic city of Miami, with a new record for speed. Off the next morning for Panama. Not a landing field anywhere on the 1400 mile hop to the Canal. For the first time a plane makes a non-stop flight from Florida to the Canal. Safely they take off, the next day, from Cristobal for Peru, thence to Chile, and finally the perilous passage, 20,000 feet in the air, over the Andes to Buenos Aires. Not a miss in the motor over the full route. Perfect fuel and perfect lubrication.

"Standard" has helped break many records. From the first flight, when the Wright Brothers used "Standard" Gasoline to power their fragile plane, aviators have depended on "Standard."

sprawled. Young Edward, whom she had just nursed, lay on her knees, bringing shy, gentle sounds from his throat. Hearing the faint cooing and evidently surprised to find himself a maker of noise, his eyes and his lips became fairly rapturous with smiles.

Mary listened, as though some beatific symphony opened to her ears. "Do you think he's getting pretty, Chickie? Listen—that's a new one."

Chickie knelt on the linoleum, the little satiny fingers twined on her thumb. When the baby, after a prolonged gurgle, gave her a startled, inquiring look, as though it said, "Ha, ha! Did you get that? I did it!" she burst out laughing.

"He's going to look like Jimmy, Mary."

"Do you think so? I think he's like Edward. I want him to be like Edward."

"Why?"

"It's nice for a son to follow in his father's steps."

Chickie seized this eagerly. She asked her first question. "Do you think that Mrs. Blake? Do you believe a father and mother should decide a child's whole life? Just because they happen to bring us here have they the right to tell us how we should think and feel and act?"

"If I'm any example, Chickie, it's the children that tell the parents where to head in."

"Yes! Maybe! But you take Jonathan—he thinks I ought to be the very same kind of a girl mother was. Stay at home night after night—be perfectly content to work and eat and sleep and never see any of the exciting things at all. He wouldn't ask me to wear a hoopskirt or a bustle, but he expects me to take all those old ideas and just transport myself to the last century. Is that fair?"

"Poor Jonathan! Don't you see, Chickie, that it's only because he knows the old road was safe and led to a sure goal. How can the poor man know where the paths a girl takes today are going to twist? They run blind through a wilderness. Whether there's a land of milk and honey beyond no one yet may say."

"Oh—you think we're as bad as all that?"

"Not bad—but terribly uncertain. Don't be too hard on Jonathan."

"But just the same, I think he ought to be satisfied with one life. Why should he expect to live two—his own and mine? And, anyway, I don't think so much of the old days."

"No? Why?"

"Well—well, do you know that Jennie never kissed a man but Jonathan—and not till she was engaged, and then only once in a while? Do you think there's any harm in a kiss?"

Martha laughed. "That depends so much on who gives it and who takes it, and whether it's returned and taken again. You see, a kiss has such a way of weaving itself into an endless chain."

"I don't mean that kind. I mean just one single kiss."

"That's an extinct variety, Chickie. It went out of existence with the lavender and old lace of your mother's day. The trouble with a kiss is this: It isn't a finality, but a prelude. A faint, sweet note that may at any moment and unaware melt into the crash of terrific and sweeping music. If you want to hear that, all right. But if you don't, why listen at all?"

"I suppose, then, you'd say a girl ought never at all to kiss any one?"

"I'd say that, but I know no girl would heed it." Martha looked into Chickie's flushed, eager face. Her own saddened a little. "So I'd say instead, there's no harm at all in one kiss, unless it leads to two. There's not much harm in two unless they lead to three. At three—stop!"

Chickie laughed and, going over, put her arm around Martha's ample waist. "Now that's settled I want to know something else. Did you ever hear of the 'Blessed Damozel'?"

Martha, sweeping the gold hair from Chickie's neck, smiled. "Is this what he called you, Chickie?"

The blessed damozel leaned out
From the gold bar of heaven.
Her eyes were deeper than the depth
Of water stilled at even.
She had three lilies in here hand
And the stars in her hair were seven.

"Don't you know that, Chickie? You must have studied it at school. Now wait. I used to know it all."

"Oh!" Chickie cried rapturously. "Can't you remember the rest?" To herself came the swift thought: Poetry! He must be a highbrow.

Young Tommy just then dashed through the kitchen, grabbed a handful of sandwiches on the fly. He was ordered to halt.

"Would you mind, Tommy, dear,—that old green book from my table."

"Gee whiz, ma! Feller can't come near this house without having to do something. Gee whiz—criminee!"

Before Martha could reach him he went flying up the stairs, came back, grinning, giving her the book.

Her rich voice brought forth glowing the pictures and the passions of the beautiful lines. Chickie listened with a ripple in her heart.

She took the tattered old green volume. "Lend it to me? Rosetti—is he a very great poet?"

"Perhaps not very great, for he didn't seem to know that beauty is only beautiful when its hearth is truth. But he's often very exquisite. Read the ones that are marked."

Mary went down the garden walk with Chickie, whispering excitedly: "I knew it, Chickie! You fell for him? He's wild about you?"

"Who?"

"Oh, who, your eye! Jake Munson, of course!"

Chickie smiled sweetly. "No, Mary, old love, not Jake Munson." When Mary heard the new name and heard a little else she shook her head wisely: "What did I tell you—settled down like me in less than a year! I see it plain as day."

"Like the deuce you do! I'll have a few years of freedom first."

Chickie meant it. She felt as though a wondrous gate were swinging wide inviting her into some joyous garden. She meant to enter, to loiter blithely along the happy paths.

As soon as she was on the sidewalk she stopped short—a sudden clutch at her heart. A little roadster was at her door. He had come—already—without phoning. He was in the living room now. Jonathan was talking to him.

She was half afraid to go into the house.

BANKERS WANT AMOS AND ANDY

Amos and Andy, comedians of radio fame, will be presented through the loud speakers at the annual banquet of Group Eight, Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, composed of Western Pennsylvania bankers, which will be held Friday night in the William Penn Hotel.

So many of those expected to attend the banquet were reluctant to give up listening to Amos and Andy that night. For that reason arrangements were made to have the apparatus installed in the banquet hall to receive the broadcast. G. E. Benson, vice president of the Union Trust Company, is chairman of the group, and Elias Ritts, vice president of the Butler County National Bank, is vice chairman.

Mont Pelee Active, Shipping Diverted

NEW YORK, Feb. 20. (INS.)—Mont Pelee, on the island of Martinique, has been in such violent eruption that vessels are not being permitted to dock at Saint Pierre, the city destroyed by the volcano in 1902. That was the report brought here today by Capt. Conrad Luck, of the Hamburg-American liner Reliance. He said the French government was diverting all ships to Ford-de-France, a port on the other side of the island.

O'Connor to Retire As Ship Board Chief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. (AP.)—Chairman O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, today requested President Hoover to replace him as head of that government agency, but said that he would retain his membership on the board.

O'Connor said his health made it necessary for him to be relieved of the chairmanship. He said, however, that he felt that he could perform the duties of a commissioner if someone else took the chairmanship.

Flogging of Student Under Investigation

MARTINS FERRY, O., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—James F. Clark, probation officer, was investigating the beating of Albert Davies, 17, high school student, by five fellow-students on Tuesday night. Davies was said to have been taken to a distant part of the county, stripped and lashed.

Clark said he had obtained little information from Davies and that he would question the others alleged to have been involved.

If You Are Sickly, Thin-Blooded, Rundown or Underweight—

you need not take fishy liquid cod liver oil to obtain cod liver oil's greatest benefits

It is now a well-known fact that cod liver oil is by far the richest natural source of the body-building vitamin A and and the "sunshine" vitamin D, the vitamin of growth, energy, strength and vigorous health. Yet it is unfortunately true that the disagreeable fishy odor and taste and the oily greasiness of liquid cod liver oil keep countless men, women and children from taking it long and regularly enough to assure complete and lasting benefit.

A Remarkable Scientific Discovery

All men, women and children, who in appearance and action show how badly they need the health-restoring and body-building value of these vitamins, should be glad to learn that McCoy's Laboratories, Inc., of New York City, have perfected a method of extracting the vitamins from cod liver oil's liquid waste and putting them full strength and volume into tablets, without odor or taste, pleasant to take and easy to digest and assimilate.

Two of these wonderful vitamin rich tablets, called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, are equal to one teaspoonful of the pure, vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made. Their only ingredient is the pure extract of super-refined cod liver oil. They positively contain no harmful or habit-forming drugs, no inert medicines, no temporary "pick-me-ups."

Thrive on Internal Sunshine

Taking McCoy's Tablets regularly every day is like lying on the beach in your bathing suit day in and day out, letting the healing sunshine soak into your pores. They will just fill that weak, run-down system of yours with sunhealth, energy and vigor, also with wonderful vitamin A.

For any sick, anemic, run-down or underweight condition for which cod liver oil is known to be beneficial, you will find it just as safe, just as beneficial and far more pleasant to take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets. Instead 60 tablets, 60 cents at any drug store.

INDICT 2 MEN IN STOCK FRAUD

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Announcement of the indictment of B. Warren Jackson, Detroit, and Harry Friedman and Joseph Somers, both of New York, on charges of violating the Ohio "blue-sky," or securities protection act, was made here by A. W. Geissinger, chief of the state division of securities.

The indictments, returned by the Guernsey County Grand Jury, alleged that these three men were involved in a fake stock deal in which Dr. G. C. Taylor, of Cambridge, O., was swindled out of $80,000.

Jack E. Nida, attorney-examiner, for the State Securities Department, who is prosecuting the case against the three men, charged that, as a result of alleged fraudulent market bulletins, said to have been issued by Friedman and Somers, Dr. Taylor purchased stock from them and from Jackson.

Taylor bought 6,000 shares of stock in the Consolidated Electrical Industries, Ind., of Detroit, at prices ranging from $12 to $14 a share, according to Nida.

Declaring the company is bankrupt, state officials expressed apprehension lest Taylor will be unable to recover his losses.

SCREAMED WITH PAIN

Sharp, Jagged Gall Stones Tear Through Delicate Tissues, Causing Excruciating Agony.

"Gall Stone trouble comes on a person gradually," writes Mrs. John Zoro, of Clairton, Pa. "When I had my first attacks I thought it was just ordinary stomach ache, from having eaten something that disagreed with me. But as time went on and the spells of pain came more and more often, they lasted longer, and the agony was more and more terrible each time. When I had these attacks I had to use hot water bags, which gave me very little relief. I also had to take physics every night to get my bowels to act.

I have borne eight children, but I never at any time suffered such horrible pain as I had to undergo from these attacks. I would scream with agony for hours, and sometimes I would faint dead away.

"Finally the doctor explained to me that sharp cornered stones had formed in my gall bladder. He said that Nature tried to get rid of these stones by forcing them out through a little tube no bigger than a pencil, called the gall duct. The sharp jagged stones tear these delicate tissues, and that is what makes the horrible pain of these attacks. No medicine seemed of any help to me. So, when the doctor recommended an operation, I was so desperate that I almost yielded—even though the doctor himself admitted that many gall stone operations are not always successful and leave the patient weaker than before.

About this time I heard from a friend of the wonderful relief she had from a case just like mine by using a new medicine called World's Tonic, which is made from plants gathered from different parts of the world. I determined to try one bottle. I noticed good results from the first. My whole system felt cleaned and refreshed. I continued using World's Tonic and in a short time I entirely recovered my health. For the past eighteen months I have not had one single Gall Stone attack. I give the entire credit to World's Tonic. I give, too, my humble thanks to the scientists who have discovered this wonderful new remedy."

World's Tonic is for sale at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and other modern drug stores. (A-55)

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

THAT night Lovejoy discharged Norrie Shane. It gave her a certain keen but bitter pleasure to tell Norrie that she could pack up and leave just as soon as she felt like it—and the sooner she went the better.

"I suppose Tom has told you," she said, handing Norrie her week's wages, "that we're breaking up housekeeping."

Norrie shook her brown head, looking down at the folded bills in her hand.

"I didn't know about it," she said quietly. "Of course, I knew that Tom had been up against it lately. But, Lovejoy, I don't need this money. You keep it and pay me later—and let me stay on for a week to help you with the baby. I'd love to do it."

Lovejoy wouldn't hear of that. "No. I'm going to take the baby over to Aunt Emma in the morning," she answered firmly. "You can stay until then if you want to. But after that I'll have no use for you."

In the morning Norrie bathed the baby in his little tub for the last time. For the last time she put him into his blue-green high chair and fed him his cereal and his orange juice.

And after breakfast she telephoned for a cab and took him and her flat steamer trunk to Bullard Street.

Tom followed them a little later with the blue-green high chair, the little bed with ducks and chickens painted upon its head-board, and the small leather trunk that held all of Tommy's little dresses and bibs and rompers.

He was quite cheerful when he came back to the house at 6 that night.

"The baby's all settled with Aunt Em," he told Lovejoy, "and Norrie says she has a new job all waiting for her."

Lovejoy flashed him a sarcastic smile.

"Well, I'm so glad everything is fine with darling Norrie!" she said with mock enthusiasm. "Because it would just kill me to know that you were worrying about her!"

Tom said nothing.

Returns Furnishings

"I've been packing up all the silver and the china and the little jade trees," Lovejoy told him. "I telephoned the shop where I bought them and told them that we simply couldn't pay for them—and they couldn't do anything but take them all back. Luckily, the silver hasn't been marked."

The dining room table was loaded with pasteboard boxes, on the floor was the great wooden box in which the dishes were carefully packed.

"It's too bad we can't send back all the curtains and the furniture, too," she went on, "but we can't—because they've been used—and they show it."

Her voice broke for an instant. Then she set her teeth, lifted her chin and finished what she had to say.

"I think the best thing we can do is to sell the rugs and the furniture and the curtains, don't you?" she asked. "They ought to bring quite a lot of money, and you can use it to pay off some more of the bills. It will help quite a lot."

Tom nodded his head.

"That's a good idea," he said absently. "You take care of it, will you?—I'm going to start work tomorrow with the Algonquin-Jones Company, and I'll be busy."

Lovejoy knew that the Algonquin-Jones Company was a well-known bond house downtown. She brightened up at Tom's news.

It didn't take you long to find another position, did it?" she asked. "Tom," I'm so glad—I've hated to see you down-in-the-mouth and discouraged, lately.".

'Friends' Out of Sight

"I'm not exactly sitting on top of the world now," he replied with a wry smile. "They're starting me off on fifty a week—and that's just a drop in the bucket with all these debts of mine. Got anything to eat in the house?"

Lovejoy went out into the kitchen and he followed her.

The ice-box was almost empty.

But on the top shelf of the kitchen cupboard—her "emergency shelf," Lovejoy called it—was a big can of Russian caviar. Beside it was a jar of pate de fois gras. Then there were two glasses of wine jelly, a glass jar of pickled walnuts and a round wooden box filled with Camembert cheese.

"There's nothing here but junk," said Lovejoy. "A lot of stuff that I bought in case any of the crowd should drop in unexpectedly for a drink or a game of cards."

Tom, standing in the doorway, turned and looked over his shoulder. Beyond him Lovejoy could see the dining room with its silk curtains and its brocaded chairs, with its littered table and its expensive blue rug.

"The whole house is full of junk," he said bitterly. "Junk that we bought for the benefit of all these people we've been running with. These fair-weather friends of ours who dropped us like hot-cakes when they thought we might want to borrow some money from them."

It was true. Neither the Aldersons nor the Goodsells had come near the house since they had heard that Tom had lost his job. Aline had not even telephoned to find out whether she had any South Port letters there or not.

Big Earnings Gone

"They just think we'd rather not see them," said Lovejoy loyally, "because of Uncle James' death and everything."

But Tom was not to be fooled.

"Al Alderson thinks I might ask him for a job," he declared. "I heard that he said I drank too much. But most of the drinking I've done has been done right in his own office and in his house."

He clapped his hat on his head.

"You'd better go to Aunt Em's for dinner," he said. "I'll pick up a bite to eat somewhere. But I'm coming back here to sleep until you sell the furniture. The rent is paid to the end of the month."

He started for the back yard and then came back into the kitchen for a minute.

"I've made almost six thousand dollars this year," he said crisply, "and it's all gone—all gone on a lot of gim-crack furniture and a few cases of liquor and a load of other stuff that we didn't need. And we could have bought the house in Stallings Lane with that money!"

Lovejoy smiled. "Don't forget Norrie's wages!" she said mockingly. "Don't forget the money we paid her, old boy!—But I suppose the thought of that doesn't bother you! It was such a joy to have her in the house!"

He went out, slamming the door upon her words.

That night Steve Oglebay took Lovejoy to dinner at his sister's house.

She had been divorced two or three years before, and now she lived alone in a beautiful little house in Park lane. Her name was Sheila Nettles. She was about thirty years old and she gave a great many parties.

Steve's Sister

But she was all alone in the big shadowy living room of her house that night when Steve and Lovejoy ran up the steps at ten minutes to eight.

She did not get up from her long chair to welcome them. She simply took her cigaret from between her lips, said "Hello" and then put it back again.

"Isn't it cool in this room!" exclaimed Lovejoy, who had been packing boxes of dishes all day in the hot sunny dining room at home.

"I thought we'd have dinner right here," Sheila said lazily, "in front of these windows."

There were three long windows in the west wall of the house. They all stood open to a tiny square of green lawn edged with dwarf evergreens, and their curtains billowed in and out with the evening breeze.

"It's never too hot for a cocktail, is it?" she asked next, as the door opened and a small, neat maid brought in a tray of little thin-stemmed glasses and a plate of appetizers.

Lovejoy took one and drank it quickly. During the last few months she had learned to like cocktails. They "picked her up." They put a gilt edge on life, somehow, she often told herself.

They had that "gilt edge" effect on this particular night. By the time she had drunk three of them she had lost the tired, depressed feeling of the day.

She began to feel that everything in life was all right.... She was losing a husband for whom she no longer cared. She had put her baby into Aunt Em's safe, kind hands. And she was here with the man she was going to marry—

She looked at Steve.

She always had liked to look at him. She liked the cut of his nose and his lips and chin. She liked his blue eyes that looked narrow because they were set so deep. She liked his smile and his quick, nervous hands.

I shall never think of Tom when I'm with him, she said to herself. I shall forget Tom.

A silvery-chiming clock somewhere in the house struck eight round slow notes. . . . And she found herself wondering if Tom had come back to the house that had been their house. She wondered if he was reading himself to sleep as he usually did.

"Sheila got her divorce in Minden," Steve was saying to her. "She can tell you the name of her lawyer and the name of the best hotel there."

WHERE IS THE GIRL OF YESTERYEAR? -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"WHERE are the snows of yesteryear?" The snows that drifted in the doorways of medieval France; that drifted in the roads of the coaching days of Washington. "Father of His Country?" Where are the snows of your little girlhood? And mine? That diamond-glittering snow that shone like a fairy-field, and of which is no snow like it any more? Where the girls of yesteryear—and the strolling lovers, the roses that nodded in lover's gardens and in the hair of old-fashioned girls?

The girl of yesteryear—that's where the astonishing youngster is gone, along with the snows and roses that are dew and dust—and nothing at all.

And don't you like the girl of this year better? Modern Adam says HE does.

Anxiety Over Brixtons News Is Relieved

AT Mary Harrison's fiery defense of Marion's letter with her accompanying wail that she would give her eyes for a party but never had had one in her life, we all forgot Lillian's dilemma and focused our startled attention upon Dicky's lovely young niece whose stormy eyes and mutinous mouth were even more eloquent than her words.

Her statement was true. I realized, as my conscience stirred uncomfortably. But my common sense told me that since Mary's aunt, Mrs. Braithwaite, Dicky's sister, had agreed to letting the girl make her home with us while she was studying under Philip Veritzen, Mary's strenuous routine of work had not allowed for either companions or social gayeties. I knew, however, that though Mary was in reality little older than Marion we had treated her as though she were a "grown-up." Unconsciously, I knew, we had been influenced by her harmless escapade at school, and her more serious one as the masked dancer in the cabaret. Her pretended engagement to Prince Georges, and her real betrothal to Noel also had helped in our view of her as a mature young woman instead of a schoolgirl.

"That condition shall be remedied at once," Dicky broke our uncomfortable silence with the promise, jocularly worded, but, I knew, none the less sincere.

"Indeed it shall, Mary," I added, and scored myself for thoughtlessness an instant later as I saw her frantically trying to wink back tears.

Harry Underwood saved the situation as only he could.

"That's a mighty rash promise, Lady Fair," he drawled, his tone and manner an effectual corrective to sentiment or sentimentality. "How do you know what kind of party one of these here modern girls would want to throw? You can bet I wouldn't promise one of 'em a party unless I could give the once and twice over to every name on the invited list. The smart young set seems to be running to bootleggers and second-story men as household pets these days. Look at the papers if you don't believe me. I ask you, I beg of you, just look at the papers."

Mary giggled a bit hysterically, and Lillian completed the salvage her husband had begun.

"Marion's next paragraph comes in very pat right here," she said, and resumed her reading.

"'I'm wondering, Mummy, about something, but I hate to ask you about it. Will you promise me that if it isn't convenient, or if it costs too much, you won't do it?' But if it's all right, do you suppose I could sling a party during the Christmas holidays? It would be so marvelous if I could.'"

Lillian stopped abruptly and folded the sheet. Her lips were smiling and her eyes were tender as if the appeal of her young daughter's letter had fortified her against the fear which the news her letter contained had given her. There was even a mirthful twinkle in her eyes as she looked over at us.

"Everything with Marion is 'marvelous,' or 'wonderful' or 'adorable,' she said. "I wonder what the younger set would do if those three adjectives should suddenly vanish from their vocabulary."

"Become tongue-tied, probably," her husband suggested hopefully. "Do I gather that you and I sling a 'wonderful,' 'marvelous' and 'adorable' party for the two young women of the Graham and Underwood households? I hope so, for I have some ideas as to entertaining which I heretofore have been thwarted in using. This will give me my opportunity."

"The ideas will probably give the young women heart failure," Dicky drawled. "It's lucky, Lil, that you have me to fall back on. I hereby promise you my aid, artistic, financial, physical, mental and moral, for any party you engineer."

"Nail him on the financial thing, Lil.", her husband urged hurriedly. "Physical? Well! there probably will be furniture to shift and greens to cart. But as for all those other counts, old dear, you depend upon somebody more stable than the Dicky-bird."

"You for instance, I suppose," Dicky declared truculently, and I realized that the two men were deliberately staging one of their mock quarrels in an attempt to lessen the nervous tension which Lillian's fears and Mary's outburst had engendered.

They succeeded beyond their own expectations, I think, for when they had finished their wrangling, Lillian stood up, her letters folded in her hands.

"Do you know, I think I've overestimated the importance of this thing. After all, it's a most natural thing that the Brixtons should move down here to be near the children for the next four years. They were a thousand miles away from them where they were. Suppose I were that far from Marion! I couldn't stand it. Of course Helena feels the same way. I'm going to stop worrying about it. And, there's really no use in inflicting Helena's letter upon you."

"That's admitted," her husband said with a grin, "but I'll bet my last collar button that Lady Fair here lamps it before the evening's over."

"Regular sixty to one chance you're taking, aren't you?" Lillian gibed. "I'll relieve your suspense. Your collar buttons safe."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, February 21.

AN eventful and memorable day is the augury based on the lunar and mutual aspects. It is probable that an important change may follow the breaking up of congestions, offering fresh opportunity and inciting to adventure and enterprise. But withal, coolness and discretion are admonished, especially as to duplicity or fraud.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very eventful year, with change and excellent new opportunities for adventure and enterprise. But be calm and discreet in all matters.

A child born on this day should be ingenious, enterprising and industrious.

Frozen Meat

Frozen meat can be distinguished from home-killed by its cold, hard touch. After it has been thawing for some time it takes on a parboiled appearance and begins to ooze—a thing never found with home-killed meat. The fat is generally deadly white and very different in appearance from that of unfrozen meat, and the flesh has a more uniform pinkishness owing to the diffusion of the coloring matter of the blood.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER XVI.

DULCY came up the stairs two at a time with the speed of a happy child and the grace of a dancer.

Forbes glared at her. If there was one thing that he hated, it was a person who was always jumping around and laughing.

"Oh, Mr. Forbes," she cried out in disappointment, "you haven't been looking. And you are so close, too. The clues are all around you."

Forbes looked around malevolently as if he expected to see a pack of angry dogs snapping at him.

"Didn't you even notice this feather here on the floor? And match it with the feather I gave you for a clue? Why when I put these clues down I said to myself, 'This is much too simple for a smart man like Mr. Forbes. He'll go direct to the hidden treasure and the game will be over in a minute.' I never dreamed that you would be really baffled by our little game."

Forbes was growing restive. He shuffled his feet about anxiously, and watched for a chance to interrupt.

"We've played baffle lots of times with much harder clues than this, and the stupidest people have followed them without any trouble. I'm surprised at you."

Keeps Talking

She chattered on in a gay, bantering tone, quite unnoticing Forbes gathering fury.

"Just the other night we had such fun. We hid the cocktail shaker in the soiled-linen hamper in the closet off the butler's pantry—or was it in the laundry room? Oh, well, I don't remember exactly. But anyway, we had clues leading to false trails all over the house. Corkscrews and ice picks and lemon squeezers and just everything. It was so complicated—it was just like one of those cobweb games where you follow a string wherever it leads and have to go all over the house before you find a prize. And that reminds me—"

But Forbes could stand no more.

"Are you going to stand there talking all night? Or are you going to show me where my daughter's pearls are?" he blurted out angrily.

"Why, Mr. Forbes!" For a moment Dulcy was crushed, but her high spirits soon bounced back again.

"I was sort of holding up the game, wasn't I?" she asked brightly. "Now look here—"

As she walked along the hall she picked up one feather and displayed it to him triumphantly, then another, and on the threshold of her bedroom door another.

Poor Detective

"See how simple it is?" she asked, but a surly grunt was her only answer.

"I'm afraid you are a very poor detective, Mr. Forbes."

Now that they were in her room he had vainly hoped that she was going to produce the pearls from their hiding place and let him go. But Dulcy just couldn't let the moment pass without a few observations.

"I always say that you never know how hard the other man's job is until you try it. Now if we had hidden anything but jewelry, I wouldn't have expected you to be terribly anxious. But when it was your own daughter's pearls I thought you would really take an interest in finding them. Don't you ever have any stock disappear in your business?" she asked earnestly, leaning comfortably back against the door and settling down for a good long talk.

"No!" he bellowed, "Where are—"

But he could get no further.

"I think that is marvelous," Dulcy cooed. "With all the things and people you have around too. I always say that I would lose my head if it wasn't fastened on."

Demands Pearls

"Where are Angela's pearls?" Forbes demanded, too weak and exhausted to say more.

"Oh, right here," Dulcy told him brightly, as though that were the first time the subject had come up. "You see, here is the dress trimmed with ostrich feathers just like the clues, and here is a box right under it.

"Now you will see what a good detective I am. By power of reduction and process of illumination I know the necklace is in that box. See?"

Forbes pushed her aside roughly, and burrowing through the accumulation of ribbons and lace brought up an old bedroom slipper.

"Look inside," Dulcy counselled.

He did, thoroughly, announcing in an ominous tone, "They're not there!"

"Oh, but they must be," she insisted.

Consternation reigned while Dulcy flung the contents of the box on the floor and fished through every particle. The pearls were not to be found. Forbes was stamping around in incoherent rage. Her idea of a joke most likely!

"Oh, I remember now."

Dulcy spoke slowly, earnestly, as though a great light had just dawned on her.

"I saw the butler come up here just as I was going out. I told him not to dare to pick up the clues—"

"Yes—yes—" Forbes urged her on impatiently.

"And oh! I trusted him. But it is just as clear as day. You see he is an ex-convict. I got the judge to parole him because I always say that as long as we trust a man he will be worthy of—"

Butler Escapes

"You mean to tell me—" Forbes shot the words at her. "That you have an ex-convict in the house and you play a silly game with my daughter's pearls! That you even saw him coming up here and you cleared the way for him!"

Dulcy was gloating over her powers of deduction.

"Yes, I am sure I am right. It's no use looking any further for them," she assured him. "It's just as plain as day."

The snort of an engine starting outside startled them, and Forbes rushed to the window, followed closely by Dulcy. In the darkness they could just make out a auto starting out of the garage. There went Perkins, and the pearls, no doubt, were with him.

Dulcy was right at his heels as he fled for the stairs.

"And he told me he had reformed."

"I don't care what he told you," Forbes shouted, as he fairly tumbled down the stairs. "All I care about is catching him. I'm going to chase him in my car."

Dulcy leaned weakly against the balustrade, furrowing her pretty brow. Suddenly she realized that there was another surprise in store for Forbes. Not only were the pearls gone, but by this time his car was gone, too. And his daughter!

She wondered how he would feel when he found that out.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Marriage Announcements

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister is going to be married this month and I told her to send out her marriage announcements about a month before the wedding, but she thought I was wrong and that they should be sent only two weeks before. Which is correct?

MRS. R.

BOTH you and your sister are using the word "announcement" in the sense, in which one should use the word "invitation." That is, an invitation, which requests one's company at the wedding ceremony, is sent about three weeks before the date set for the ceremony.

On the other hand, the wedding announcement is mailed as soon as possible after the ceremony has been performed. That is, the announcement is not sent until the news of the ceremony can be announced.

The invitation for a formal wedding (a formally engraved invitation, that is) is usually sent about three weeks before the date set for the wedding. If the wedding is to be an informal one, for which informal, written notes are sent as invitations, usually these are mailed about two weeks before the wedding.

Discussing Engagement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young lady is with her mother and she shows her ring and tells of her engagement, besides wishing the girl happiness, is it proper to congratulate the girl's mother also?

L. E. G.

WE would not exactly congratulate the girl's mother, but it would be natural and correct to say something to the mother about the good news of the girl's engagement, and of your wish that she will be most happy. The girl's mother will like to hear that you think that she has a fine daughter, and that her daughter deserves every happiness.

Rings

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly advise us if it is correct to wear a diamond engagement ring with a diamond wedding ring? We have had some discussion concerning this and would like to have your help in the matter.

M. H. and L.

YES, it is correct to wear the rings together.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Overcome the Handicap of Defects

IT IS a sad fact that many little children suffer from deformities of one kind and another. They are of a more or less serious nature, of course. But it is our duty to find preventive measures and the public must be educated to the possibilities of lessening the large numbers of cripples in our midst.

DR. COPELAND

Much can be done and is being done to help these unfortunates. The most important work lies in preventing deformities among children.

Hospitals are built for crippled children and are doing a wonderful work in overcoming deformities. A list of the measures used in this line of work shows the wonderful advance science has made for the benefit of the cripple.

There are several classes of crippled children:

First, there are the children who are born with some deformity. This may be a club-foot or hand. It may be a hare-lip or cleft palate. It may be a dislocation of a bone.

If these defects can be taken at once after birth, in a large majority of cases they are easily corrected. Every mother of a little crippled child should know this.

Another cause of children's deformities is rickets. This is a disease caused by undernourishment. The child has insufficient lime in his food to supply the bones. He may not be getting enough sunlight to excite the physical machinery that supplies the lime.

Tuberculosis of the bone is another cause for deformities in children. It, too, is associated with lack of sunshine and is promoted by unhygienic living.

Milk from tubercular cows will carry this disease to the human being. Either pasteurized or certified milk should be given children. Good food and sunshine go far towards the prevention of this disease.

Infantile paralysis adds to the crippled list. About 40 per cent come from this cause. Deformity from this disease can be prevented or greatly lessened if taken in time. Rest, good food and the best of care are needed.

Accidents to children of school age are increasing at an alarming rate. Safety-first principles are being taught everywhere. Heed must be given to all preventive measures to save children from accident and death, from bodily suffering and mental anguish.

Companies Show Great Gain in Stockholders

By B. C. FORBES

HEADS of 56 leading industrial, utility and railway corporations have supplied the writer with the total number of stockholders now on their books and comparisons with a year ago.

Analysis brings out that, instead of the stock market panic having resulted in a drastic decline in the number of Americans owning shares, there has been an extraordinary increase in industrial and utility stockholders, also a modest gain in railway stockholders.

For every three industrial stock owners a year ago, there are now five, and for every two utility stockholders there are now three.

THE official records reveal that utility companies have made more progress than others in obtaining very wide distribution of their securities. The compilation contains six utilities having more than 100,000 stockholders each, whereas only one industrial (General Motors) and one railroad (Pennsylvania) have more than that round total.

However, the percentage of gain by industrial companies during the last twelve months has been distinctly greater than that by utilities. The split-up of industrial stocks into units of smaller value was mainly responsible for the extraordinary addition of 67.3 per cent to the stockholders' lists.

Thus, General Motors jumped from 71,185 at the end of 1928 to 225,000 at the end of last year, a difference of 216 per cent. Packard stockholders multiplied from 8,235 to 60,000, more than a 600 per cent increase.

Woolworth, another split-up stock, more than doubled its number of owners, while Radio owners increased 83 per cent. The most notable increase of all was that of 553 per cent in Montgomery Ward, without any split-up—although there are "rights" and the market value of the shares fell drastically, from a high of $156 to $42 a share.

TRUST COMPANY POPULARITY GROWING

Business of Caring for Estates Makes Huge Leap in Last 2 Years

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—A veteran officer in the merchant marine, who has had a happy, though not a financially profitable life, recently remarked to me that he is glad that he is free from the burden of taking care of the burden of a million dollars.

Many impecunious folk take solace in this freedom from care, but recent changes in banking service are gradually removing this reason for satisfaction. Trust companies, whose officers are holding their eleventh midwinter conference in New York this week, relieve owners of all the care and responsibility and worry in connection with the management of estates. Now that estates have become tied up chiefly in intangibles the modern lord of the manor can delegate to others the burdens of management. If a wealthy man desires to set up a trust fund for his unwise son, he can be assured that the fool and his money will not be separated.

Whether or not it is socially desirable to protect ill-equipped rich heirs from suffering the consequences of their own mental frailties is perhaps an academic question. The objective fact is that the wealthier segment of the American public is each year making a greater use of the facilities of fiduciary institutions, which supply financial brains for those who do not posses them in their own right. Of course, trust companies also render useful service in acting as financial secretaries of busy and competent individuals, who desire to be relieved of the tedium of coupon clipping and estate management.

TRUST IDEA GROWS

As an index of the tendency of trust services to become more fashionable, Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, pointed out: "It was found that banks and trust companies had been appointed executor or trustee under wills 60,036 times during 1929. The rapidity with which the trust idea is spreading becomes increasingly evident when these figures are compared with the two previous years. In two years time the number has more than doubled—for in 1927 the total was 29,814. The increase for one year is 35 per cent—for the 1928 total was 44,375.

"Moreover, in a single year banks and trust companies were named executor or trustee for an aggregate of well over one billion dollars of estates, each of $1,000,000 or better, and the increase in 1929 in the value of estates created in this class was approaching half a billion dollars."

According to Joseph S. McCoy, United States government actuary, New Yorkers are the most insured people in the country. He reasons that the high cost of living in the metropolis necessitates living up to one's total income, more or less, especially on the part of salaried folk. The typical New Yorker then provides for his dependents with insurance.

As Mr. McCoy puts it: "To save their dependents from being entirely destitute in case of their death, life insurance is imperative. Others, with income from property or investments, do not require insurance to such an extent."

TAKE QUICK PROFITS

Irrespective of the policy of wise and farsighted financiers, amateur operators in the stock market are more disposed to take trading profits on rallies than they were before the Wall street debacle. In the new era period, it was fashionable to say "never sell good stocks." Moreover, for tax reasons, men of large wealth were tempted to follow such a policy. Such artificial limitation of the supply of stocks contributed to the exaggerated advance of selected issues. Correct policy for an individual depends on his resources and his objectives. Outright owners who have chosen well, in the long run tend to get better results than in and out traders, unless the latter are exceptionally nimble. But the marginal speculator, who has gone into debt to buy stocks, is in a more vulnerable position, and frequently is unable to wait philosophically for the long pull.

The public utility enterprises of the country are doing what they can to contribute to general business recovery. Total expenditures for new construction for the first quarter of 1930 will reach $198,000,000, an increase of 16 per cent over spendings in the first three months of 1929. For the whole of the current years orders for equipment and materials will total $465,000,000 and expenditures for new construction $400,000,000. Big business, which has moved increasingly into the saddle, is showing a flair for stabilizing conditions by avoiding running to cover under the fright of temporary trade recession.

Half Billion Treasury Financing Expected About Mid-March

THE Treasury will have to finance maturities of slightly more than $500,000,000 in mid-March. Part of this financing already has been done and it is expected that the remainder will be provided for partly by an issue of Treasury certificates and partly by further offering of discount bills. Although it would not be necessary to offer the bills coincident with the offering of certificates. Bids for the recent bill offering and current yield on government paper indicate that the interest rates on the certificates will be around 3½ per cent. The certificates maturing bear 5⅛ per cent. It would not be necessary for the Treasury to float new securities which would equal the total of maturing obligations. Income tax payments come due March 15 and the Treasury will have those funds to help meet current needs.

American Telephone and Telegraph lifted its 1930 record high level yesterday when the stock was responsivle to sustained demand on a large scale. If the Street had been expecting anything in the way of special announcement from the directors' meeting, which might have explained the sharp advance there since the beginning of the week, it was doomed to disappointment. The board ordered only the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share due at this time. Some selling, sufficient to bring a moderate reaction from the peak levels, developed following the announcement of the regular quarterly payment.

THOUGH the oil shares were rather quiet during yesterday with evidence of further liquidation developing occasionally, the street was nevertheless inclined to view the outlook for those stocks with less favor. Report was around that the next issue of the Lamp, house organ of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, would not make very bullish reading for those interested in petroleum shares. On the contrary it was expected that this journal due some time next week, will set forth the new Standard Oil policy rather clearly, and will indicate that the biggest interests in the industry are preparing for a period of lower oil prices and consequently smaller profits.

With Germany taking the $2,500,000 gold offered in the London market yesterday, financial circles there were once more discussing the possibility of renewed gold shipments not only to Paris, but moreover to New York. Such discussion has unquestionably been stirred anew by the steady decline in sterling from the high levels of a few weeks ago. British exchange continued its recession yesterday, dropping to new low levels for the movement.

EFFORTS to move the aviation stocks forward are not meeting with the success understood to have been expected by those interests in this group. One market observer likens conditions now prevailing in the industry to that which existed at the time Radio struck the popular fancy—too many companies and too small a margin of profit. In his opinion it will be a case of the survival of the fittest. In the past year or so some of the aviation companies have suffered severe losses on operations.

Recently Continental Oil made a new low for the year. After its merger with Marland the stock sold as high as 47⅛, compared with the recent low of 19⅝. It is selling only a point or so above the extreme low reached in the smash last year. It is claimed most of the selling is coming from holders who have become tired of watching the stock go down while other issues have been going up. Less than 10 years ago when Continental Oil, not then merged with Marland, was introduced to the public, it sold around 32. The old stock, not traded in from time to time on the Curb, is selling for less than half that figure. The annual report of Continental Oil will be out soon and is likely to show close to $2 earned in 1929 after very heavy charges against earnings for depreciation, etc.

Ore Consumption Higher in January

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20.—Total Lake Superior ore consumed during January amounted to 4,101,015 tons as compared with 4,076,432 tons for December, or an increase of 24,583 tons. Ore consumed in January of the previous year amounted to 5,195,034 tons. Total ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks as of February 1 totaled 33,528,398 tons as compared with 30,180,105 a year previously. Number of furnaces in blast on last day of January was 155, an increase of 16 over the number in blast on last day of January, 1929, according to Lake Superior Iron Ore Association.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—There was little breadth or depth to the bond market today, and trading languished in the early hours. By far the most active issue was the American Telephone convertible 4½s, which declined, with the shares, on fairly brisk selling.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER WIDE DECLINE

Declines of 1 to 10 Points Cut Down When Bears Give Leaders Support

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—(AP.)—Stocks fell into a decided slump during the early hours of trading today, as the selling wave which appeared late yesterday swept through the market, but the liquidation appeared to have been completed by early afternoon and bulls rallied to the support of leading shares. Early declines of 1 to 10 points were considerably reduced, and several shares were lifted above last night's closing levels.

Bears evidently took advantage of the jar to confidence provided to the sudden downturn late yesterday to launch a concerted attack, and many traders long of stock hastened to take profits. Several commission houses have been advocating the lightening of accounts in preparation for a technical reaction for about a week.

Further declines in the grain markets also caused some nervousness.

LEAD VOTES EXTRA

The most conspicuous item of the day's corporation news was the annual report of National Lead, together with announcement of a $3 extra dividend on the stock. While earnings for last year were nearly double those of the previous year, current sales were said to be about 45 per cent below a year ago, against 32 per cent in January. A few other concerns announced favorable earnings statements for 1929.

Monetary conditions were unchanged, with call loan still quoted at 4½ per cent and in ample supply at that level. Attention was focused upon the weekly Federal Reserve statements to appear after the close of the market. Wall Street generally looked for a moderate increase in brokers loans. There is also talk of reduction in the rediscount rate to 3½ per cent, although such action is not expected for some time.

LOSSES CANCELLED

American Telephone, United States Steel and American Can, which were in the van of the recent advance, were heavily sold during the forenoon, losing about 2 points each, but these losses were canceled in the early afternoon rally. Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak and International Silver dropped 5 points each, but soon rallied smartly. Brooklyn Union Gas gained more than 3 points. Gillette advanced nearly as much, and International Telephone and American Tobacco B gained moderately. Radio moved up about a point to a new high for 1930.

Otis Elevator lost more than 10 points and shares which showed losses of 3 to 4 points included Chesapeake and Ohio, Auburn Auto, Columbia Gas, Standard Gas, Western Union, R. H. Macy and Air Reduction. Oils and coppers sagged further. Standards of New Jersey and California and Kennecott reaching new lows for the year.

Spindle Activity Under Last Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Department of Commerce announced that according to preliminary census figures 34,630,866 cotton spindles were in place in the United States on January 31 of which 29,198,134 were operated at some time during the month as compared with 29,069,510 for December and 30,753,168 for January, 1929.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP.)—Curb market shares were under steady but moderate pressure today. Trading tended to slacken on declines, and in general the list maintained a fairly firm undertone, but cautious efforts to resume operations for the advance were largely unavailing.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Music Hath Charms'

MY old grandfather used to say: "It's terrible, you have no ear for music."

One would think that I had robbed a poor-box or deserted a family, or, in some equally terrible manner, brought disgrace to the family name.

"Sure I have an ear for music," I protested, once; "I dance well. May tells me so. May is my sister.

"Dances of today? Jazz—that is not music—"

"And even if Billy does dance well, what good is it? He never goes anywhere, he never goes to dances—he's afraid of girls," my sister cried.

"That a grandson of mine should be afraid of girls," my grandfather exclaimed.

"Or have the nerve to do whatever in girls," my father added with a smile. "Guess that's still like his grandpa, eh, eh?"

"Girls," I declared, "are like music. I suppose sweet and pretty, but we can get along without either."

Grandfather muttered something that sounded quite like "dumkopf." Sure. May giggled and said I would get over it and fall for some girl with the customary dull and sickening thud.

I didn't believe it.

Miss Lewis was talking with me about some work at the settlement house. I had helped her a little. Miss Lewis is 40 and prim and not the sort of "girl" I would be at all afraid of.

"Why don't you go up to the Lewishon Stadium tonight, Mr. Ross," she said to me. "You have no idea how restful good music is. Here's a ticket."

A Strange Visitor

I started to refuse, but didn't want to hurt her feelings and didn't want to say "yes" that I had never been terribly interested in symphony, so I decided to go and listen. I accepted the ticket, deciding to give it to my grandfather, who, I knew, would enjoy it.

He was too sick to go out so I didn't mention it to him because it would only make him feel worse.

Having nothing to do and a wonderful starlit night, I decided to do it. I [illegible] that sitting outdoors in the stadium would be cool and restful.

The music wasn't bad. I mean it sounded soft and low and while I had no real appreciation, I was as much appreciative as the average person. The evening was cool, the summer skirts and the people entertaining were nice to look at.

Then a girl came in and took the only unoccupied seat, which was at my right.

I didn't pay any attention to her at first, but I noticed that she wasn't moving, was scarcely breathing. Her little hands lay motionless in her lap.

Then I turned to see if her face would be as [illegible] like a statue.

Gosh! What's happened?

That is what I was asking myself. One look at the girl and the coolness of the evening was gone. I seemed to hear bells ringing in my ears and I ran my fingers inside my collar. My throat felt queer, sort of lumpy.

I decided that I must be going goofy to let a single glance at a girl upset me so. But it wasn't a single glance. I was staring at her steadily.

Profile Perfect

Her profile seemed perfect, her face like a cameo come to life in the moonlight. Motionless, but alive. The moonlight on her yellow hair made it look like—something I couldn't describe. Her great blue eyes were glowing—her little bosom was rising and falling, the music was thrilling her.

I didn't know whether there was music from the platform or not—or what the musicians were playing. All the music in the world was right here beside me.

I thought to myself: Bill Ross, you're gone hoopy. All right to let any girl make you feel this way.

But that didn't snap me out of it. I couldn't help staring at the girl.

The music stopped. The girl sighed exquisitely and seemed to flutter a little. That made her glorious hair move or flat or do something, at any rate I put my hand out and touched her hair.

The girl seemed to shrink away a little and looked timidly at me.

"—I couldn't help it, Miss," I whispered. "I just had to make sure it was hair—it looked like a lot of curly moonbeams."

I felt my face grow red.

The girl also blushed.

She was more beautiful than ever when she blushed and I, poor unsophisticated sap, did not know that a maidenly blush is a deadly man-trap.

Finally she smiled a little. Perhaps she wasn't as frightened as I thought.

"It's just hair, yellow hair," she whispered.

"Somebody used to say little girl," I whispered back to her, "it is a mixture of gold and moonbeams."

This made her smile.

Music Hath Charms

Her smile made me smile.

"I see you love music," she said, softly.

"Do you?" I asked.

"I adore it."

I couldn't explain that I was the family disgrace with no ear for music, so I tried to be diplomatic and adroit. I whispered:

"I adore people who adore music."

"All of them?" Her blue eyes were twinkling brighter than any of the stars in nature's roof over the Stadium.

"Only such as look like you—and no one else was ever beautiful enough to look like you," I answered. Then I wondered how the devil I happened to say such mush. I'd never handed a girl a "line" in my life. Or was this a "line"? No, it was truth. I breathed it.

I cannot help loving music," she said.

Any more than I can help admiring you.

The music started again.

Soon she warmed [illegible] her hand on mine to warn me into silence. I placed my other hand over hers. She settled back to listen; then she started as if just aware of the location of her hand. She gently withdrew it.

I sat there and admired her while she thrilled over the music. It sounded grand, that music, perhaps I did have an ear for good music, after all. I never had an eye for pretty girls before this. Both things were possible.

At the end of this number I whispered:

"Do you come often here?"

"All through the season."

"Then I'll see you again?"

She looked at me.

"And I would like to take you home tonight."

She shook her head.

"Please."

A Touch of Hands

No, of course not. It's all right to discuss music with music lovers, but not I don't know you.

"William Ross, now you know me, Miss—"

I looked at her eagerly.

"Irma Nordhoff."

"Mr. William Ross desires the pleasure and pleasure of escorting Miss Irma Nordhoff to her home," I whispered.

Miss Nordhoff regrets," she answered, smiling ever so little.

"Regrets what, meeting Mr. Ross?"

"Regrets that it looks too much like just a—a—"

"Pickup?"

She nodded and blushed.

"It is no pickup. I never spoke to a strange girl before or asked any girl to let me take her home—or—or any place."

"Well, perhaps a—a—shi—"

Another selection and again her hand on mine warningly. I covered her hand. She didn't draw it away for as much as a minute. I wanted to take her in my arms. I wanted to kiss her. I sat still and listened. There was music from the platform, but a different sort of music in my heart. I was thinking, "A chap hasn't a chance when he falls in love. He's sunk—better find out for sure and have the suspense over with."

Irma permitted me to accompany her home. It wasn't so very far but it frightened me. Her home was in one of those swell mansions just off the avenue. She would laugh at me after I left; she was just a rich girl who loved music. Well, I'd have one kiss.

But I didn't.

"Thank you, and good night," she said, and before I could stop her she slipped in the door.

Then the Question

I went home mentally kicking myself. It was over, just an incident. But it wasn't. I went back the next night. Irma came in and sat beside me.

I went home with her. I asked her to go with me Sunday on a trip, a drive or any place. She said she couldn't. I saw that she meant she didn't want to.

I kept going to these concerts. I kept telling her how beautiful she was and I began to be charmed with the music as well as with this beautiful girl.

The folks at home wanted to know where I spent my evenings. May said I had probably fallen for some girl the family would be ashamed of. I said I was attending concerts. They wouldn't believe me.

Came the last one.

"This is terrible," I whispered to Irma. "It means I can't see you any more."

"Why not? There are Carnegie concerts. Will," she said.

When I got almost to her home that night I stopped her.

"Look here, Irma," I said, "you'll laugh at me because I'm just a young chap beginning at a profession and you are a wealthy girl, but I love you. I'll work hard to make a name for myself—couldn't you—wouldn't you—"

"Who told you I was a rich girl?" I'm the governess there; music is my one luxury."

"Marry me, Irma. I'll keep you supplied with concert and opera tickets for life," I begged.

That was two years ago.

It's going to be terrible if our baby daughter grows up with no ear for music, like her Daddy.

The Personality Boy

Washington Monument, February 19, 1930.

ALTHOUGH I had been told that the undercover agent would receive a percentage of the fine, this in no way influenced my determination to inform on my friends.

My first arrest came about by accident.

One day, exhausted, I stepped into a parked automobile to rest for a moment.

Absent mindedly turning on the switch, I stepped on the starter by accident, and my sleeve caught on the emergency brake handle. Before I knew it I was driving along. It was a beautiful day. Suddenly I happened to think that the car did not belong to me. In turning, to see if anyone was in the back seat, a flask slipped out of my pocket. There it was—the tell tale evidence. I debated in my mind, and decided to drive straight to police station, where I had the car seized, and was being warmly congratulated by a long line of colleagues when in stepped—

Why Does This Picture Interest Us?

Why Do We Enjoy Great Danger for OTHERS?

MOVIES, NOT REAL LIFE, BUT DANGEROUS

Geniuses that concocted a British drama of the East, decided that his picture would appeal to the crowd.

In the picture story the hero, tied to the tree, has aroused the hatred of natives, and they plant his vengeance.

They offer the white man as a dainty dish to the lord of the jungle, so Mr. Kean, actor, had to be tied to a property tree, while a property tiger sniffed along the ground and the audience shivered.

It's a real man and a real TIGER, although a tame tiger.

He probably had been well fed, STUFFED in fact to make sure that he would not want to eat any more. But the trainer could not be responsible for his beast.

A tiger out of temper strikes the first thing he sees. Producer and cameramen in this picture worked inside of a strong iron cage. The hero, as you see, within easy reach of the tiger, is taking his chances, as moving picture men and women often do.

The philosophical question is, "WHY do we like to see others in danger?"

The more brutal of human beings enjoy the sight of actual physical suffering.

When men were tortured in the old days, broken on the raised wheel, thousands gathered to witness the wretches' sufferings.

And when, today, there is a lynching, even with the horrible detail of burning alive, many gather to see it.

If in the biggest, most civilized city, you had a public execution, and hanged a man in the public square, the crowd would be unmanageable.

Not all of us are low enough to enjoy physical sufferings of others, or base enough to enjoy seeing a man tortured or hanged.

But for most of us there is a strange sensation of satisfaction in a picture of this kind. We hope nothing will happen to the man. We hope the tiger will not forget the careful training. BUT THE PICTURE DOES INTEREST US. Probably it is because we feel that WE might stand tied to the tree, as the movie hero stands.

We feel a strange satisfaction in the fact that it is somebody else, NOT ourselves that must run the risk.

Public Will Commend Decision of Mr. Harris

There will be public commendation of the decision of State Senator Frank J. Harris, of Pittsburgh, not to seek the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. He had been mentioned for that office in connection with a slate to include Senator Joseph R. Grundy in his candidacy for re-election and that of Samuel S. Lewis, proposed as the Republican nominee for governor.

Mr. Harris' reasons for declining is that his activities in behalf of beneficent legislation naturally would be limited were he successful in gaining the nomination and, later, victory at the polls. It is for the very self-same reason that the public will be thankful that Mr. Harris has decided not to be buried in a political sense.

As state senator, Mr. Harris has made an enviable record in his advocacy of the voting machine law and other measures for the benefit of the people. From the public standpoint, it is much more desirable that he remain in a position where he can be of real service to his district rather than become the tag end of a political slate, in which his only voice might be consent to use his name in payment for a hollow honor and a title higher sounding than that of state senator.

We need men like Mr. Harris in our legislative halls, where his independence of thought and action, wisdom and energy have been so well expended in behalf of public welfare.

Legend of Arabia

The Five Faithful Horses.

Arabians contend that an ever-increasing number of Americans are buying their best horses—their most precious treasure. Breeding of saddle horses in the United States is on the increase—and fears that the automobile would completely wipe out man's old friend may, for the moment, be dismissed.

All of which recalls the legend about the parent stock of Arabian thoroughbreds. A powerful ruler once rounded up all the horses in Arabia. They were corralled near a beautiful stream and not permitted to drink water for three days. Then, famished for water, the horses were suddenly released. They dashed madly for the stream.

An Arabian bugler stood at hand, and suddenly the clear call to halt was sounded. Five horses obeyed. The others were destroyed. These five horses, faithful and true in the agonizing test, became the forebears of all the thoroughbreds which served mankind from that time on.

The Four Horsemen of America

Drawn by Nelson Harding

With rapidly increasing speed,
Like figures in a frightful dream,
In bold relief against the light,
Our hideous four horsemen stream.

On organized society,
They charge with ever looser rein,
A modern menace greater than
The ancient pirates of the main. —N. H.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Educating the Children

THE explosion of a Brooklyn still is another reason why those things should be placed under government supervision.

"Bugs" Baer

It blew the windows out of a schoolhouse and gave the children their first lesson in practical chemistry.

At first the neighbors thought the still was in the school. Later they realized that such things could only occur in colleges and institutions of higher education.

The fermented explosion broke thousands of window panes. Think of having that stuff in a bottle on your hip.

The hootchbooters had set up a 250-gallon aquarium in a frame dwelling opposite the schoolhouse. Then they tapped a city gas main to get their motive power.

The affinity of illuminating gas for equally illuminating alcohol was too much for the coils and the retorts of the experimenting laboratory. The result was the same as if a raisin had been dropped into Mt. Vesuvius.

People who fool around with paints, oils and varnishes in habit-forming quantities would do well if they put hinges on their roofs. The lid of the house could be swung back after each explosion.

We understand that the brewsters of the foothills of the West are all taking home courses in staggering chemistry.

The most dangerous thing that any man can do is to tweeze the ingrown hairs out of a lion's mane or stir liquid fire with a celluloid spoon.

Nitro-glycerine and T. N. T. are maple syrup for your morning waffles when compared with the expanding properties of backyard hootch.

When a man lifts a glass of that stuff to his face he is not only liable to have his future bobbed, his tonsils scorched and his tonneau simonized, but he is also liable to have his eardrums shattered.

It's more dangerous than playing leap frog on the edge of the Grand Canyon, smoking in a government arsenal or breaking the ice to take your daily cold plunge.

Pour a pint of it into the Atlantic Ocean and all the walruses would shed their tusks, all the sardines would boil in their own oil, and all the sharks would go to a sanitarium with shell-shock.

Spray a quart of it over the petrified forest and every tree would burst into bud and the woodpeckers would limp away with broken hoses.

It's deadly stuff to toy with. If you would live to an unripe old age we advise you to toss away your inflammable receipes and stick to good old pump juice.

ROBINS are ALREADY beginning to twitter on ticker tape. Stock quotations are "chirking up."

Wheat prices may be crumbling, but mail order earnings boast a DECIDED improvement.

Birmingham and Pittsburgh and agricultural implement manufacturers aren't aware, from balance sheet information, that a million or so crap-shooters were lately rooked by Lady Luck, at Broad and Wall.

Power and light, transportation and communication, no longer compelled to bid against a bubble-blowing "call" market for their fiscal needs, are crowding the bargain counters of finance, floating notes from four to five per cent, and transforming the enormous sums that lately loafed around brokerage offices, into locomotives and freight cars and rails and electrical equipment and telephone cables.

THERE is no appreciable difference in the number of bankruptcies during January, 1930, and January, 1929.

There's considerable unemployment, but who EXPECTS to find farmers at work in snow and sleet—or road gangs breaking frozen ground—or masons or bricklayers or carpenters or painters or plasterers engaged in maximum force in zero weather?

Construction is taking its usual winter recess, and this is never a time to hire harvest hands, ditch diggers or foundation crews.

Nature and occupations, alike, have their REGULAR dormant seasons.

PROGRESS can't maintain the SAME clip through foul days and fair.

But indoor trades and basic industries aren't noticeably reducing personnels, and NONE of them has signified the least intention to cut wages.

The chin blow that knocked eight billions' worth of wind out of speculative values WASN'T a smash delivered at the body economic.

Therefore, commerce doesn't show even a bruise mark.

Legitimate enterprises are securing money at the lowest rates since '22, and meeting no difficulty in obtaining all requisite funds for normal expansion.

Retailers AREN'T dumping surplus stocks through sacrifice sales, because they're not burdened with reckless inventories.

MERCHANTS don't purchase beyond immediate consumption NOWADAYS; they confine their commitments to the current demand and consequently aren't suddenly forced to issue the distressing cancellation, mainly responsible for the protracted depressions which prostrated factory communities in 1907 and at the close of the Great War.

Prosperity may not be joy-riding at 1929 speeds, but it's traveling toward inevitable betterments and approaching fundamentally healthier conditions.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

EVER go to prize fights?

Ever see a man "punch drunk?"

Not a pretty sight. Brain pounded into a custard . . . nerves raveling from shock . . . Half an hour ago that man was a splendid co-ordinated machine, eager, alert, capable of putting up a good scrap. Now he's a fumbling, mumbling brute with idiot eyes.

Get a man punch drunk too often and he stays that way. Gets scrambled minded. Goes wobbling through life. His body looks all right, but . . . something that should have kept him sure and brisk.

Nasty thing to watch a man being broken like that in the ring . . . but a whole lot nastier to see it being done, in ordinary life, to a child.

I've been watching a woman doing it lately to a baby of four. She's a moody undisciplined thing . . . selfish, terribly spoiled by a stupid mother . . . inordinately vain of her pretty face and frightful disposition, which she fondly calls "artistic temperament."

Needless to say, she has never been able to get along with anyone. At thirty-three she is separated from her husband and at outs with her world. The boy is in her custody . . . AND HE'S PUNCH DRUNK FROM HER ABUSE.

There isn't a day that she doesn't batter that baby into stupidity or hysteria. Why doesn't someone call the police? Because she doesn't do anything for which the police can arrest her. She doesn't beat the boy with her hands. . . . SHE PUMMELS HIM WITH HER EMOTIONS.

All her wounded vanity, all her self pity, all her rage and suspicion she vents on the boy. Older people can and do avoid her. The baby can't. He's at her mercy, and she finds satisfaction in playing on his helplessness.

She clasps him in her arms and weeps torrents of maudlin tears. . . . She sulks and tells him he doesn't love her. . . . She flies into tantrums, nags him until he is screaming, then punishes him for "being bad to mama" . . . or tortures him into convulsions of fear by saying that she will run away and leave him . . . or excites him into demonstrations of affection by excessive fondling.

The boy's a bright little fellow, sensitive and friendly. But under her battering he is becoming dazed, sulky, suspicious, nervous and bad tempered. She is making a punching bag of him and, unless someone rescues him soon, he will be a punching bag for the rest of his life, at the mercy of every shock.

Yet that woman would protest with shrieks, howls and heart-rending moans that she loves her baby . . . and any court would probably uphold her.

Some day, when we grow wiser, we won't uphold mothers like that. We will realize that they are as dangerous and ruthless as mad dogs . . . and protect babies from their viciousness.

Isn't It So?

Circumstances make fewer men than they discover.

The man who can't meet his obligations is always meeting his creditors.

The man doesn't live who feels at ease in a room where two women are whispering.

Compared with the amount a man wants it is surprising how little he actually gets along with.

Text For Today

The world passeth away, and the lusts thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever.—I John ii:17.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE reader will be familiar with a number of examples. The plumed fruits of dandelions and thistles and the winged fruits of sycamore and pine sail in the wind for considerable distances.

H. G. Wells

The dry poppy head rocks in the wind and as it sways it scatters little puffs of seed, like a sower scattering handfuls of grain. It is, indeed, a better and more even distributor of fine grains than an ordinary salt shaker or pepper-pot, and a household shaker deliberately designed from the model provided by the poppy has recently been patented.

The fruits of violet and wood sorrel and the pods of gorse and the sweet pea burst with surprising violence and eject their tiny offsprings into the world. The seeds and fruits of water lilies have spongy coverings filled with air, by means of which they float for a time on the surface of the pond, later to become waterlogged and sink.

The fruits of goose grass and agrimony and burdock bristle with tiny hooks that catch in the fur, feathers or plus fours of passing creatures and so are carried for great distances before they are dropped, brushed off or noticed, pulled off and tossed aside.

And there are many other ingenious devices to reward the observant naturalist.

Finally, there are the fleshy and succulent fruits — blackberries, dewberries, elderberries, currants, apples, cherries, plums, oranges, bananas, grapes, peaches, figs.

Here, again, we find plants overcoming their own immobility by bribing animals to act as their postmen. The flesh of an apple, a strawberry, or an orange is not a store of food for the growing embryo, as the flesh of the bean is; it is a free gift deliberately set out for birds or mammals to consume.

In return the consumers unconsciously distribute the plant. They often carry the fruit a little way before attacking it; if the seed is hard and large, like the stone of a cherry, it is dropped uneaten to the ground, and has thus achieved distribution.

If it is small and inconspicuous, like the seeds of a blackberry, it is swallowed with the rest of the fruit, and being indigestable emerges unchanged from the other end of the alimentary canal; in the latter case it is not only distributed but manured.

The conspicuous appearance of most fleshy fruits is again an advertisement, drawing attention to the gift. The advertisements of fruit are mostly directed at vertebrates, those of flowers mostly at insects.

We may close by referring to the seeds of gorse, which employ humbler carriers; they have a small, fleshy appendage that is appetizing to ants, and in addition to being exploded out of their pods they are therefore dragged about by the ants, often for some distance.

SEC. 4. THE FLOWERING PLANTS

It is by no means true that all plants reproduce themselves by means of flowers and distribute themselves by means of the resulting seeds.

These matters are characteristic peculiarities of one division of the vegetable kingdom. It is true that division includes by far the greater number of the plants that now cover the earth with meadows and jungles and forests, and nearly all that are grown for beauty, on for food, or for timber; nevertheless, there are other plants with other methods, and with these we shall have to acquaint ourselves.

But before we do so we may note briefly that the divison with which we have hitherto concerned ourselves, which may be called either the flowering plants (Phanerogams) or seed-bearing plants (spermatophytes), is divided into two classes.

The first class includes all the coniferous trees and shrubs—fir, pine, larch, cedar, cypress, juniper, yew and the rest—and also the peculiar tropical cycads and one or two other curiosities of which we shall learn more hereafter.

The conifers bear their pollen or egg-cells on little catkins, and the female catkin grows into a cone, each scale of which bears two seeds, but we may note two well-known exceptions to this rule; in yew and juniper, which are classified as conifers for others and weighty reasons, there are no cones; the fruits are fleshy berries, distributed by birds like other berries.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—It is possible these long winter nights to bring the feverish gaiety of Monte Carlo into your home. A mere telephone call does the trick. An alchemist at an address on West Seventy-second street is prepared to transmute your living quarters into a gambling casino.

He appears to have no compunction about the legality of such entertainment, for in his elaborately engraved announcement which he sends out indiscriminately he gives his name, address and telephone number. On the manifesto are bright etchings of crowds playing roulette, baccarat, chuck-a-luck and chemin de fer.

We quote from his announcement: "You may arrange an evening of unusual interest for your guests by transplanting to your own home or club the attractions of the famous casinos of the world. This can be expertly managed, without inconvenience to you, on fairly short terms.

"I am prepared to provide you with equipment and operators comparing favorably with the best here and abroad and personally supervise. If the games are banked wholly or in part by you or through co-operation of guests, I will participate to any extent you desire."

It is said he shows no interest in queries coming from any save "class addresses." He wants only people who will gamble high. Those who have seen his paraphernalia pronounce it magnificent and his croupiers are suave and tight-lipped old-world types.

The chief game keeper—an Adonis in evening clothes—is reported to be a famous inside man in the days when Canfield's flourished. The gambling outfit is delivered in several compactly filled trunks and in three hours everything is ready for a night of play.

There are still many gamblers of other days knocking about the Tenderloin and in striking contrast to the oily and over-confident modern types. They have a silver-haired dignity and the urbanity of a Chesterfield. Most of them have seen their better days and live off the precarious fruits of small stake poker and dice games or serve as house players in billiard halls. No matter how sedate their dress, there is always a gaudy "give away" to distinguish them—a huge cameo pin, a fancy vest or a huge and glittering finger ring.

The professional gambler is rarely able to escape a nick-name among his guild. And they are usually picturesque. Among the better known are Silent Holcombe, Wee Willie, Titanic, Peaches, Nigger Nate, Happy Hal and Whistling Tim.

One of the most pathetic sights we have seen lately—next to ourself in a looking glass was a 200-pound gentleman in a great fur coat trying to coax along a tiny Pomeranian attached to a red ribbon while a group of young debutantes, waiting for limousines in front of Pierre's, tittered.

Nothing is so disconcerting to a man's vanity as the sudden giggle of a pretty maid. Whatever conceit he fosters vanishes like a flash. He imagines everything that is the matter with him, including, perhaps, a set of slightly bowed legs, has suddenly become as public as a statue in the park.

One of the best of the recent paragraphs to my notion is by W. W. Scott, who observed: "New Yorkers will stand for anything save a woman in the subway."

Such obvious paragraphs are most elusive of all for nit-wits who must think them up. A fellow never reads a homely reflection by Abe Martin without a reminder he has often observed the same thing.

They were wondering about a very handsome actor who takes his very unattractive wife with him wherever he goes. "Maybe," someone suggested, "it is because he hates to kiss her goodby."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"I WANT to talk to someone about my faults and frailties—it just seems as if I must talk to someone about about them," says a young woman.

"Poor young thing," is the first thought of the older one hearing the remark.

But much trouble can come to one who takes this method to get sympathy or advice.

If father or mother or sister or brother had been thought of as a confident, the remark would not have been made.

Parents are most reliable, but children often think they can get less sympathy at home. So they tell their secrets to outsiders, with very unpleasant results.

Wives and husbands sometimes have the same impulse, to tell personal things to someone outside.

The only way to safeguard a thing you don't want told is not to tell it.

If you can't keep it to yourself you can't expect your best friend to keep it, although you try to make yourself think so.

You want to unburden yourself and throw the trouble on someone else.

Girls should go to their mothers and boys to their fathers.

Friendships are too unstable to depend too much upon what they represent.

There are few friends who will keep your secrets.
